

Frosh Drill on Wet Turf For Washington Finale

Oregon's freshman footballers worked out on a muddy practice field Tuesday afternoon in preparation for their Saturday encounter with the highly-rated University of Washington Pups in Seattle.

Duckling Coach Bill Bowerman commented that he thought his team played pretty good ball in beating the Oregon State Rooks 26-0 last Friday but also said they might have done better.

Although this was the Duckling's second win over OSC—the other was 31-0—it is no secret they will have to step up the pace against Coach Johnny Cherb-berg's Pups Saturday.

The Washington team has won three games without a loss and has amassed a total of 131 points scored against only six for the opposing teams—Washington State, Wenatchee J.C., and the OSC Rooks.

Despite the fact the Ducklings downed the Rooks handily, they came out with several more injuries. Doyle Higdon, defensive end from Cottage Grove, suffered a sprained ankle, and Half-back Chuck Boydston came up with a charley horse.

Bowerman had some good news, however, when he announced that Halfback Dick Pavlat, who has been out with a broken hand, has recovered sufficiently to play full time against the Pups.

Signs of Inflation

Thirty to forty baseballs are used in the average Major League ball game these days. But there was a time when the number was way below this figure. For example, on June 29, 1913, the Cincinnati Reds took a 9-6 decision over the Chicago Cubs and only one baseball was used.

Bruins, Trojans Rate Fourth, Fifth In Associated Poll

NEW YORK (AP)—Five major undefeated and untied college football teams lead the field in this week's Associated press poll. Michigan State is on top with Georgia Tech second; Maryland, third, UCLA fourth and USC fifth.

UCLA replaced Oklahoma in the fourth spot after the Sooners dropped a 27-21 decision to Notre Dame. The fighting Irish jumped from tenth place to sixth. Tennessee is seventh; Oklahoma, eighth, Texas, ninth and Purdue, tenth.

In the second group, Mississippi is followed by Alabama, Syracuse, Pittsburgh, Wisconsin, Princeton, Washington, Florida, Kansas and Michigan.

BLUNTED TOMAHAWK?

Blocking, Passing Get Once Over; Ducks Hope Indians' Dander Down

Len Casanova's University of Oregon grid machine worked out Tuesday in light, intermittent rain showers in preparation for their coming Saturday encounter with Stanford's Indians in Palo Alto.

Careless mistakes were costly in the Homecoming tilt with Washington State, and all but paved the way for the Cougar win. Offensive blocking assignments, which were missed continually last Saturday, received extensive attention in Tuesday afternoon's drill period.

The offensive forward wall went through a long dummy scrimmage session in an effort to give more punch to the Web-foot ground attack. For the first half of the practice, the back-field unit also worked on polishing up the running game.

Throughout the season, Oregon's offense has relied heavily upon passing. Tuesday's drill was evidence that the Ducks will strike through the airplanes in their bid to upset the Stanford eleven. Sharing passing duties during the afternoon were the three Oregon quarterbacks, Hal Dunham, George Shaw and Barney Holland. Each hit his receivers with regularity, with end Monte Brethauer Oregon's all-coast candidate, being the most consistent target.

The Webfoot injured list doesn't look too bad at the present time with most of the crippled gridders scheduled to be ready for the Stanford tussle. Cece Hodges and Farrell Albright, halfbacks, should see action along with Emery Barnes, plagued by a sore back. Don Hedgpeith and Hal Simmons, suffering from bruised shoulders, were working with the pads Tuesday.

Stanford's Indians, who were mauled by USC's Trojans last weekend, will certainly be fighting mad, but one big question mark is how bad were the Indians physically beaten by the rough and tumble Trojan crew. One thing is sure, the Oregonians will travel to Palo Alto planning to prove to the Californians they aren't sitting Ducks.

Sigma Nu Bounces Alpha Tau Omega

In the most important game of the day, Sigma Nu squeaked by Alpha Tau Omega 15-6, 6-13 and 15-13. Other scores were: Delts over Tekes 15-4 and 15-1; Phi Delt over Phi Psi 15-13 and 15-9; Fijis over Pi KAs 16-14 and 15-4; Kappa sigs over Sammies 15-11 and 15-1; and Theta Chi over Sigma Chi 15-2, 15-2.

With Jerry Mock, Joe Segura and Tom Swalm leading the Sigma Nu's they proved to much for the ATO's to handle. In the final game of the three game set ATO looked like they had the game in the bag, with a 13-9 lead, but the power of Sigma Nu could not be denied as they rallied to win the game.

The Fijis rolled over the Pi Kappa Alpha's as Ben Baldwin and Mike Lalley paced them to the win. The Fijis, playing with two of their key players missing, still showed good teamwork and real spiking skill.

Bill Harper, ace spiker George Kern and Bill Crandall led the Theta Chis to the lopsided 15-2, 15-2 Theta Chi win over Sigma Chi. The Theta Chi's displayed good teamwork and excellent spiking in the game.

The Phi Delt's hard earned win over the Phi Psi's was due mainly to spikers Jim Gibson and Bob Wagner, Daryle Nelson's expert setting was an invaluable aid to these boys, in posting the win. Wes Ball, Wayne Ballantine and Jim Harding were the standouts on the losing side of the net.
