

Webfoots Meet Washington Tonight

BIG GAME

Halting 'Hooks' Main Problem Of Oregon Five

By Sam Vahey

"Stopping Bob Houbregs" will be the problem confronting the University of Oregon Ducks tonight when they take on the first place Washington Huskies in the first of two basketball conflicts in spacious Edmundson Pavilion in Seattle.

Oregon must win both ends of the series, a highly difficult operation, in order to keep fading hopes alive for the division title. A Washington victory or an Oregon loss would sew up the championship for the Huskies.

The game will bring together the two highest point producing quintets in ND history. Both teams are sure to pass the record set by the same Huskies last year.

Also meeting will be the two highest individual scorers in ND records. Bob Houbregs, candidate for All-American honors, will be baffling Oregon's Chet Noe in the center spot. Both of these fellows are also currently dropping in baskets at a record shattering pace.

As far as finding weaknesses in Washington's starting offense and defense, Oregon will have a very tough time. But take the problem into the Husky bench and the Webfoots can discover quite a deficiency.

The only Washington sub of any renown is Eugene's own contribution to the ND champions, Dean Parsons. This hefty, 6' 7", 225-pound center has come a long way for the Huskies.

Last season he was the only frosh on the Washington varsity squad. This year he is the Huskies' "sixth first stringer." Next year he will probably have the job of trying to fill Bob Houbregs' shoes, which shouldn't be too hard for the Eugene boy who has size 17 feet.

Another record that statisticians might add to the list already amassed by Houbregs might be "most times high point man." Only four times has a teammate outscored "Mr. Hooks" this year.

Runner-up to Houbregs in the high point honors are Mike McCutchen and Joe Cipriano. Each has captured second place laurels nine times.

Probable starters for Oregon will be Ed Halberg and Kieth Farnam, forwards; Noe, center; and Barney Holland and Ken Wegner, guards.

For the Huskies, the first team will be McCutchen and Doug McClary, forwards; Houbregs, center; and Charlie Koon and Cipriano, guards.

The games will be broadcast locally over radio station KERK, starting at 8 p.m.

Houbregs Controls Division Statistics

Los Angeles, Feb. 19—Washington Center Bob Houbregs is making a shambles of Northern Division scoring records with his deadly hook shot, but three other "big men" are giving him a stiff battle for top honors around the backboards, statistics showed today.

Houbregs has averaged 28.1 points a game to lead his nearest rival by 121 points, according to figures from the Pacific Coast Conference Commissioner's office. But in the wide-open battle for rebounds, he's no better than third at the moment. Leading the pack is Oregon Center Chet Noe with an average of 14.2 a game, followed by Idaho's Dwight Morrison with 13.2. Houbregs, 12.2, and Doug McClary, also of Washington, 12.1.

Noe Second

Noe is second to Houbregs in scoring with 18 points a game with Idaho's Hartly Kruger third at 17.5. Both appear likely to top the old Division scoring record of 268 points which Houbregs already has shattered.

Houbregs' shooting is both rapid and accurate, the statistics show. He's fired 223 times in 12 Northern Division games and has connected on 127 for a classy 56.9 per cent average. Next in line are Bob Edwards, Oregon State, 50 per cent, and Ed Halberg, Oregon, 44.1 per cent.

Best Free Throws

The Huskies' Charlie Koon has the best mark from the free throw line with 21 of 22 for 95.5 per cent and he's followed by Tom Flynn, Idaho, 86.4 per cent, and Joe Cipriano, Washington, 83.3 per cent.

Washington, which has won 12 straight Division games, leads in every department, except one, as a team. The Huskies are shooting 39.4 per cent from the floor and 72 per cent from the charity line; have scored the most points, 73.8 a game; have committed the fewest fouls, 17.8, and have allowed the fewest points, 56.2. Oregon leads in rebounds with 47.3 a game to 46.8 for Washington.

Portland Group Seeks Pavilion

A civic group asked the Portland city council today for a 2-year lease on city-owned property north of Portland in order to build a two and a half-million dollar pavilion, for sports events, conventions and other activities. This is the latest development in the recent speed-up of action toward building the badly-needed sports center.

A recently organized, non-profit group known as Civico, Incorporated, asked for the lease of 60 acres near Portland Meadows race track. The group hopes to raise enough money through donations and through sale of non-interest bearing certificates.
