

Air Force ROTC Unit Reviewed by Officers

Six hundred of Oregon's apprentice birdmen spent an hour on the ground Tuesday afternoon as the local Air Force ROTC unit passed in review before a team of inspecting officers from the Air university in Montgomery, Ala.

Taking the salute from the reserve cadets were Col. John A. Cosgrove, chief of the inspecting party; Col. Emory L. Bruns, head of Oregon's military department; Major D. L. Hartley and Dean of Administration W. C. Jones.

The visiting officers are conducting the annual examination of Air ROTC installations in the Pacific Northwest. According to Col. Cosgrove, they gave "highest possible rating" to Oregon's unit.

The examination took in the training and administrative activities of the unit as well as the students' ability on the drill field. The inspecting team spent Monday and Tuesday sitting in on classroom lectures, interviewing students and studying other phases of ROTC operations here.

Yesterday's review was ushered in by a brief shower, but the weather cleared soon after the student squadrons massed on the ROTC drill field. Preceding the reviewing ceremony were an inspection of the cadets and marching exhibitions by the band and drill team. Col. Cosgrove made a formal inspection of the drill team after the review.

Accident Victims In Good Condition

Nancy Garrison, junior in education, is reported to be in "good" condition in Sacred Heart hospital following an auto accident at 13th and Chambers Monday night.

Miss Garrison, a passenger in a car driven by Margaret Doherty, junior in history, suffered a broken pelvis and shock. Miss Doherty was reported to have received facial cuts and bruises.

According to the police accident report Miss Doherty's 1952 Studebaker collided with a logging truck driven by Wilbur Nichols, Eugene, at the intersection resulting in total damage to the car.

Industrialist to Speak At Institute Banquet

Oregon alumni will hear a talk by woman industrialist Vivien Kellems in the fifth annual alumni institute banquet Saturday in the Multnomah hotel in Portland.

Miss Kellems, an Oregon alumna, is head of a large industrial firm in Connecticut. She is nationally known for her opposition to the Federal withholding tax and was selected one of the ten top women of the year for 1952 by the Associated Press.

The alumni institute program will begin at 2 p.m. with a talk by James H. Gilbert, emeritus professor of economics, who will discuss America's economic situation.

Roy C. McCall, head of the speech department, will describe recent developments in speech education.

In a talk on "The Universe in Time and Space," Edwin G. Ebbighausen, associate professor of physics, will discuss modern scientific discoveries.

The alumni will hear of recent accomplishments at Oregon from Dean of Administration William C. Jones, who will tell how "Your University Is Going to Town."

Gov. and Mrs. Paul Patterson both Oregon graduates, will be guests of honor at the evening banquet, which will conclude this year's institute program. The banquet will begin at 6:30.
