

Exotic Caucasian Dagger Dance Included in Cossack Program

One of the highlights of Thursday's appearance of the Platoff Don Cossack chorus and dancers will be the performance of the dagger dance by Gabriel Soloduhin. Soloduhin will be featured in the Lezginka, a barbaric Caucasian dance which begins with a sad peasant song and concludes in a wild dance of jubilation. With the chorus providing vocal background, Soloduhin performs the traditional dance with daggers.

Coming to America with the Platoff Cossacks when they were first organized, Soloduhin has also performed with Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey's circus, doing the Cossack trick of riding strapped to a horse's belly. Trained in horseback riding by his father and grandfather, he is a daring horseman and is often called to Hollywood to do parts in Cossack movies.

The program, sponsored by the Student Union, will be held in McArthur court. Doors open at 6:45 p.m. when students who do not have tickets may purchase them for 50 cents. Tickets may be purchased beforehand at the main desk of the SU.

Wilson Stresses

and development of international organizations. He cited as an example of this, the personality of Julian Huxley, former executive secretary of the preparatory commission of UNESCO.

Huxley, according to Wilson, was probably the world's worst administrator, but he effectively headed one of the most influential departments of the organization because of his great range of interests concerning international affairs. The department is now more efficiently organized, he said, but it is much less interesting.

He also elaborated on the fact that a foreign student in any country is considered as a representative of his country. For instance, an American student in Paris, although he rarely realizes it, is thought of by the French as an example of the United States cultural background.

"In the course of the development of nationalism, the nation has become the primary unit in cultural impenetration," stated Wilson. He believed this could lead to the subordination of the influence of the arts and sciences to the government in this cultural exchange between countries.

This danger can be averted, however, he said, if a partnership between the two factors is formulated. Since this formulation is still strictly on an experimental basis, many opportunities for young people lie in this field.

The question was raised as to whether the Voice of America is considered merely U.S. political propaganda instead of on the cultural basis it is intended to be. Wilson answered that since these broadcasts reach primarily behind the Iron Curtain where individuals cannot be sent, they are partially propaganda but essentially of the cultural type.

Future programs sponsored by the club will include "World Events during the Campaign", a discussion panel by Ivan Nagy, professor of political science, Earl Pomeroy, professor of history, and Victor P. Morris, dean of business administration, on Tuesday.

On Tuesday, Dec. 2, the club will sponsor "Foreign Policy; Republican Responsibilities", another discussion panel by William A. Williams, professor of history; Marshall Wattles, professor of economics; and M. S. Venkataramani, student from India.
