New Building for J School Assured by State Senate Bill

Construction of a new Oregon journalism school became virtually certain Monday when the state senate passed House Bill 794 which included the $600,000 structure.

The bill must now be signed by Governor Paul Patterson. It passed the senate with only two dissenting votes.

Also included in the bill were a $2,200,000 University of Oregon dental school to be built in Portland, a $760,000 chemical engineering building at Oregon State college, and a $280,000 Crippled Children's building for the Oregon Medical school.

The journalism school will be named Eric Allen Hall, in honor of the school's first dean who died in 1944.

McClure hall will be torn down and the new building erected on its site. The present journalism building will be renovated. It was begun in 1922, but never finished. Lack of funds caused "temporary" wooden interior partitions to be erected. They still remain.

Next year while the new building is under construction the journalism school will find temporary quarters in the Quonset huts between Commonwealth and Deady halls. A few offices and classrooms in other buildings may be used.

An Eric Allen memorial room will be included in the new building. It will be a replica of Allen's living room, where he did a great deal of his teaching in informal sessions with his students.

The room will have a corner fireplace, easy chairs, davenports, floor lamps, and carpeting. It will be used for seminars, student group meetings, and informal discussions with visiting journalists.

Plans call for the school to include the University press (now located behind the Science building), a reading and newspaper room, a small auditorium, broadcasting booths, and state headquarters for the Oregon Newspaper Publishers association and the Oregon State Broadcasters association.

Teaching rooms will be equipped with modern facilities, including screen for movies and other audiovisual presentations.

The structure will have a brick exterior, while the front will be mostly glass, with wide strips of one-inch limestone veneer.

The new building will include classrooms, offices, and laboratories for copyediting, typography, advertising copywriting, news writing, and photography.

'Big-Name' Choice Released Monday

Jack Fina and his orchestra will be featured at the annual Junior Prom, May 8, according to an announcement made Monday by Tom Shepherd and Joan Marie Miller, Junior Weekend general co-chairmen.

The pianist-orchestra conductor has gained national recognition for his modern interpretation of classic music. Fina's playing of Tchaikowsky's "Piano Concerto in B Flat Minor" introduced "Tonight We Love" to the music public.

A recording artist for MGM and Mercury, Fina has appeared at such hotels as the St. Francis in San Francisco and the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. In addition, he has appeared in numerous movies and been featured on several radio programs.

Tickets for the Junior Prom will go on sale May 4 at $2.88 per couple, according to Judy McLoughlin and Ann Dielschneider, general chairmen for the prom.

Members of the Junior Prom committee are: Alpha Phi Omega, men's service honorary, cleanup; Milan Foster, intermission; Joe Gardner, publicity; Nancy Allen, chaperones; Virginia Means, tickets; Marianne Hankinson, programs; Tina Fisk and Neil Tardio, decorations; Janet Woods, promotion; Barbara Rubin, coronation; and Pat Gildea, general assistant.

MINOR MASTER

Visiting Nevada Writer To Interview Students

Visiting the campus this week during a tour of West Coast colleges is Walter Van Tilburg Clark, author of "The Ox-Bow Incident," and "Track of the Cat."

Today at 11 a.m. Clark will read manuscripts and interview students interested in writing. Wednesday evening at 7:30 he will lecture in the browsing room on "The Place, the Purpose and the Story." He will take part in a coffee hour in the Dads' lounge Thursday at 4 p.m.

The writer is on leave from the University of Nevada, visiting creative writing departments and classes at Stanford, Reed, University of Washington and the University of Oregon. His appearance here is sponsored by the English department.

As a new writer, Clark was first recognized after the appearance of his first novel, "The Ox-Bow Incident," in 1940. He was immediately saluted by reviewers and critics as a minor master for lifting the "western thriller" out of the blood and thunder category. His book was later filmed by Twentieth Century-Fox.

Since then, Clark has written numerous short stories, one of which won the O. Henry Short Story Award in 1945.

Students' Cars To Be Washed

Today students may get their cars washed at eight women's houses as part of the fund raising drive for the World Student Service Fund.

According to Bob Glass, co-chairman of promotion, women will wash cars from 2 to 5 p.m. at $1 per car. All proceeds will go to WSSF. A prize will be awarded the houses in the winning group. A WSSF representative will collect the money sometime after 5 p.m. today, Glass said.

Cars will be washed at Delta Delta Delta, Carson hall, University house, Gamma Phi Beta, Alpha Chi Omega, Delta Gamma, Alpha Omicron Pi and Chi Omega.

Gamma Phi's 'Did It Again'

"Let's Do It Again" may be the theme of the All-Campus Vodvil show, but the women of Gamma Phi Beta were disqualified for "doing it again."

The Gamma Phis chose "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue" as the theme of their skit—it was also their theme last year. After the eliminations Monday night, they were told by the judges they were disqualified because they "did it again."

GREEKS GO MODERN

'Gods' Cast Ready for Showing

GETTING READY to go on stage in the University Theater's current production of "Even the Gods" are, from left, Sandra Price, Alcestis; Gerald Smith, Apollo; Len Krichevsky, Eumelos, and Sally Mollner, Charissa. The play is based on an ancient Greek legend, but has been written with modern dialogue. The show will be presented Wednesday through Friday. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Oregon Defeats WSC To Maintain ND Lead

Oregon's Webfoots, behind the three hit pitching of sophomore Stan Dmochowsky, polished off Washington State, 3-1, and held onto their league lead in the Northern Division.

Duck hitting was anything but the power variety as six of the Oregon safeties were collected on three infield grounders, two Texas league flies, and a bad hop ground double past third base.

Buck Bailey, the Cougar's colorful coach, gave the crowd a show all afternoon with his comical antics, and the big attraction was in the bottom of the fifth inning.

The Cougar shortstop threw wide of first base on a grounder, and Coach Bailey was immediately out to have a talk with his infield. When Bailey returned to the bench a ball was thrown out and, with time still out, the shortstop made a few practice throws to first.

Oregon scoring was early in the game as the Ducks collected two counters in the first and a singleton in the third. One Webfoot run was earned, and Earl Averill was credited with the RBI.

With one down in the first, George Shaw hit a sharp ground ball to short, Cougar infielder Jim Williams made a nice stop, but was unable to catch the runner in time. Don Siegmund then followed with a pop fly which fell safely in left field. Shaw scored on a ground out to short by Earl Averill, and Siegmund countered as Ron Phillips was safe on an error.

Washington State collected their only run in the top half of the second. Williams walked with one out and Firstsacker Bob Burrows sent a line drive double down the left field foul line, Williams scoring all the way from first.

Dmochowsky was in trouble a couple of times in the early innings but good Webfoot fielding got him

Bradetich Leads For 'Ugly Man'

Joe Bradetich, nominated by Zeta Tau Alpha, was leading the field Monday in the race for Ugly Man on Campus with a total of $1.44 contributed by his supporters.

Tonight the ten finalists for the title will be selected by the amount of money that has been collected for each man. The contest is part of the World Student Service Fund campaign.

Second in the group is Jim Crittendon, nominated by Delta Delta Delta, with $1.36. Waldo, nominated by Carson 2, is one of the ten top contestants with 54 cents to his credit. The contest is being handled by Alpha Phi Omega, men's service honorary.
