Morse Prefers Taft; Protests Fleet Removal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wayne Morse, junior senator from Oregon, Sunday expressed a preference for Robert Taft as president as compared to President Dwight Eisenhower.

Morse, an independent in political circles since he broke with the Republican party last summer, told a television panel of news men that he would support Taft "because I think Bob Taft would stand for exactly what he believes in the White House and wouldn't be tied up with the kind of compromise I believe Eisenhower's tied up with."

Last summer Morse made it clear that he would refuse to support Taft if the Ohio senator received the Republican presidential nomination. Later Morse backed Eisenhower then broke with him over campaign policy.

The Oregon senator also criticized any step toward removing the U.S. Seventh fleet off the job of neutralizing Formosa, saying it would have "dangerous potentialities."

"I want to do anything that's necessary to protect the country and win the peace, stated Morse, "but suppose we run into trouble over Formosa. Are we prepared to support the Nationalists with our Navy and Air Force?"

Deaths Total 324 In Europe Storm

(AP)—Late Sunday afternoon reports put the death toll at 324 persons in one of the worst storms in the memory of North European seaside dwellers.

This figure includes the 133 people drowned Saturday when the British ship, Princess Victoria, sank in the Irish sea.

Holland and Belgium have both declared official emergencies with four million people directly affected by North Sea floods coming through broken dikes.

Britain bore the full brunt of the hurricane force winds and pounding waves with 108 known dead. Death tolls in the three countries are mounting hourly. Six Americans are reported among the dead.

At sea, the French ship, Carthage, has radioed for help off the north coast of Holland and at least seven other vessels are in distress in the North sea.

In England, wind-driven waves swept the country in a tidal wave. In the Thames estuary, the waters sank the new submarine Sirdar at her dock. At high tide Sunday, the river overflowed its banks and swirled into the streets of London, lapping at the base of Cleopatra's needle, London landmark.

Fire also plagued Englishers. At

What Do You Think . . . of Student Government?

Pat Hartley, senior in music, said: "I believe student government should include more students. The same people seem to be stuck with all the jobs. If students are going to complain about the way the government is run, they should be willing to be more active participants in the various organizations. Yet look at the few petitions received when there is a position open. "If the students were more active in running their own government and took a lively interest in it, there would certainly be less need for controlling legislation from the administration."
