

Webfoots Meet OSC As ND Season Ends

With just one week of competition left in Northern Division Basketball play, Oregon's fast-basketball hoops have all but clinched the runnerup spot to Washington's champion Huskies. All that is needed for the Webfoots to nail down the second spot is one triumph over Oregon State this weekend or a single triumph by the Huskies over Idaho's Vandals in Moscow.

Tuesday afternoon Bill Borchers' crew hustled through a practice session which stressed offensive maneuvers. The Ducks ran their scoring machine against a frosh team which used both the man-to-man and zone defenses. Borchers hopes to have his offense, which was unable to match Washington's last weekend, primed for a double win over the Beavers in the final conference contests of the season for both clubs.

Sweep Would Clinch

A sweep of the series would give the Webfoots second place in the Northern Division standings, a leg on permanent possession of the newly introduced Chancellor's Trophy, and their fourteenth series win over the Corvallis ball club.

Five Men Assured Of Bowling Spots

Five men are assured of positions on the University of Oregon's Northwest competition bowling team, according to Louis Belhamo. There are five others, however, who are bunched together for the sixth spot on the squad.

The top five qualifiers are Norm Roecker, Don Hannu, Leo Naapi, Jim Ekstrom and George Troeh.

This year's Webfoot aggregation is the highest scoring ball club in the history of the school. Up through last weekend the Ducks have averaged 72.2 points per game in conference competition.

Chet Noe, second in Northern Division scoring only to Bob Houbregs, has already broken the individual Oregon scoring record and needs only six points to pass the total of 265 set by Washington's Jack Nichols and become the second highest scorer in league history. Kenny Wegner, although suffering a slump at Washington, still holds down the fourth spot in conference scoring with a 13.8 average.

Frosh vs. Rooks

Friday night the Oregon Frosh will meet the Oregon State Rooks for the final time this season. The Rooks, paced by towering Swede Halbros, have won three out of the first four contests, but the Frosh, who collected a triumph in the last outing, seem determined to upset the Rook apple cart.

Don Kirsch, Frosh coach, will probably go along with his opening lineup which sparked the win over the Oregon Staters in the last contest. The two "jumping jacks" John Foster and Kent Dorwin, who have been demons on rebounding all season, should open at the forward slots.

Max Anderson, who leads the Frosh club in scoring and countered 28 times against Halbros in the last game, would be the center, and running out the starting five, two speedsters at the guard positions, Dick James and John Keller.

Friday night the Webfoots invade Gill Coliseum in Corvallis for the first game of the weekend series, while Saturday the scene of the battle will be McArthur Court in Eugene.

French Gains Finals

The high flying French Hall five entered the finals in the intramural basketball playoffs Tuesday by downing the Alpha Tau Omega five 58-46.

Led by Loyd Lewis, games high scorer, the French five opened the scoring never to be headed, although the score was knotted twice. French commanded a 16-14 first quarter lead and enlarged its margin to lead 32-24 at the half time. During the second quarter, however, the ATO five led by George Shaw tied the score at 21-21. Fast scoring by Ray Bell, Loyd Lewis, and Jerry Ross pushed the French team out in front.

High scorer for the French team was Loyd Lewis with nineteen counters. He was followed by Jerry Ross with eleven and Ray Bell with nine. Leading the ATO scoring column was George Shaw with ten counters. He was followed by Ken Torgerson with five and Ron Lowell also with nine.
