The University Singers and Madrigal Singers, recently returned from a week's tour of central, eastern and southern Oregon, will present their annual home concert Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Student Union ballroom.

The 60-voice University Singers, made up of students from several different schools and departments on the campus, has appeared in practically all sections of the state and has been featured on a nationwide broadcast of the Liberty Broadcasting company. This year's trip, taking all of spring vacation, was the group's seventh annual tour.

Madrigal Singers is a 12-voice ensemble specializing in madrigals, popular songs of the 17th century. Following original custom, they sing sitting around a table.

Both of the mixed choral groups are directed by Donald W. Allton, assistant professor of music. Assistant directors are Cliff Matousek and Clarence Dial, graduate students in music, and accompanist is Joyce Sinner, junior.

Special attraction on Sunday's program will be a section of selections from "Brigadoon," forthcoming musical production at the University theater. Also appearing will be marimba soloist Wayne Mercer, who traveled with the groups on tour.
