Independents Plan Primary Election

Independent students will be able to vote Wednesday at five places on campus in the United Independent Students' primary election, the group decide Thursday.

Voting booths will remain open all day in the Co-op and the Student Union, and booths will be open during the noon hour in Carson and Straub halls, according to Don Collin, UIS president.

Tuesday night at 7, candidates running for office under the UIS banner will be introduced at a short "meet your candidates" meeting in Science 123. Candidates will be introduced and candidates for student body president may make "short" talks, Collin said.

Petitions for class offices, student body president and the ASUO senate nominations in the UIS primary are due Monday at 5 p.m., Germaine LaMarche, secretary, emphasized.
