

Box Office Open For Ticket Sales

Friday Opener For Salesman

Tickets for "Death of a Salesman", University theater's next production, are available at the box office from 1 to 5 p.m. this week. The play will open Friday and run Feb. 7, 11, 12, 13 and 14.

Season ticket holders will receive their tickets this week also, if they have returned ticket stubs and orders to the box office.

Arthur Miller's play, a recent Broadway success, is directed by F. J. Hunter, instructor in speech, and stars Jim Blue, senior in liberal arts, in the role of Willie Loman, a Brooklyn salesman who is unable to face the reality of his failure as a business man and father.

The production is being shown in connection with the Festival of Contemporary Arts, now being held on the campus. It will also run during Dad's Weekend.

Oregana Pictures Of Emerald Staff To Be Taken Today

Emerald editorial and business side pictures will be taken for the Oregana today, Bob Ford, associate editor of photography, has announced. Editorial side pictures will be taken at the Emerald Shack, beginning at 3 p.m., and business side staffers will be taken, starting at 4 p.m. Editorial staff members are urged to come, because it will be impossible to contact each one of them individually.

Oregana editorial and business side pictures will be taken Thursday, beginning at 2:30 p.m., in the Oregana office on the third floor of the Student Union. All those who have worked on layout should arrive at this time, Ford said.

Three Dads Day Hostess Finalists Show Brains, Beauty, Achievement

All three finalists for the title of Dad's Day hostess have two things in common—brains and beauty. Scholastic achievement and beauty titles are nothing new to the three candidates.

EUNICE EARLY

Mrs. Eunice Early was born in West Salem May 31, 1931, and attended Garfield and Grant grade schools there, and then went on to Parrish junior high, where she was president of the student body and class valedictorian.

Mrs. Early, who is 5 feet, 5½ inches tall and has dark brown hair and brown eyes, then moved to Eugene. She went to Eugene high school where she was a member of the rally squad, honor society, was a princess of the Beaux Arts ball and was again number one in her class scholastically.

The hostess finalist was the first Eugene high student to receive the newly established Eugene Gleemen award for being the outstanding all around music student in her graduating class. She attended the University of Oregon for one year.

Her singing ability is put to practice in the Methodist church choir in Eugene, and at the moment she is preparing a solo to be sung at a friend's wedding. Mrs. Early's voice also brought her a third-place spot in the Miss Eugene contest a few years ago, even though she was a last minute entrant.

Mrs. Early and her husband, Gene, who is a senior in business administration, like to go camping and swimming together. She is an expert at baking apple and cherry pies, because they are her husband's favorite dessert.

When her husband graduates in June, Mrs. Early plans to follow him wherever the service may take him in the states. At present, she is secretary in the school of architecture and allied arts, having completed two years in this capacity last November.

NANCY GREEN

Mrs. Nancy Green is 21 years old, has hazel eyes which she describes as "off-shade," light brown hair and stands 5 feet, 6 inches. Her husband is Gordon Green, a senior in business administration, and a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Mrs. Green met her husband in LaGrande, where they both attended high school together. Her husband graduated one year before she did, and after her graduation, they were married.

During high school, Mrs. Green was cheer leader for three years, was a member of honor society and May queen.

Mrs. Green was completely surprised when John Gamiles, general chairman of Dad's Day, informed her of selection as a finalist. Her husband took a picture of the two of them to a photographer, and had his face blocked out. She had no idea that he had submitted her picture.

At the present time, Mrs. Green is working at Interstate Tractor and Equipment company as a billing clerk. "I run a billing machine, and it doesn't sound too exciting, does it?" the hostess finalist said.

Mrs. Green likes to swim—"even in the rain"—and also likes to bake pies, as well as cookies and cakes.

After her husband's graduation, Mrs. Green also plans to follow him with the service throughout the states.

Mrs. Green feels that the weekend affords a wonderful opportunity for the dads to meet the other dads, as well as the students. Although very surprised at her selection, Mrs. Green says she is honored to be one of the three finalists.

SALLY WEBB

Mrs. Sally Webb, who is 20 years old and a sophomore in business, met her husband when she was a candidate for Sweetheart of Sigma Chi. Norman, her husband, is a junior in political science.

Mrs. Webb is a member of Chi Omega and works as a stenographer for Paul Means, head of the religion department.

She is 5 feet, 4 inches tall, has hazel eyes and dark brown hair. Mrs. Webb was born in Portland and grew up in Milton-Freewater. She attended grade school at McLoughlin Union high school. The hostess finalist became Mrs. Webb in the St. James' Episcopal church at Milton-Freewater Sept. 14, 1952.

Being valedictorian of her high school class, secretary of the student body and queen of the annual Milton-Freewater pea festival, kept her high school years occupied.

Mrs. Webb's father will not be able to attend the weekend because he is attending a meeting in Chicago, but her husband's father will be here for Dad's Day.

Her hobbies are skiing and swimming, and steaks and desserts are her specialties in the cooking line.

Mrs. Webb feels that Dad's Day weekend is a well-planned occasion for the dads to visit the University and to be included in the organization and activities their sons and daughters participate in.

"It's a fine time to make Dad realize he plays an equally important role here as we, the students, do," the hostess finalist said.
