

Academy Award Film To Begin Art Festival

With the showing of the academy award winning film "A Double Life", starring Ronald Colman, at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Student Union ballroom, the Festival of Contemporary Art will open on campus to continue through Mar. 13. The film will be shown again at 4 p.m.

Sponsored by a coalition of several schools and departments on the campus, the festival will present a program of art emphasis designed to stimulate interest and appreciation of the arts. It represents an attempt on the part of the University to survey current developments in the fields of creative and dramatic art.

Exhibitions of contemporary sculpture, ceramics, jewelry and weaving will open Sunday in the art galleries of the school of architecture and allied arts and the little art museum in the SU.

Lecture Slated

Wallingford Riegger, first lecturer to appear on the festival program, will speak at an assembly Tuesday at 1 p.m. in the SU ballroom.

The opening night performance of the University theater's presentation of "Death of a Salesman" Friday at 8 p.m. will climax the activities for the week.

The six weeks program will emphasize through lectures, exhibitions and films the contemporary aspect of music, the dance, radio and television, drama, art, aesthetics, literature, the cinema, and architecture.

Horace Robinson, associate professor of speech, headed the planning committee for the festival last term until his departure on leave to study at Stanford university. Glenn Starlin, assistant professor of speech, succeeded Robinson as chairman of the event.

The all-University enterprise incorporated the work of the schools of music, architecture and allied arts, and health and physical education; and the departments of philosophy, English and speech in the college of liberal arts. The planning committee also received the co-operation of the assembly committee and lectures committee in contracting lecturers for this period who fit into the general evaluation scheme of the festival.

The University library is co-operating in the presentation of the browsing room lectures and audio-visual program in conjunction with the general festival theme.

Starlin expressed the hope that the festival would become an annual event of the Oregon campus through the emphasis of an important part of college curricula. The art festival is a relatively new idea among collegiate circles and was introduced at Oregon from similar presentations at Midwestern and Eastern colleges.

Influenza Vaccine

The student health service has just received a shipment of vaccine for the prevention of influenza, Dr. F. N. Miller, director, has announced. Arriving only in limited quantities, this stock of the vaccine is enough for only 70 students, who will be given inoculations on a "first come, first served" basis only.

Modern Music's Relation to His Work Topic of Composer's Tuesday Lecture

Wallingford Riegger, noted contemporary composer, will present a lecture-demonstration on some aspects of modern music as it relates to his work Tuesday at 1 p.m. in the Student Union.

Riegger will conduct two of his own works—a nonet for brass and strings, prepared by Ira Lee, instructor in brass, and "Eternity," a chorus for women, prepared by Donald W. Allton, assistant professor of music. University students will perform the numbers.

A recording of Riegger's two-piano arrangement of a dance written for a New York dance troupe will also be played at the assembly.

Riegger will also speak in a browsing room session Thursday at 8 p.m. in conjunction with the forthcoming festival of contemporary arts.

Forensic Squad To Attend Tyro

The University forensic squad will compete with speakers from the Northwest when they attend the annual Tyro tournament at the College of Puget Sound on Feb. 12, 13, 14.

Two practice debates for the squad are scheduled this Saturday, Robert Kully, assistant coach, said. Paul Ward and Bruce Holt will meet Don Mickelwait and Phil Cass on the affirmative side of the federal fair employment question at 10 a.m. Saturday in Villard 206. Mickelwait and Cass, again on the negative, will oppose Loretta Mason and Elsie Schiller in a debate scheduled for 1 p.m. Saturday, Kully said.

Junior Appointed Member To Board

Valera Vierra, junior in journalism, has been appointed a member of the Mademoiselle college board for the coming year.

Previously appointed to the board of the nationally circulated magazine were Mary Alice Baker, senior in business, and Jean Mauro, junior in English. They are among 700 students appointed to keep the magazine informed about trends on university campuses.

Millrace Ducking Results in Injury

John Whitty, junior in law, sustained a cut foot as the result of a ducking in the millrace by his Sigma Chi fraternity brothers Wednesday night. Whitty went immediately to the student health service after the incident and was given treatment. He is now on crutches.

Declared unsafe by city and state sanitary authorities, the millrace was spoken of in general terms by Dr. F. N. Miller, head of the health service, as "no place for anyone to be thrown, in any time of year."

9 Pledge PE Group

Nine men have been pledged to Phi Epsilon Kappa, national professional physical education fraternity. They include Lloyd Amick, Henry Bonneman, Arthur Clay, Donald McClusky, Michael Popovich, seniors in physical education; Alvera Wardell, Jack Davis, Alfred Ose and Ronald Pupke, graduates in physical education.

7 Students Pledge

Seven members of the first year law class have been pledged to the Williams chapter of Phi Alpha Delta law fraternity.

They are Clarence Barrett, James Givan, Ralph Hillier, Jesse Himmelsbach, Alan Johansen, Toby McCarroll and Leo Nuttman.

The initiation ceremony and banquet for all members of the fraternity will be at the Eugene hotel Feb. 28.
