

League Leading Ducks To Meet Huskies Today

This afternoon the University of Oregon meets Washington's Huskies in the first game of a two game baseball series in which the Webfoots will be out to protect their league leadership in the Northern Division.

Huskies Last

The Huskies, who last year tied for the league championship are now resting in the basement. A whole host of veterans are missing from the 1952 squad, and Coach Warren Tappin is in the process of rebuilding his ball club.

Leading the Husky batsmen is Sam Mitchell, who was an all coast choice last year in the catcher's slot. Bill Reams, a right-handed sophomore, pitched the Washington nine to a 6-0 triumph over Idaho last week, and is expected to get the starting assignment on the mound today.

Coach Don Kirsch's Webfoot nine has posted three consecutive wins in conference play, and has compiled a hefty .308 team batting average, while the pitching staff has held the opposition to a meager .200 mark.

Livesay Leads Hitters

Pacing the Ducks at the plate is Co-Captain Jim Livesay with a brilliant .615 percentage. Others batting .300 or better are George Shaw, Don Siegmund, and Jim Johnson. Siegmund also leads the runs-batted-in column with four in the three contests.

Stan Dmochowsky, who hurled a three hitter against Washington State, is scheduled to start the contest for the Ducks. Norm Forbes and Bill Blodgett have also been credited with conference wins.

Huskies To Host Webfoots In ND Dual Meet at Seattle

By Jim White
Emerald Sportswriter

The Webfoot cindermen left today for their second dual track meet of the season, with the University of Washington Huskies as their opponents. The meet, to be held at Seattle will see the Ducks gunning for their seventh straight Northern Division dual meet win.

An Oregon victory would strengthen the chances for a repeat championship but Ducks will be up against the stiffest competition they have faced in nearly two years.

Dog Eat Dog

Both Oregon and Washington have laid claim to the role of underdog but all indications are that the meet could easily go either way. The Huskies have more depth and experience in the field and the distance runs while Oregon's strength lies in the sprints, hurdles and middle distances.

Bob Hutchinson will be the chief challenger to the Springbett-Mock 100 and 220 monopoly. Hutchinson beat Mock in last year's meet in both sprint events. Oregon should sweep the pole vault again as the Huskies have also promise to be weak in the low hurdles and far from outstanding in the highs.

The Ducks may have a very difficult time in the mid-distances unless Anderson is in very good condition. In the 880 Washington's Red Vanderhoof is one of the best in the conference but he will have to beat Doug Clement to win and that isn't an easy job.

Jack Burney may be a contender in the 440 but Clement has recorded the best time of the year in that event and Ted Anderson is also a consistent winner.

Oregon is weak and inexperienced in most of the field events but in the distance races it will be a matter of the Huskies first rate team against a strong bunch of Oregon runners.

Washington will feature Denny Meyer, one of the best distance men in their history in the two mile event and Bob Forna, Northern Division champ in the mile.

Bobby Doerr holds the big league record for consecutive errorless games, 73 in a row.
