

$101,222 WORTH Scholarships Available For Worthy Students

By Len Calvert
Emerald Reporter

The University of Oregon in cooperation with the State Board of Higher Education and several agencies outside the University annually awards about $10,222 in scholarships each year to outstanding students in the state.

According to figures just released by the committee on scholarships are given to students each year based on grades and need.

The committee, with Karl Onthank acting as chairman, deals with four types of scholarships—competitive scholarships, non-competitive scholarships, grants-in-aid to athletes and scholarships offered by agencies outside the University. The committee also administers such honor awards as the Koyl and Gerlinger cups awarded annually to the outstanding junior men and women respectively.

Performance Record

The competitive scholarships are awarded on the basis of performance record, rated ability (test scores), personality qualities and need. A comprehensive application form is supplemented by confidential reports from references and, whenever possible, especially for major scholarships, by personal interview.

Non-competitive scholarships are awarded in accordance with statute to residents of Alaska and Hawaii, to foreign students and to orphans of Oregon war veterans. Recipients are required by the committee to do "acceptable" work and to have need. According to the report, every term a few students are dropped for failing to meet these requirements.

Many athletes attend school under the program of grants-in-aid which are made possible by funds raised by the department of intercollegiate athletics.

Educational Aids

These grants-in-aid are not considered as scholarships by the committee, but as educational aids. In the report the committee pointed out that without such aid many athletes would be unable to continue their education because of the limitation placed on possible part-time work by their participation in sports.

A considerable number of scholarships are given by individuals, business concerns, service clubs and lodges to students. Administered by the committee, it also cooperates in every possible way toward furthering and developing more such scholarships. Examples of these scholarships are the four $500 scholarships given each year by the Standard Oil Company of California, the $150 Zonta scholarship, and the Hazel P. Schwering Memorial scholarship of $300.

Good Student

The committee points with considerable pride in the report to the scholarship records compiled by students receiving financial aid. The report reveals that five of this year's Phi Beta Kappa Senior Six came to the University on scholarships. The report also gives the result of an examination of scholastic records which shows all students who held scholarships of $100 or more made the GPA's of 3 points or better.

The committee on scholarships and financial aid consists of Onthank, George Boughton, associate professor of violin; N. H. Comish, professor of business administration; Ray Hawk, director of men's affairs; A. C. Hearn, associate professor of education; Lyle Nelson, director of public services; E. C. Robbins, instructor in economics; Glenn Starlin, assistant professor of speech, and Mrs. Golda P. Wickham, director of women's affairs.

Owners of Jumbo Bar B Q Sell Out After Five Years Friendly Business

By Abbott Paine
Emerald Reporter

Serving delicious hamburgers, milkshakes and five-cent coffee to hungry students was just a small part of Rose and Harry Krebs' life.

Five years of friendly association with hundreds of students, many faculty members and local campus merchants ended March 9 with the sale of the Jumbo Bar B Q, widely-known hamburger spot at 873 E. 13th, between the University Cleaners and Bill Baker's Men's Wear.

The new owner is T. H. Parks, 1641 Hilyard.

Varied Businesses

Mr. and Mrs. Krebs have ended a phase in their varied lives which has included owning a grocery store, a freight line, a dairy, working for feed and lumber companies, and delivering mail. They have bought a small diner at Canby and plan to move north in about a month.

The Jumbo Bar B Q, an unimposing frame structure, has sometimes been crowded with as many as 45 people and has seen much friendly hospitality.

"We're going to miss the kids and they'll miss us," Mrs. Krebs said, recounting some of their experiences. "Some students call this place their second home."

"We also had many instructors come in regularly," Krebs said. "... and also those ROTC instructors and the campus cops," Mrs. Krebs added, smiling.

1500 Hamburgers

"During the first Homecoming weekend we were here, we served 1,500 hamburgers in about 18 hours," Krebs said. "When those GI's were here several years ago, I had counted as many as 45 heads in there," he said.

The Krebs live at 875 E. 13th, behind the Bar B Q. They had a buzzer and inter-com system arranged so they could be called when business got rushed.

"The campus merchants all come in..." Krebs said. "Those barbers were in our place about as much as they were in their barber shop," he chuckled.

"After an Oregon-OSC football game three years ago, two fellows, one from OSC and one from here, got in an argument while they were eating and went outside and had a fight," Mrs. Krebs related.

Family Affair

Three of their six children have worked at the Bar B Q at one time or another, Krebs said. Their daughter, Charlotte, a sophomore at University high, helps out at night, and Archie, a seventh-grade student, fills in whenever he's needed.

"Our daughter, Eleanor, several years ago, once threw a milkshake at a fellow who had been teasing her," Mrs. Krebs related. "... But she cleaned it up and made him a new milkshake."

Krebs pointed out that an older son had developed the popular barbecue sauce used at the diner. "At one time, when there were more students here, we used 12 gallons of sauce a week."

Home for Alums

Alumni occasionally have come back to greet them and have another hamburger. "The other day, one from Longview, Wash., stopped in and said we ought to put in a place in San Francisco, near where he works," Mrs. Krebs said.

"It's pretty hard to say what we will miss the most," Krebs said. "Just the general atmosphere, I guess... fellows playing the pinball machines, yipping and yelling."

Customers Now

"It sure seemed funny to sit on the other side of the counter Monday morning, after we had sold out," Mrs. Krebs related. "The military instructors were there and bought me coffee," she chuckled. "The next morning I went in and had to buy all them coffee."

"Well, we sure will miss everyone and we want to thank them all for their good business," he said. They discussed what should be the name of their new diner, which will be located in Canby on the east side of highway 99.

"I think we will call it Harry and Rose's diner," Mrs. Krebs said.

Women's Magazine Schedules Contest

Women undergraduates may again enter manuscripts between 3000 and 5000 words in the annual college fiction contest sponsored by "Mademoiselle," women's fashion magazine.

Two winners in the contest will receive prizes of $500. Judges will be Mademoiselle editors and the typewritten manuscripts are due April 15, 1953.

Each contestant may enter as many manuscripts as she wishes. Stories that have appeared in undergraduate college publications are acceptable if they have not been published elsewhere.

Entries should be submitted to College Fiction Contest, Mademoiselle, 575 Madison Ave., New York, 22, New York.

Book by Thurber Subject of Dance Group Concert

A dance based on James Thurber's book "The Last Flower" will highlight a Studio Concert which will be given Wednesday by the concert dance group.

According to Bettie Jane Owen, instructor in physical education, Thurber has given his permission to the group to use the title and excerpts from the book in the dance. The dance portrays the fall of civilization through war, its simple rise from the realization of beauty and love to war again.

No Charge

The concert, which will begin at 8 p.m., will be given in the dance room and main gymnasium of Gerlinger hall. There will be no admission charge to the event which is under the direction of Miss Owen. Mrs. Rachel Reilly will accompany the dancers.

The concert will climax a series of lecture demonstrations which have been given by the group during the year.

Cows, Trio and Mourners

Other dances which will be included in the program are "Cow Punchers," choreographed by Monnie Gutchow, which is based on American folk songs and which will be danced by the entire group; "Trio," choreographed by Miss Owen, which will be danced by her, Fred Susanville and Emery Hermans, and "The Mourners," choreographed by Nancy Morse, which will be danced by the entire group.

Other members of the concert dance group who will appear in the program are Virginia Bingham, Gloria Lee, Judy Ellefson, Beverly Kreick, Audrey Mistretta, Bob McClain and Shirley Boner.

Million-Dollar Exhibit Will Open in Portland

Sidney W. Little, dean of the architecture and allied arts school, will be the official University representative at the Portland opening of the million-dollar art exhibit recently shown on campus.

The exhibit will open Friday in Portland. It was brought to the campus recently as part of the Festival of Contemporary Arts. The show contains original art by leading contemporary artists.

Civil Rights Essay Contest Announced

Essays on the topic "Civil Rights as a Principle of Free Government" must be submitted to E. G. Robbins, instructor in economics, by April 13.

The two best essays in competition for the Philo Sherman Bennett prize will be picked and prizes of $50 each will be awarded to a graduate and undergraduate student, respectively.

Members of the Bennett prize committee who will make the selections are Glenn Starlin, assistant professor of speech; Howard Dean, assistant professor of political science, and R. W. Smith, assistant professor of history.

University of Washington's basketball coach, Tippy Dye, has won 79 games and lost only 15 in his three years at the West Coast institution. Dye's record there also shows three straight Northern Division championships.

Only two basketball teams have won 15 Northern Division games since the league started its 16-game schedule in 1931—the 1944 Washington Huskies and the 1953 Huskies, coached by Tippy Dye.

University of Washington's tennis teams have lost only one Northern Division championship since league competition began in 1934. Oregon State won the title in 1937 to break the Husky string.

Service Announces Psychology Tests

Tests for psychologists to qualify for specialized fields of physiological and experimental psychology and personnel measurement and evaluation have been announced by the United States civil service commission.

The entrance salaries are $4,205 and $5,060. A written test will be given, and appropriate education or experience, or both, is required. There is no maximum age limit.

The various positions will be located throughout the U. S. and in various federal agencies in Washington, D. C.

Further information and application forms may be obtained from the postal savings window located at the post office downtown, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C.

Speakers Selected For Air Conference

Joseph P. Adams of the civil aeronautics board of Washington, D. C., will be a featured speaker at the first Northwest Airport Management conference, to be held on campus April 20 through 22.

Gov. Paul Patterson is also included among the speakers on the program.

The meetings, under the sponsorship of the Oregon State Board of Aeronautics and the University of Oregon, are planned for public officials and private operators to discuss mutual problems.

Included among the cooperating agencies is the League of Oregon Cities. Representatives from 16 Oregon cities are expected at the meetings.
