

Duck Tracks

By John Whitty

Emerald Sportswriter

Oregon's freshman basketball team runs up against the Ducks of Oregon State tonight for the second time this season. In the first meeting of the two, the first-year men from OSC, guided by mammoth Wade Halbrook, sent the Ducklings home nursing a 56-67 defeat.

It looks as if the Frosh squad has quite a job on its hands if it hopes to hold down the high-scoring seven-footer. Big Max Anderson, tallest man on the Duckling roster, stands but a mere six-feet, seven-inches in comparison. Perhaps the best way to handle the big Swede is to concentrate on out-scoring him rather than concentrating on holding his point total down.

We are certainly glad to see that the University is finally going to take the step that will be the starting point in returning Webfoot athletic teams to their rightful places in PCC and Northern division competition. The point under discussion is, of course, the recent decision of the administration and the athletic department to increase the number of grants-in-aid to athletes by approximately 70 per cent.

Spread Thin

Formerly, the university granted financial aid to approximately 60 athletes, and when it is considered that these covered football, basketball, track, and baseball at least, it is evident that there were not nearly enough to go around.

The present plan has provisions to grant about 100 such scholarships to competitors in various sports, and should be extensive enough to cover adequately the needs of the coaches, at least as far as numbers are concerned. Perhaps next year Coach Len Casanova will have enough men on his football roster to fill the quota permitted for the traveling squad. This past season saw him making several trips with less than the maximum permitted because he just could not find enough players who would be of aid to the team to take on the trips.

In fact, it seemed to us on several occasions that games played at home found the Webfoots' bench containing fewer players than that of the visitors across the field. Modern football is a game where numbers as well as individual ability is important, and the 1952 Oregon grid squad certainly didn't have the advantage in numbers in most of its games.

Strictly Legal

Another aspect of the proposed program which strikes us favorably is the way in which it is to be carried out. The plan does not deviate in the least from the rules of the Pacific Coast Conference. One of the worst things that can happen to a college or university is to permit athletics to overshadow all else that goes on around the campus, including class work.

Oregon seems to have chosen the middle road, and to us it seems the best course. It is bad to permit the athletic side of a school's extra-curricular activities to wane to the point of distinterest on the part of the students, but it is even worse to allow athletics to dominate college life to the point where all else is secondary.

It is to be hoped that the new program will aid in eliminating one of our pet peeves in regard to sports competition within the state of Oregon. Perhaps one of the most aggravating things with which college coach has to contend is the drawing off of the cream of the crop of high school athletes by out of state schools.

The Old Run-out

In years past, it was almost a certainty that exceptional high school athletes from the state of Oregon would end up at some out of state college or university where they aided in beating the Sox off the University of Oregon and OSC. Recent examples are Al Hansen, sensational fullback from Grant high in Portland, who traveled all the way to Texas to continue his education at Southern Methodist university, and Dean Parsons, a football and basketball star from Eugene who is currently attending the University of Washington.

Lately, however, we have noticed a reversal in this trend, and more and more high school ballplayers from within the state are staying in Oregon to complete their educations. In turn, it seems that the coaches, at least here at the University, tend to rely more on home grown talent to fill out their squads. Only two of the hoopsters on this year's frosh basketball team are from states other than Oregon. Kent Dorwin played his high school ball at Fremont high school in Oakland, Calif., and Dick Schlosstein came to the U. of O. from Stadium high in Tacoma, Wash.

Delt Cagers Stun Teke Five, 32-14

The Delta Tau Delta A hoopsters enlarged a first period 6-1 lead into a convincing 32-14 victory over Tau Kappa Epsilon Thursday.

Bob Adair with 13 and Ron Ricketts with 12 tallies paced the Delt. Bob Lacy posted 11 points for the losers.

SAEs Sink Betas

Pat Dignan and Jack Davis of the SAE A's each sent a cast off over the tight Beta Theta Pi defense in the waning minutes of play to upset the previously unbeaten Beta's 20-16 Thursday.

The game was close all the way with the quarters ending 4-4, 7-7, 11-12 and finally 16-20. Dignan was high scorer for the SAE's with 11 tallies. Larry Wolford sent three field goals through on jump shots to lead the Beta's while Tom Lyon followed with 5 points.

Kappa Sigs Dump Pi Phi

Three men scored enough points for Kappa Sig A's to down a fighting Pi Kap quintet 33-24 Thursday. Dick Daugherty led with 16, Doug Talbot followed with 12 and Jack Murray tallied 5 to complete the victorious trio's domination.

Eight points gained high Pi Kap honors for Jim Toner, while Bud Marshall sent through 6. The losers displayed much long shot talent. The close quarterly scores went 7-6, 18-10 and 21-19.

Hale Kane Rips Chi Psi

Hale Kane's tight man to man defense rattled Chi Psi to the tune of 46-10 in Thursday's B action. Eight men scored for the victors with Bob Leter leading the parade with 19 points.

Chi Psi couldn't hang onto the ball with a 23-3 halftime deficit result. No member of the losing squad sank more than one field goal. The score by quarters went 15-3, 23-3, 37-7.

Except for a well-timed spinning jump shot from behind the key by Russ Cowell, Pi Kappa Alpha's 12-8 triumph over the Campbell Club B's went rather slowly as the score attests.

Merv Gumpert posted six points to lead the Pi K A's scoring barrage while Don Jacobson gained high honors for the losers with 4. Both teams managed to double their half time scores as the final whistle sounded. The quarters went 3-1, 4-6, 5-7, and 8-12.

AFROTC Gives 18 Commissions

Recent reports from the military department reveal that 18 men have been awarded 2nd Lt. commissions in the United States Air Force Reserve. These men qualified and were eligible for commissions at the end of fall term.

James Hanns has received his assignment to Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas, and will go from there to pilot training. John Musgrove, who also graduated, has applied for pilot training, and Robert Claypool has applied for the position of Air Observer.

Ten of the men who were commissioned are still finishing their work at Oregon for advanced degrees, and the other five have been graduated but are as yet unassigned. The ten working on degrees are: Henry Bauer, Gerald Berreman, Richard Bjornstad, John Epley, William Mansfield, Roland McClure, Verne Perry, Phillip Settecase, Victor Souvignier, and Thomas Whitson. Those awaiting orders are: Robert Bozorth, Daryl Davis, David Gibson, Raymond Karnofski, and Erlen Lamen.
