

Snowball Dance Plans Made by Frosh Dorms

The freshman social chairmen are putting plans together to make this year's Freshman Snowball one of the high points on the winter term social calendar. This dance will be held Jan. 24 in the Student Union at 8:30 p.m.

This event is being sponsored by the freshman dorms with the social chairmen heading the committees. It is a free dance with the girls wearing formals and the men dressed in suits. There are to be no flowers, according to Dorothy Kopp, co-advisor of the Class of '56 social committee.

Only freshmen are invited, but may bring upper class dates. The social chairmen in the men and women's dorms will cooperate in arranging dates for freshmen who are as yet dateless, reports A. L. Ellingson, counselor for men who is helping with the dance.

The decorations will be all white tones with blue lights. An artificial bridge will occupy the entrance with a "stream" running underneath. Snowflakes and white trees will make up the main part of the decorations.

Studies Open To UO Faculty

Six weeks of on-the-spot studies of business firms will be available next summer to university faculty members through business fellowships that are being offered by the Foundation of Economic Education, Inc.

The objective of the program of fellowships is to give academic staff members of colleges and universities of the country a fairly comprehensive picture of the operation of a business firm.

Faculty members who are interested in the program are requested to make applications before Feb. 15. They may also indicate the type of firm they are interested in studying.

The study period for the fellowships will usually be during July and August. Living costs of $400 in addition to transportation costs will be paid each fellow.

Detailed information on the program may be obtained from Karl W. Onthank, associate director of student affairs, in the graduate placement office.

Cosmos to Hold Hawaiian Night

The Cosmopolitan Club will hold a Hawaiian Night in conjunction with Hui-O-Kamaina, Hawaiian club on campus, from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight Friday at Plymouth House, next to the Congregational Church.

Hui-O-Kamaina will provide entertainment and Hawaiian refreshments, both starting sometime after the Globetrotters' basketball exhibition. Afterwards there will be social and possibly exhibition dancing and games.

Americans as well as foreign students make up the membership of the Cosmopolitan club, and all are welcome to "come and see" according to Ted Goh, president.

Fellowships Open For Study Abroad

Interested in combining exciting travel with studies? Why not investigate fellowship and scholarship opportunities abroad? Sponsored by the Institute of International Education, awards are available for almost every major country and information about them is now compiled.

General requirements for eligibility are United States citizenship, a B.A. degree from an American university, good academic records and character, knowledge of the language of the country, good health and preferably under the age of 35.

Awards, which are available for colleges in Ceylon, Iran, Denmark, England, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland, Brazil, Cuba, Mexico and a few other countries, may be applied for by writing to the U.S. Student Program, Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York 21, N.Y.

The information sent by this organization will give further directions about filling the blanks, which cover application for one academic year of study, beginning in October or November, 1953.

Steiner Leaves Campus Post

M.Sgt. Paul G. Steiner, instructor in sophomore AFROTC, has been recalled to active duty in his reserve status as Captain. He is now in the process of transferring to Hensley Air Force base in Dallas, Texas, where he will be a supply officer.

Steiner came to Oregon as an instructor in the summer of 1950, after having been on active duty in Japan, the Philippines and on Okinawa. In addition to his duties as instructor here, he has been on the AFROTC rifle team and president of the faculty bowling league.

UO Law Graduate Writes Legal Paper

An article by William E. Love, graduate of the university's law school, is reprinted in the December 1952 issue of the Oregon Law Review.

Entitled "How the Adoption of the Uniform Commercial Code Would Affect the Law of Bank Deposits and Collections in Oregon," the article was written by the current professor of the University of Washington law school as partial fulfillment of his requirements for the doctor of jurisprudence degree granted him last June.

AFROTC Offers Graduate Study In Meteorology

Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps seniors who have had one year of college physics and mathematics through integral calculus, may apply for further graduate work, according to E. L. Bruns, head of the military department.

Qualified men who are accepted will be enrolled in one of eight nationally-known colleges for training in meteorology. They will receive one year of schooling financed by the government, and then will receive assignments as weather officers in the USAF air weather service. While in school they will be second lieutenants and will receive full pay and allowances.

Following June graduation, the students will enroll in September classes. Credits received during this training period may be applied toward a master's degree, which in some cases may be obtained through field experience and eligibility for further government-financed education.

After finishing training, the men will be on active duty as weather officers, in which capacity they will be responsible for briefing pilots and navigators on weather conditions pertinent to the flights.

Other schools who are participating in the government's program are Massachusetts Institute of Technology, New York University, University of California at Los Angeles, Pennsylvania State college, University of Chicago, University of Washington, Florida State university and St. Louis university.

Christian Leaders To Meet at NCC

Job Opportunities

The Portland civil service board announces an open competitive examination for police patrolmen. This job offers permanent appointment, salary increases and vacation and sick leave privileges. The monthly salary ranges from $255 to $313.

The duties of a police patrolman consist of patrolling and investigational duties for protection of life and property, enforcing laws and ordinances of the City of Portland, writing reports and operating an automobile.

Candidates must have reached their 21st birthday by Feb. 1, 1953, and must have graduated from a standard four-year high school course, or successfully completed the general educational development test. The maximum age for non-veterans is 30, and for veterans, 35. Candidates must also pass the medical test prescribed by the board. Information concerning this test is available at the civil service office. Height and weight requirements must be met at the time of filing application.

Applicants must be residents of Multnomah, Washington or Clackamas counties, except those who have or will have completed a standard four-year course in police administration by July 1, 1953 and are residents of Oregon or Washington.

The examination will consist of a written test weighted 70 per cent and a physical test weighted 30 per cent. A candidate must receive a passing score on each part of the examination to be placed on the eligible list. The examination will be given at 9 a.m. on Jan. 29, 1953, in the Municipal auditorium in Portland. The last day for filing an application is Jan. 23, 1953, and the filing place is Room D, Municipal auditorium. All local applications must be filed in person.
