Webfoots Spill Santa Clarans

An alert, ball-hawking band of Ducks from the University of Oregon stunned the University of Santa Clara Broncos, defending NCAA Western champions, 65-62 Wednesday night in McArthur court.

Barney Holland, who only a couple of weeks ago exchanged his moleskins for a casaba outfit, set a torrid pace for the Webfoots, bucketing 11 points in the second half while his teammates erased a 35-34 edge and built up a margin of their own.

Coach Bob Ferrick's Prune valley lads showed how they knocked off the University of Wyoming and UCLA at Corvallis a year ago in the district finals, by building up an 11-3 cushion after five minutes of action. The Webfoots, apparently awed by the Santa Clara story, looked ed.

ragged and completely out-classed. But the tale quickly changed with Ken Wegner adding a 20-foot push, a free throw by rangy Ed Halberg, and a tip-in and lay up by Bob Stoutt, interrupted by Dick Garibaldi's charity shot, narrowed the gap to 12-10. A smooth left-hand hook shot by Chet Noe and an all-alone lay-up by Holland knotted the count at the quarter, 14-14.

The second period was touch and go most of the way. Santa Clara took an 18-14 lead but the Webfoots tied it. Ken Sears then hit with a one-hand jump shot to put the Broncos in front 20-18. And the Saints retained their edge for the remainder of the first half.

Rebounding by Noe, who grabbed 20 of them off the backboards, was a great assist to the Webfoots in the second half. A rebound shot by Holland put Bill Borchers' crew in the lead for keeps early in the third-quarter, 39-37. Although never headed, the Webfoot margin was often precarious. Three baskets apiece by the two-hand set expert Jim Young and the six-foot eight-inch Sears in the final 20 minutes kept the Ducks on edge.

Oregon led 53-51 at the outset of the fourth quarter. After Sears had hooked in a two-pointer to bring the Broncos to 55-54 the Webfoots quickened the pace. Bob Hawes let fly with a jump shot from the free throw line, Holland counted once, and Halberg racked up a tip in on Hawes' archer and then hit for a 20-footer. Only Sears' foul shot interrupted the barrage and Oregon led 62-55 with 3:50.

Sears counted twice close-in set shot and a lay up and the Ducks went into a brilliant stall with Hawes and Holland being the action for a solid minute. A set up for Holland was the crusher a minute later.

The shooting averages show the progress of the game. At half-time the Broncos had .363, Oregon, .317. The final percentages were Santa Clara .250, Oregon .363.

Team managers are urged to complete intramural entry forms and turn them in before the end of the term for the five winter IM sports, announces Paul Washke, intramural director.

Oregon Webfoots, Portland Pilots Clash Tonight in McArthur Court

University of Portland's undefeated Pilots, led by All-American candidate Andy Johnson, will put on a one-night stand with the University of Oregon Webfoots tonight at 8 in McArthur court.

Johnson, a strapping 6-4 forward, was the difference between winning and losing for the Pilots Tuesday night—and the Pilots won, over Oregon State, 68-63. Johnson scored 27 points, 22 of them in the second half. Coach Mush Torson of the Portlanders calls him "the best player I have coached and the best all around player on the Pacific Coast today." And to back up his coach, Mr. Johnson has scored 70 points in three games.

Slated to fill the gap left by M. H. McGilvery, until January at least, is Center Don Mayfield, 6-7, 230 pounder from Ashland. McGilvery, who scored 422 points in 35 games last year, is scholastically ineligible at present.

Starting at the other forward position will be Nick Trutanich, 6-4 junior from San Pedro, Calif. Captain and first string guard Ken Strode, 20-year-old senior will team with Ben Pitzer, 6-1 from Salem. The Pilots starters average slightly over six feet, three inches.

In tonight's preliminary at 5:45 the Oregon Frosh host the Portland junior varsity quintet.

Ducklings Slap AAU Quintet In Preliminary

The Oregon Frosh repulsed a strong second half bid by Hewitt's Market and went on to win, 63-58, in the preliminary to the Santa Clara-Oregon clash at McArthur court Wednesday night.

Jack Keller, an ex-Oregon hooper who plays for the local AAU entry, topped scorers with 17 points, followed closely by 6'7" Frosh center, Max Anderson, who potted 16.

Coach Don Kirsch's freshman scored first and ran up an early 8-1 lead on free throws, and lengthened it out to 32-21 at the half.

Hewitt's, however, came blazing back after the intermission and with Keller, Krause, Jack McElvany, and Paul Souers hitting from all corners, narrowed the count at the end of the third quarter to 46-44.

The AAU team, with two minutes gone in the fourth quarter, closed the gap entirely to 46-46 as Gene Hebard scored from five feet in front of the basket, but Dick Schlossteni put the Frosh back in the lead to stay with a lay-in just five seconds later.

The margin wavered between three and six points after that, but fine shooting by Dick James and John Foster built a final ten-point spread.

Outstanding for Hewitt's were their two guards, Keller and Krause, while Max Anderson was the top scorer for the Frosh and hauled in many rebounds.

Ducks Slate Hoop Dates

Tonight's game with Portland will be Oregon's final home appearance until Dec. 20 when they entertain the Seattle university Chieftans.

Following that date the Webfoots hike East for four games—with the University of Wyoming Cowboys Dec. 22 and 23; the University of Iowa Hawkeyes Dec. 26; and the University of Wisconsin Badgers Dec. 27.

The opening PCC Northern Division games will be held in Mac Court Jan. 2-3 when the top-ranked University of Washington Huskies play a brace of games.

Ducks Twice Tip Visiting Cardinals

University of Oregon's scrappy basketball quint turned the tables on an invading tribe of favored Stanford Indians last Friday and Saturday night and instead of falling to the cards the Ducks won in the two close frays, 73-68 and 74-64.

It was mostly the efforts of elongated Chet Noe that the Webfoots emerged victorious. In the first encounter, the senior center dumped in 22 tallies; while the second game saw him garner 19.

On the other hand minute Ron Tomsic wielded a potential war-club for Coach Bob Burnett's towering Indians. This 5 foot, 11 inch guard led a determined Stanford rally in the first contest which missed by only seven points, and kept the losers in most of the game the following night.

All told, his exertions provided 43 points for two games—a commendable total, considering today's emphasis on the tall men.

In the opening home-stander, Coach Bill Borchers' basketekers put on a sparkling first half of basketball before 6,000 cozy spectators, leading at the intermission, 44-28. But behind Tomsic, who potted five straight field goals, the opponents closed the gap to 64-62, just as the last period was opening.

It took an effective stall and some accurate shooting by Kenny Wegner, Barney Holland and Bob Hawes to salvage the contest for Oregon.

The Saturday evening brawl saw more of the same rugged tight action. Stanford clamped a tight zone defense on the Ducks and it wasn't until the last quarter that Oregon pulled even. At that point Chet Noe put Oregon in the lead for good with a gift toss that broke a 50-50 tie.
