Webfoots Boost Grants-in-Aid; Part of 'Evening-up Process'

A program to put the University | process." of Oregon on "a more equal footing" with other schools of the Pacific Coast conference has been endorsed by the administration, the athletic department and alumni groups, it was announced Monday.

Athletic Director Leo Harris, at the weekly meeting of the Oregon club Monday, outlined a plan which will allow Webfoot coaches to offer tuition aid to slightly more than 100 varsity and freshman athletes in football, basketball, track, baseball and other sports. At present, less than 60 grants-in-aid are

"We have long felt our varsity and freshman squads have not compared numerically with others in the Pacific Coast conferencec," Harris said, "and we believe the proposed program will do much to put us on a more equal footing."

No Deviation

The plan for making aid available to more athletes is not a deviation from present university policy or in violation of the Pa-

"We firmly believe in strict observance of the university and conference regulations against unauthorized aid to athletes," Harris told the Oregon boosters, "and this simply is a move to increase the amount of money we are raising to legally help student athletes."

Plans for the new program were developed during a series of meetings attended by university President Harry K. Newburn, other university officials, members of the athletic department staff and alumni leaders from throughout the state. The administration, the alums and the athletic department were in accord that the program must be expanded, although being satisfied with the present set-up.

Willing to Help

"A group of alumni, led by Charles Holloway of Portland, president of the alumni association. Milton Rice, president of the Portland Duck Club, and Rex Hamaker, president of the Oregon Club, came to us about two months ago," Harcific Coast conference code. Harris ris related, "and generously offertermed the change an "evening-up ed their help in making it possible athletes. We certainly appreciate their interest and efforts and have every hope the program will prove to be successful."

Harris had no additional information on the possibility of a change in the athletic department. He dispelled rumors of a change, saying that it hadn't advanced past the stage of "just talk," but said it was possible there would be an adjustment in the future.

"There may be a few changes in assignments within the department. This, however, is still being discussed and changes will be announced as soon as we have reached a final decision," Harris said.
