

Campus Vodvil Opens Duck Preview Events

Only two weeks remain before Duck Preview, the annual event to entertain high school seniors, will be held on the Oregon campus. The weekend is scheduled for April 24 and 25. Sunny Allen and Bob Summers, Duck Preview general co-chairmen, have been working with their committee heads on the plans for the weekend since last term.

Meeting Notices For Jr. Weekend

Several meeting notices and calls for workers were announced Wednesday night by the Junior Weekend chairmen.

The promotion committee will meet at 4 p.m. today at Pi Beta Phi. Chairman Carol Lee Tate has appointed the following as sub-chairmen: posters Shirley Soble; all-campus sing, Nancy Reine; queen's contest and Sunlight Serenade, June Browning; terrace dance and traditions, Allison Le Roux; luncheon and float parade, Bev Braden; distribution, Bob Glass; prom, Janet Woods. Workers for the committee are still needed, Miss Tate said, and urged interested people to contact these sub-chairmen.

Junior Prom committee chairmen will meet at 4 p.m. today in the Student Union. The float parade committee will meet at 4 in the SU today also. The all-campus clean-up committee is to meet at Pi Beta Phi at 4:30 p.m. today. Workers for the all-campus committee are still needed, Chairman Cathy Tribe announced. Those wishing to help on that committee should contact her as soon as possible.

First event of the weekend is the All-Campus to be held Friday evening April 24. Informal parties at various living organizations will follow the show which has for its theme "Let's Do It Again."

Events planned for Saturday, April 25, include an orientation assembly, tours and exhibits on the campus in the morning and a baseball game between Oregon and the University of Washington in the afternoon. Exchange dinners will be held in the living organizations that evening.

Thacher Recalls Lost Generation

The period which these writers entered was one of opportunity, the speaker said. Writers were in great demand and "everybody was doing it." But the qualities of good writing were not forgotten. "Of the many who desperately wanted to write, Thacher said, "very few were chosen."

Architecture Topic For Fuller Lecture

"Architectural Search," which will deal with the ways in which men are seeking new means to enclose more space for human needs, will be discussed tonight at 8 p.m. by R. Buckminster Fuller, visiting lecturer in the school of architecture.

Fuller, who is the inventor of Dymaxion architecture, will speak in Science 123.

While on campus, Fuller is constructing a geodesic dome as a research project in spherical trussing and the use of low-grade lumber. He is being assisted by 40 students in the project which will also utilize a new plastic material called mylar, which is being used for the first time in the project.

Creative Arts Date Is May 15

The date for the annual presentation of the Campus Creative Arts Workshop program has been set for May 15, according to general chairman Valerie Cowsli.

To be held in the Student Union, the program will feature readings of poetry and short stories, presentation of music, dance, art, drama and all types of original creative work produced by students on campus.

Those who would like to submit work for use on the program are now welcomed to do so. Work may be turned in to Miss Cowsli or to SU Program Director Donna Buse in SU room 301 by May 1.

Final decisions will be based on faculty criticism. Further details may be obtained from the general chairman.

Banquet to Feature Ex-Warden

Library Contest Offers Awards

Students who collect books for a hobby will have a chance to add to their collections by entering the annual Library Day contest on May 9. Awards totaling $200 are offered in four categories for the best library.

Categories include undergraduate and graduate divisions and general or specialized libraries. First prize in each section is $25.00 in books, second prize $15, and third prize $10.00.

Entries must be submitted by 12 noon, Friday, May 8, to Bernice Rise in the Student Union browsing room. Prizes will be awarded May 16 at a banquet of the Association of Patrons and Friends of the University Library. Winners will select their books at the Co-op.

Judging is based on the selection of titles as they reflect the broadening interest of the collector, not on the total number of books or their monetary value. Eighty entries were received last year, in one of the largest contests in the country.

Tickets are now on sale at Taylor's Coffee Shop and Herman's Men's Store for the Young Democratic convention banquet which will feature ex-Warden Virgil O'Malley as the principal speaker.

Tickets are $3.00, and they will include the banquet which is slated for Saturday, 7 p.m., in the Colonnade room of the Eugene hotel, and a reception at the hotel on Friday night.

Any interested person is invited to attend, according to Charles Grover, president of the campus group who are hosts for the event.

O'Malley, who was ousted from his position as warden of the Oregon State prison, has been accused by the board of prison control of failure to maintain discipline among the convicts.

Activities for delegates and ticket holders will begin Friday night at 9 p.m. with registration and a reception. Committee reports, a report by State President Ed Riederbusch, election of new officers, and adoption of resolutions are included in the convention program for Saturday.

Why not catch up on your studies? It has been proven that hardly anyone studies spring term, so there isn't much competition.

Only 200 fans witnessed Babe Ruth's professional baseball debut in 1914 at Baltimore.

No United Drive Slated for Campus, Committee Says

By Joe Gardner
Emerald Assistant News Editor

There will be no united fund charity drive on the Oregon campus.

At the end of last term the ASUO senate unanimously accepted the report of the Campus Chest Policy committee as presented by John Talbot, chairman. The recommendation of the committee was to keep the present system of independent charity drives.

The committee had been making an evaluation study of campus chests—the name generally applied to single annual charity drives in colleges—since last fall term. According to the report, it was the first such evaluation made in the country.

In the course of their study the committee corresponded with charity agencies, the National Students association and several colleges which already have campus chests. Working with Talbot were senate members Joan Marie Miller and Bob Summers. H. T. Koplun, instructor in economics, served as faculty adviser.

The two main conclusions of the detailed nine-page report were: 1) There is no need for unifying charity drives on the campus, and; 2) Oregon's independent drives have been more successful than unified drives in other colleges.

At the present there are only three charity drives conducted at Oregon during the academic year: Community Chest, fall term; Red Cross, winter term, and World Student Service Fund, spring term. Solicitation for the March of Dimes is made at one basketball game during the year.

A strong recommendation was made in the report to keep WSSF separate from other drives. Separate consideration in the report was given to this phase of charity drives.

With an independent WSSF drive and only one March of Dimes solicitation, the committee noted that only two other charity drives were held on campus, the Community Chest and the Red Cross.

"From here," reads the report, "there is an alternative of combining these two remaining charity drives and adding several more worthy agencies, at the same time keeping WSSF separate" or continuing the three independent drives per year. It was the latter proposal which the senate accepted.

In evaluating the success of campus chests at other schools, Talbot's committee compared the results of such drives at five other Pacific coast colleges with the independent drives at Oregon for the year 1951-52. The figures are as follows:

Per student
Washington State college	53c
Oregon State College	52c
U. of Southern California	40c
University of Washington	30c
San Jose State college	15c
Collecting approximately	$400

each for Red Cross, March of Dimes and Community Chest, plus $1,900 for WSSF, Oregon had a total of $3,100 for the same year. The average per student was 77 cents or 24 cents more per student than the highest figure from the other schools.

The report further noted "that not all of the campus chest systems have proven successful." A case in point is the University of Southern California, whose campus chest collections fell from $10,100 three years ago to $4,500 last year. Lack of interest in the campus chest was blamed as the biggest reason for this decline.

Committee members stated in the report that "in the unification of the charities, a great deal of educational value was lost." Giving of time and energy to support voluntary agencies was cited as an educational value "as important, if not more so, than the actual collections."

Conclusion of the report was that "little, if anything would be gained by a campus chest and much might be lost." The committee urged that more emphasis be given to the three drives now on the campus rather than setting up a united fund or campus chest.
