

Duck Hoop Stars Shine In Tourney

In the recent AAU basketball tournament at Denver, two Oregon students—Chet Noe and Doug Talbot—received recognition for their performance with the Everybody's Drug team from Eugene. Noe, 6'7" Oregon hoopster who was a unanimous all-Northern division choice at forward, was voted a center position on the AAU tournament team, and Talbot, who formerly lettered at Gonzaga and is now attending Oregon, was named the tourney's most promising young player.

Probably the best game played by the Eugene team was the thrilling 66-52 upset triumph over the favored Phillips Oilers. Noe, faking last year's top collegiate scorer Clyde Lovellette out of his shoes, canned 28 points on nine field goals and 10 free throws. Talbot played a stellar floor game and scored 14 points.

Noe also received national recognition when he was picked as one of the ten players on the West All-Star team which lost to the East All-Stars in a game at Madison Square Garden. Noe collected three points in the fray.

Before meeting the Oilers, who had won the National Industrial Basketball league title and were favored to cop the tournament, the Everybody's team polished off Indianapolis, 68-62 with Noe leading the attack with 17 counters. Following up their Phillips Oilers encounter, the ex-Oregon stars rolled to a 72-50 win over Carbondale, Ill., as Talbot hit lay-ups and jump shots for 20 points and played another bang-up floor game.

In their fourth contest the Everybody's team lost out to the strong Los Alamitos, Cal., Naval Air station, 56-49, as Noe was confined to the hospital with a 102-degree temperature.

Together with a number of ex-Oregon players and OSC Forward Jim Sugrue, Noe and Talbot led the Everybody's team to three consecutive wins in the 32-team event.

Net Coach Optimistic As Courtmen Practice

With organized tennis practice under way Coach Captain Laurence has been running his charges through unlimbering exercises for the past two weeks. He stated that most of the players have been practicing every sunny afternoon in the courts.

According to Laurence, fundamentals will be stressed during the first part of April after which "ladder play" will be used to help determine who shall play on the team.

Laurence said he expected a "pretty good" team this year due to the large number of turnouts as compared with previous seasons.

Laurence would make no prediction as to where his squad would finish in the Northern Division race, although he commented that the Washington Huskies would probably be the team to beat.

Heading the list of varsity prospects are Neil George, Don Neraas and Don Lowell; three of last year's returning lettermen. Other members competing for positions on the squad include Bob Baker, Chuck Greenly, Bob Hamilton, Ed Jamieson, Dave Lenz and Dick Weldon.
