Designers of '53 Grid Machine

Ducks Start Pass Work In Third Rainy Session

Coach Len Casanova's prospective 1953 football squad had a third day of spring practice yesterday, and for the third straight day, intermittent rain dampened the team.

Although much time was devoted to fundamentals and conditioning, the coaches started practicing on pass defense and offense.

Barney Holland, with two years of varsity experience, worked at the quarterback slot for the Ducks, and despite a wet ball, connected consistently with his receivers.

Mentors for the Oregon footballers, besides Casanova, are Jack Roche, assistant coach, Vern Sterling, line coach, and Johnny McKay, backfield coach. Also assisting were seniors Monte Brethauer and Emmett Williams, end and guard, respectively, on last fall's gridiron squad.

Deadline Tonight For All-Campus Pin Entries

Eleven p.m. tonight is the deadline for entering the all-campus bowling tournaments, reminds Lou Bellissimo, Student Union recreational director. The competition will start tomorrow, May 1, and continue for two weeks.

The entrants will be divided into five classes, according to ability. The three men's divisions are A, for good bowlers with no handicap; B for keggers with a campus average; and C, for beginners.

Women will be classed into A, those with an established campus average; and B, beginners.

Take-home trophies will be presented to the winners in each division, and the winners will also have their name put on a permanent bowling cup.

Each bowler will roll twelve games, nine at his own convenience and three during the last day of competition when everyone will perform.

A charge of 25 cents per line will be paid, but shoe rentals will be free. Complete rules are available at the recreational desk in the basement when participants sign up for the tournament.
