Huskies on Way to Six Records; Houbregs, Noe Have Top Marks

LOS ANGELES—The Washington Huskies, who have yet to be defeated in Northern Division basketball play, are threatening a half-dozen individual and team records, according to statistics released today by the Pacific Coast Conference Commissioner's office.

Half-way through its conference season, Washington has the leading scorer in Center Bob Houbregs, who has poured in 227 points at an average of 28.4 counters a game. At the present pace he should crack the record of 265 points (Jack Nichols, Washington, 1948) in his next series. Second in scoring is Oregon's Chet Noe, who also is hitting at a pace that would top Nichol's mark. Noe has a 17.3 average and is followed by Hartly Kruger, Idaho, 16.4, and Ken Wegner, Oregon, 15.0.

Houbregs, with a fat 59 per cent on field goals and Ed Halberg of Oregon, who is hitting 50 per cent, are well above the record of 46.7 per cent set in 1951 by LaDon Henson of Washington. Ken Wegner of Oregon leads the heavy shooters from the free throw line with 78.4 per cent with Mike McCutcheon, Washington, second, 78.0 per cent. Dwight Morrison of Idaho is the No. 1 rebounder with 83 in seven games for a 11.9 average, followed by Houbregs, 11.5, and Doug McClary, Washington, 10.5.

As a team Washington is shooting 39.6 per cent from the floor (record, 35.8 per cent), 73.3 per cent from the free throw line (record, 68.7 per cent) and has scored 593 points for an average of 74.1. An equal performance in the second half of the season would top the old division mark by 164 points. The Huskies also have allowed the fewest points defensively.

The Oregon cagers went through a ragged workout Wednesday and as a result will have another go at it today instead of laying off.

The various combinations worked on ways to stop the Oregon State attack, drilled on offensive patterns and practiced the fast break. The latter was far from smooth.

Wayne Johnson was dubbed "Tony" by the rest of the team when he played the role of the red-hot Oregon State sophomore center, Tony Vlastelica. The JC transfer from Aberdeen, Washington, scored 23 points last week in the Beaver triumph over Idaho.

Aggie fans believe the six-foot-five inch hook artist has finally "arrived" and will be expecting big things from him during this weekend's crucial series with the Webfoots.

It looks like Oregon State Coach Slats Gill has finally selected a potent combination out of his wealth of reserve strength. In the lineup that upset Idaho last Saturday by 59-55, along with Vlastelica are

St. Louis Owner Sentenced to Jail For Tax Evasion

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, Fred M. Saigh, was sentenced to 15 months in prison and fined $15,000 today for income tax evasion. And Saigh announced immediately that he will sell out his holdings in the baseball team.

The 48-year-old Saigh told the court:

"This means, of course, I will have to dispose of the Cardinals. There is no way I can stay in baseball."

He also told the court that he had seen lesser sentences given men for income tax evasion and added:

"I think you have been too tough with me."

Federal Judge Roy M. Harper imposed the sentence after Saigh had asked permission to plead no defense to two counts of an indictment for tax evasion and had thrown himself on the mercy of the court.

The judge gave him until May 4 to get his affairs in order before going to prison. The sentence was 15 months in prison on each of two counts, but with the sentences to run concurrently. The fines were $10,000 on one count and $5,000 on another.

millrace. He added that before definite plans can be made by the group, Sidney Little, dean of the school of architecture and allied arts, must be consulted.

Francis Gilmore, senator at large and chairman of the honor code committee, said that she expects the senate to appoint a committee of interested students to work on a long-range four-year program to institute a partial honor code in the University. She stated that "here was an opportunity for those interested in student government to work at it."

three sophomores and a junior. Bill Toole and Johnny Jarboe worked at the guard positions with Tex Whiteman and Ted Romanoff at forwards.

Gill will have plenty of talent on hand in case this group doesn't come through. Ron Robins and Reggie Halligan have seen plenty of action this season while the all-Northern Division guard of last year, Danny Johnston, may yet show his previous class. Bud Shirliff and Jim Surgue are two more on a long list of capable reserves.

Aero Club First For Aquamen

Oregon's distance swimmers are nearly in shape for their first meet of the season against the Aero club of Portland, Coach John Borchardt stated Tuesday. The meet, which will take place Jan. 31, will be held in Portland.

Borchardt said the team members had been training for their individual events since Monday, after working for several weeks on conditioning alone.

Gordon Edwards and Yosh Terada, two of Oregon's top performers, are expected to win their events against the Aero club. Last year, Edwards was high point man in the AAU meet and he stands a good chance of repeating this year, Borchardt said.

Accompanying the regulars to Portland will be five freshmen. Although their points will not be counted, Borchardt hoped the frosh would gain some experience.

The freshmen making the trip include: Yoji Matsushima, distance and sprint swimmer; Dale Bergerson, diver; Jerry Froebe, Amos Bowles and Pete Van Berk-out, sprinters.
