

On The Air...

KWAX Reporter

This evening over People Under Communism, KWAX will present "Drama to Order," an indictment of the Russian stage as a propaganda device, with Earnest J. Simmons of Columbia University as producer.

Two stories of India by Rudyard Kipling are scheduled for tonight's performance of the Radio Workshop Drama. The drama, "Cavalcade" will star Jim Blue and Gerry Pearce.

Folksongs and Footnotes on Friday will offer Lou Ford comment and playing disc jockey for a series of special events in history. Beyond the West, another Friday program, offers a lecture on Taoism by commentator Alan Watts.

An appeal for recruits for freedom will be given on "Sinners Arise," this Sunday's dramatization of the Cry of Warring show. England's BBC Theater the same day will present the "Goddess of the South." The social and educational implications of religion today will be discussed by a panel including Richard Emerich, Harlan Hatcher, president of the University of Michigan and Frank Hunter, moderator, on Modern Views of Society and Man.

Monday's Guest Star is to be Dinah Shore, with Gerry Pearce interviewing Qais al Hadi of Baghdad, now a student at the University. Albury Castell, head of the department of philosophy, will tell of "Italy, Mother of Three Civilizations," on his Window in the Ivory Tower series.

Surprise Package, the most unorganized comedy offered by KWAX, will star Al Barzman, Gerry Pearce, Ann Moyes and Jim Blue next Tuesday. Ways of Mankind, also on Tuesday, offers the "Case of the Sea-Lion Flippers," a true story of the Yurok Indians in the regular series on ethics.
