

Ducks, Beavers Gird for Grid Finale

Webfoots Given Slight Edge in Portland Clash

Football—for Oregon fans—bows out Saturday afternoon at Multnomah stadium, Portland when the University of Oregon Webfoots and the Oregon State college Beavers clash in their annual intra-state scrap at 1:30 p.m.

Although it seldom means much, the Ducks are rated slight favorites over the hapless Orange, who have yet to win a Pacific Coast conference game in six outings. Coach Len Casanova's entry has had little more success, although defeating Stanford 21-20 Saturday in one of the season's big upsets.

The Webfoots haven't topped their arch-rivals since 1948 when Jim Aiken's co-championship squad a 10-0 decision over Lon Stiner's eleven. Since then the Ducks have fallen 20-10, 14-2 and 14-7.

Brethauer Leads Nation

Monte Brethauer, the nation's leading pass catcher—over a three-year period—will captain the Webfoots in his final game. Brethauer is one of 16 seniors on the club. The others are: John Adams, Del Clemens, Len Diederichs, Hal Dunham, Wayne Johnson, Bob Leter, Ron Lyman, Don Long, Tom Novikoff, Hal Simmons, Dick Stoutt, Mel Streeter, Emmett Williams and Bob Wilcox.

Brethauer, who needs 10 pass receptions to break Bill McColl's record of 106 catches for three years, and Novikoff, the Ducks' leading rusher, figure high in Casanova's plans for the Beaver game. Quarterback Barney Holland, a surprise performer at Palo Alto Saturday, may get a starting assignment for the Webfoots. The remainder of the starting back-

Keep Off Field, Request Officials

A special request by Multnomah stadium officials asking that all persons stay off the playing field after Saturday's Oregon-Oregon State game has been made, according to Athletic Director Leo Harris.

The joint hands-off policy between the two schools in regard to vandalism has also been extended to Portland and plans have been made for the letterman's club from the two schools to guard the goal posts following the game.

Portland radio station KEX will broadcast a pre-game rally from 6:30 to 6:55 p.m. Friday. The rally, originating in the station's studios, will feature yell squads, coaching staffs and alumni representatives from both schools. Mortar Board Ball May be Cut for 1954

A move to decrease the number of campus extra-curricular activities in the 1953-54 academic year was initiated by the student affairs committee Thursday.

The committee accepted the recommendation of a four-member sub-committee outlawing all pairings of living organizations except those of Homecoming noise parade, Junior Weekend float parade and any other specific pairings requested by groups of living organizations. ("Groups of living organizations" is interpreted to mean Heads of Houses, the Interfrater-

McKay Named Interior Boss; Dulles, Wilson Get Key Jobs

(AP)—Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon will be secretary of the interior, John Foster Dulles secretary of state and Charles E. Wilson secretary of defense in President-elect Dwight Eisenhower's cabinet, it was announced Thursday.

McKay said Eisenhower phoned him Thursday morning and he accepted the cabinet offer. He said later, "I just couldn't turn Ike down."

The announcement came as a surprise. McKay had been a strong supporter of the general in the early days of the Eisenhower-for-President movement, but never mentioned as a likely choice for the cabinet.

McKay said he had no statements on his policies as secretary of the interior. He has been an active member of the Columbia Basin inter-agency committee studying the development of Northwest resources. He has frequently backed reclamation project work.

During the recent campaign he said repeatedly that a Republican administration would not mean an end to construction of multi-purpose dams on rivers in the Pacific Northwest.

He wouldn't say whether he will support statehood for Alaska and Hawaii. But he has supported it four times at the national conferences of state governors.

McKay was elected governor in 1948 and was reelected in 1950. Earlier McKay had been in the state senate and served as mayor of Salem.

This will be the first Oregonian to fill a cabinet post since 1871. At that time, George H. Williams of Portland was appointed attorney-general by Ulysses S. Grant, another general turned President. Williams had been chief justice of the Oregon territory and once was a law partner of Stephen A. Douglas.

IFC Discusses Quota System, Rushing, Sports

The quota system, winter rush week, and intramural sports were discussed in Thursday night's Inter-Fraternity Council meeting.

The present quota system used by the houses for pledging received the most discussion during the three hour meeting. The house quotas had been set as the difference between the number of men currently living in the house and physical capacity of the house. Under this rule, fraternity men living off campus were counted as one-half. If the fraternity exceeded its quota, the house was to be fined $50 for each man over the set figure.

The biggest difficulty presented under this system was the problem of upper classmen from other schools transferring and affiliating with the local chapter. Many of the men present felt that this handicapped them from pledging

OREGON'S MCKAY From Statehouse to Cabinet

Patterson, Marsh In Line for Post

(AP)—The next governor of Oregon will be either of two state senators: Paul Patterson of Hillsboro or Eugene Marsh of McMinnville.

It all depends on when Gov. Douglas McKay resigns to enter President-elect Dwight Eisenhower's cabinet as Secretary of the Interior. If McKay resigns prior to Jan. 12, Patterson, as president of the senate, will become governor. Marsh will be elected president of the new senate on Jan. 12 and if McKay resigns after that date, Marsh will be the next governor.

Under the Oregon constitution, the new executive will serve the remaining two years of McKay's term of office. According to the provision made in the constitution for the line of succession, the president of the senate becomes governor if the present governor should resign or die. If the president of the senate is unable to fill the office, the job goes to the speaker of the house of representatives, the secretary of state or the state

Collin Questions Fitness Of Washke for Position

The fitness of Paul Washke, professor of physical education, to serve on the ASUO constitution committee was challenged by Don Collin, ASUO senator-at-large, at Thursday night's senate meeting.

Collin felt that the decision regarding last year's student body and constitution amendment election was "a paradox and almost contradictory".

Collin States Objection

Collin stated that no member of the committee which handed down the decision should be appointed to this year's committee. Washke is the only member of last year's committee up for reappointment.

Washke, contacted at his home Thursday evening, stated that the decision by the constitution committee last year was unanimous. He said he was asked to serve again by President H. K. Newburn this year and he accepted.

The constitution committee ruled the ASUO election would stand as "there wasn't sufficient evidence to show that, although there were some irregularities in the election procedure, any of them were sufficient to indicate a different result would have been reached."

Amendment Invalidated

The constitutional amendment, which would have changed freshman elections from fall to winter term, was declared invalid (although it passed 1600 to 390) because of lack of proper notice.

Chairman of the committee was Kenneth J. O'Connell, professor of law. Other faculty members on the committee were Washke, Warren C. Price.

Action by the senate on the recommendations for the constitution committee will be made later.

The senate also decided to send several proposals to the constitution committee when it is formed. The committee will be asked for an advisory opinion on whether the dividing of the ballot for freshman class officers into candidates for president and representative would be legal and make it possible for candidates for representative to be elected to the position. Last year the president, vice-president and both representatives were candidates for president.

A committee was set up by the senate to look into the "de-emphasis" of sports here at Oregon. The group also set up a committee to work with the student court on parking problems.

Heat Reason Given

Explanation of the excessive heat noticed in the library was made Wednesday by I. I. Wright, following the survey story in Wednesday's Emerald.

A ventilating fan in the old part of the library broke last week, Wright said, and was not operating at all while replacement of bearings in the motor were made.

The fan has now been fixed, Wright said.
