Dance Instructor Illustrates Talk On 'Movement'

'Emotion Expressed By the Way We Move'

"Movement is involved in all aspects of what we do," stated Betty Meredith-Jones, dance instructor at the University of California during her SU lecture Monday.

Speaking on "Movement and Dance in the Arts," Miss Meredith-Jones added, "We show a tremendous lot about ourselves in the way we move."

Miss Meredith-Jones illustrated phases of emotional expression through movement. She commented, "The strongest influence on movement is emotion."

Children Uninhibited

Children are uninhibited in their early years and it is after other patterns of action have been super-imposed on them that stylized movement results, according to the dancer.

"The time has come," stated Miss Meredith-Jones, "to find this common denominator of movement among people, which will lead to greater understanding. We must understand where movement begins—from the inside."

Elaborating upon the relationship of movement to many fields, Miss Meredith-Jones said that the artist must think in terms of movement and here, as an example, movement approaches the arts.

Three Factors

The speaker listed three factors which must be considered in movement: creating tension, or the amount of weight or strength in the movement; speed of movement, and terms of space, or the area of movement.

"These three factors are the visible ones," she added. "All movements are combinations of them in varying degrees."

In the basic scale of movement, the dancer explained, there is an "alphabetical" language with

HOWARD LEMONS

Who Runs the UO?

Howard Lemons, athletics business manager, has been at Oregon in his present post since he graduated in 1948 from the University with a bachelor of science in economics.

Lemons will leave the UO at the end of this academic year. He is resigning after five years as athletic business manager.

The athletic business office is responsible for all ticket sales, game management and the accounting and budget control of the athletic office. There are two staff members in Lemons' office.

The appointment of Lemons as business manager was made when Anse Cornell resigned to go into business for himself. Lemons took office in April of 1948.

During his first year as keeper of the Webfoots' purse strings, the athletic business manager watched the Oregon team play to some of the largest crowds in history—against Michigan in Ann Arbor and against Southern Methodist in Dallas.

Weatherman Says More Frost Due

Sun may have been shining the past couple of afternoons, making it appear to be spring, but a brief investigation of the temperature shows it's far from it—at least for a while.

More of Monday's frost and fog is predicted for this morning. The mercury registered 29 degrees in Eugene Monday morning. The fog was general over the Willamette valley.

High today will be 53 degrees, the low will be 28 degrees. Morning fog is to be replaced by some cloudiness in the afternoon.

Taft Informs Radio Audience He Supports China Blockade

(P) — Senate majority leader Robert Taft of Ohio said Monday that he will back the Eisenhower administration in any move it makes in the Far East.

Taft, during a radio broadcast, said he had no official information that a blockade of Red China is planned, but stated that he would support such a naval action.

After a conference with President Eisenhower earlier Monday, Taft said that the administration apparently is not considering a frontal attack in Korea. He added, "there are other ways of prodding the reds toward peace."

The Ohio senator commented that he personally favors the "MacArthur plan" of bombing red bases in Manchuria and using Chinese Nationalist troops.

Meanwhile the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, General Omar Bradley, is reported to have said he believes ships bound for Red China could be stopped and forced to unload contraband material without touching off a war.

Speaking to the senate armed services committee, Bradley made his comment when asked what might happen if a ship from Finland now reported headed for China with jet fuel from Romania were bombed.

The General stated "Such a move would be regarded as an act of war." But, he added, the Chinese Nationalists recently halted a British freighter and forced it to sail into a Nationalist port where a cargo of steel intended for Red China was unloaded. No official protest was made against the action.

In England, the foreign office has come out flatly against a Red China blockade. A spokesman said that the British feel such a move would be "dangerous, ineffective, politically unwise and possibly more harmful to the western allies than to the Chinese Communists."

Despite such expressions of alarm by England and France, congressional sentiment in favor of the blockade appears to be building up.

Oregon Convicts Riot at Salem

A riot broke out at the Oregon State prison Monday night when rebellious convicts grabbed four guards as hostages.

Guards armed with tear gas are trying to quell the riot, so far confined to the isolation section,

Five Hostages Held

At press time, five guards were still being held hostage by the rioting convicts and Warden O'Malley was still talking to the prisoners. Fifty guards, equipped with rifles and tear gas guns, had the cell block surrounded.

where 30 of the prison's most troublesome convicts are held.

The day guard crew had been called back to the prison late Monday night, but at that time no calls for state police reinforcements had been made.

Guards did not know or would not say what touched off the trouble.

Deputy Warden Lawrence O'Brien and Guard Captain Roy Herder were inside the prison assisting Warden Virgil O'Malley direct the attempt to free the hostages. A guard said it is unusual for all three of the prison's top officials to be inside the walls during a disturbance.

What Do You Think . . . of Student Government?

Gail West, freshman in business, said:

"One of the biggest improvements that could be made would be to change the preferential system of voting. I think this system is undemocratic because too many good candidates lost out."
