

'Discount' Fires Liquor Question

(AP)—The house alcohol committee of the Oregon legislature decided late Monday to introduce its own liquor by the drink bill. The proposed bill would keep so-called bottle clubs and the master-locker system, but forbid any discount on purchases by dispensers.

The discount feature has been a major point of disagreement in public hearings on liquor by the drink legislation. The state liquor commission has opposed the proposal to grant a 15 per cent discount on bulk purchases. It contends this would result in the state's losing at least a half million dollars a year.

Night club operators argue that the state would more than make up the loss in increased license fees, inventory taxes and increased sales through tourist trade.

The bill may reach the house floor next Monday.

Kappa Sigs Halt SAE Five

Kappa Sigma's "A" intramural basketball quint, lacking nothing in aggression and little in field goal and toss shooting, fought off a desperate Sigma Alpha Epsilon rally winning 29-25 to jump into solitary ownership of first place in League 1-A.

With one game remaining in cellar-dwelling TKE, the Kappa Sigs shouldn't have any trouble finishing the regular season with an unblemished record.

The winners displayed their best offense of the season and also had one of their better afternoons at defense in toppling the also previously-undefeated SAE's.

Bassett Stars

No one man stood out for Kappa Sigma, although Bill Bassett led all scorers with 12 points. Giving Bassett all the support he needed were lanky Jack Murray, Doug Talbot, Dick Dougherty, Tom Novikoff and Ken Sweitzer.

The losers were not to be underrated, however, as they put up a battle that would be a credit to any title contender. Smooth working Rex Davis, ex-Milwaukie high casaba artist, turned in a top notch performance that was overshadowed by none except Bassett.

The battle started off tight and stayed that way through the game. Dougherty sank a free throw to give the winning five a short 1-0 lead. After this the score was tied at 2 and 4 all.

As the second period opened, SAE guard Pat Dignan drove in for a lay-in to give the losers their last lead. His bucket was immediately counter-balanced by Dougherty with a tip-in. After the count was again tied at 8-8, Tom Novikoff connected on a long set shot to put the winners out ahead for sure.

Bassett widened the gap to four points, 12-8, with a two handed overhead set shot as the third frame started. Two minutes later, Kappa Sigma was pulling away on the long end of a 17-10 score.

At the finish of the period the tally was upped to 19-14.

SAE's Rally

Bob Carlson suddenly came to life for SAE when his mates were six points behind, and with the assistance of cool-operating Davis, managed to narrow the margin to 22-20.

Dougherty came through with two free throws on Davis's foul and Novikoff added two more points to the Kappa Sig total, while SAE was retaliating with a hook and set shot on the part of Carlson.

Kappa Sigma settled down and sank three out of four gifts in the closing minutes to pull the victory out of the fire.

A prime factor in the Kappa Sig win was a phenomenal 11 out of 14 from the free throw line. SAE could only complete five of 13 for a feeble .385 from the charity line.

Delts Win Close One

Another close game was registered Monday afternoon as the Delts fought off a desperate rally on the part of the Pi Kappas to win, 15 to 14.

With the Delts ahead, 15 to 10, with less than two minutes left, the Pi Kappas put together two field goals to come within one point of tying up the game.

Phi Kappa Sigma's "B" squad came out victorious over Philadelphia House in the other contest. The final score was 23-13. The winners led at halftime, 14-3.

Jim Marshall was high scorer for the day, racking up 18 points.

Washington Huskies Claim Hold on Hoop Title

NEW YORK (AP)—On Monday, March 9, the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament will get underway. Between now and then the rivals for the various sectional crowns will have plenty of work. Washington doesn't have much to worry about. The Huskies are one of the few teams in the nation with a stranglehold on a title. The Huskies have won 10 in a row and have 6 to go in the Pacific Coast Conference northern division. The teams in the southern division embark this weekend on another go-round with 6 conference games for each remaining. California holds first place by two games, with defending champion UCLA tied with Southern California in the runner-up spot.

The outcome of this weekend's California-UCLA series at Berkeley won't be decisive but could indicate whether the Bruins' four years of domination of the division is over. Last-place Stanford tilts with Southern California at Los Angeles.

In other sections, conference leadership and NCAA tourney bids are far from settled. Oklahoma, the leader in the Big Seven, has played only four conference tests and has eight left to play. Indiana is only half-way through its Big 10 schedule with a record of nine straight victories. LSU is the leader in the Southeastern Conference with a record of seven straight victories. Yet, the Bengals have five more conference engagements.

Duck Tracks

By Sam Vahey

Things look pretty bleak for Oregon and the rest of the Northern division teams under Washington in the ND standings as far as overhauling the Huskies is concerned; but there is plenty of interest and competition concerning the three way race for second.

Getting back to the undefeated Washington quint, we see little or no hope for anyone replacing the leaders as Northern division champ. Only two quints, Oregon and Oregon State hold a mathematical chance of winning. In OSC's case, there is only hope for a tie and then a victory in the ensuing playoff.

The Seattle five currently possesses a 10-win and no-loss slate. Oregon, in the second spot, is riding on six wins and four defeats; and the Aggies, although in fourth spot, are still eligible with a 4 and 6 record. A U of W win or an OSC loss would eliminate the Beavers. Any assortment of three Oregon losses or a like number of Washington wins would drop the Ducks. Both situations are highly improbable.

But getting back to the second place—that's where the real race lies. It would be a logical speculation to state that the three teams involved, Oregon, Idaho and OSC, might go right down to the last game before the runner-up spot is decided.

Oregon, although it is two games ahead of its nearest rival, could suffer considerably in its forth coming schedule which puts the locals on the road for five out of their last six games. We can get a good idea of what a prolonged journey away from home can do to a good club by looking at Idaho, who just finished a disastrous invasion of the Willamette Valley.

Idaho has only four tilts left and the Vandals must win all of these to remain in the midst of the scramble. Oregon State, likewise, must play an efficient brand of ball if the Corvallis crew is to stay among the contenders. Add two more losses to the six which OSC now has, and you'll find a team with an even .500 percentage at the end of the season.

Win Streak Broken

One of the longest winning streaks in Oregon State College basketball came to an end Friday at McArthur court when the Beaver Rooks dropped their first contest in 26 tries to a determined flock of Oregon Ducklings, 66 to 62. The strategy for the winners during the game seemed to be "Never mind Halbrook, stop the rest of the team."

This is evidenced by the fact that behind Wade Holbrook's 30 points, the next highest OSC individual score was nine.

The winners, nevertheless, did put an effective cork in the Halbrook scoring funnel, especially in the first period. Max Anderson, stalwart frosh center turned in a masterful performance in holding down the high scoring Swede and collecting 28 points himself over the guard of an opponent almost half a foot taller than himself.

A record which probably never got in the books was registered in the Friday night Oregon-Idaho encounter. Oregon and Idaho each took 84 shots at the hemp, giving a game total of 168. The previous mark was 161. However, this total was far overshoot the next night when a 191 figure went down.

An analysis of the 191 shots attempted record shows that approximately five cracks were taken at the hemp every minute.
