

Bowerman Aide to Harris; Still Track Boss

Bill Bowerman, University of Oregon varsity track coach, was named assistant athletic director in charge of the expanded grants-in-aid program, it was announced Saturday by Leo Harris, athletic director.

Bowerman will remain as head track coach, but the department has relieved him of his duties as freshman football coach. Harris said the frosh coaching position was still being discussed and there would be no announcement until a decision has been reached.

The new grants-in-aid program, sponsored by the administration, athletic department and alumni organizations, will raise the number of tuitions from less than 60 to more than 100.

Bowerman, a former Oregon football and track letterman, is a 1935 graduate of the university.

San Francisco Rally Halts Ducks; Jones Leads Hilltoppers' Attack

By Rick Tarr
Emerald Sportswriter

All but three Oregon cagers extended their three-day layoff through Friday night's game with the University of San Francisco. The result was a 61-57 win for the rejuvenated Dons before 4,000 McArthur court fans.

Thanks to those three men, Bob Hawes, Ed Halberg, and Barney Holland with 17, 13, and 12 points respectively, Oregon stayed in the nip-and-tuck ballgame which saw the lead change hands 20 times. The rest of the Webfoots were ice cold.

At the Throttle

On the other hand, the San Franciscans spread their points around for a fine team victory. K. C. Jones, the smooth little sophomore forward, was high man for the Dons with 12 points. There were four runners-up to Jones with nine points apiece.

After an even first half that ended at 27-25 with Oregon on the short end, USF flashed a hot 4.8 shooting average in the second half to quell the efforts of the aforementioned three Ducks. Oddly enough, both teams had identical field goal percentages with 22 for 64 attempts and a .344 overall game average.

With six minutes left to play in the game, Oregon got its biggest lead of the night at 54-47 which was also the largest margin that ever separated the two teams. But from then to the final buzzer the best the Webfoots could do was three points on a free throw by Ken Wegner and a set shot by Bob Hawes. Meanwhile five Dons kept hammering away to put together 14 points and their sixth straight win. Phil Vukicevich, the cool veteran guard led the way in those final fatal six minutes with five points.

Hawes Takes Honors

Hawes was high point man for the game with 17 points collected on eight field goals and one free throw. He had a hot .571 average collected mostly on deadly set shots.

K. C. Jones displayed flawless ball-handling for the Dons and also registered a .571 shooting percentage. But to call Jones the star for USF would be unfair to Frank Evangelho, Vukicevich, Keith Walker, and Jerry Mullen whose timely buckets kept Oregon off balance throughout.

'Swede', Rooks Slash Ducklings

By Norm Steen
Emerald Sportswriter

Oregon State's powerful Rooks, again led by their towering seven-foot center Wade "Swede" Halbrook, took a decisive 64-42 decision over the Ducklings Friday night at McArthur court. The win extended Oregon State's two year-winning streak to 24 straight games and their 10th consecutive win of the current season.

Halbrook paced the Rooks with 27 points on 11 fieldgoals and five three throws. This brings his season's total to 250 points and an average of 25 points an encounter.

The Ducklings were in the game for only the first quarter. They held a 10-9 first period advantage but a series of bad passes and a number of missed shots in the second period put the Rooks in front 30-20 at the half.

The Rooks built up a 42-25 lead midway into the third frame but the agile rebounding of Kent Dorwin and Max Anderson and a series of quick buckets reduced Oregon State's lead to 11 points at the end of the third quarter.

Shortly after the start of the final frame the Rooks lost the services of the big Halbrook on his fifth personal foul. From then on there was a steady flow of substitutes from both benches.

The Rooks had previously defeated the Ducklings 67-56.

Webfoots Nip Portland, 74-60

PORTLAND — Coach Bill Borch's University of Oregon Webfoots toyed with the Portland university Pilots for the first half of a non-conference game here Saturday night, then went on to defeat them handily, 74-60.

Ducks Take Lead

Forward Ed Halberg set the pattern for the game with a layup on Chet Noe's top-off in the opening two seconds of play. The Ducks never trailed during the course of the game, although the count was tied at 2-2 and 13-13. After the Pilots had knotted the game for the last time, Halberg ripped through a pair of buckets and Guard Bob Hawes and Chet Noe, center, followed up with four more points to give the Ducks a 21-13 quarter bulge.

The Pilots closed the gap to 23-20 with less than five minutes remaining in the second quarter, but again it was Halberg and Barney Holland who widened the distance with set shots. The Webfoots led at halftime, 34-26.

Portland failed to threaten during the second half and trailed 52-38 with ten minutes to play. Andy Johnson, star Pilot forward, was cut from the squad prior to game time for insubordination, and his loss hurt deeply.

Wegs Tops Scoring

Guard Kenny Wegner set the scoring pace for both clubs with 18 points. Teammates Halberg and Hawes followed with 14 and 11 points, respectively. Ron Marshall's 13 points was high for the Pilots.

Bob Hazel led the Oregon frosh to a 76-66 victory over the Pilot babes in the preliminary.
