Spring Term Peak

"Well, looks like this term will just about wind up th' G.I. bill."

notes to the editor

(Ed. note: This letter, written concerning Emerald Managing Editor Bill Gurney's piece on college life at Oregon, in Saturday's Junior Weekend edition, has not been run previously because of space limitations.)

WHARTON SHOCKED

After reading the editorial "This College Life," I was, to put it mildly, shocked. Not only because this edition of the Emerald went into the hands of many visiting mothers, but because I disagree with almost every statement in it.

The visiting mothers must have gained much confidence in our school after reading it. (If, however, this is the truth—I commend the author on his honesty.)

Being a mere freshman, I, undoubtedly, have the wrong impression of college life, for I agree with the quote of Mr. Hutchins in "This College Life." I think Oregon is a community of scholars.

Before going further, I should point out that I am a veteran and an independent — low creature that makes me — and that my that my intentions in coming to this university were to learn. I have experienced enough of the world (the world that the composer of "This College Life" thinks he is getting prepared for by grabbing a degree in the easiest possible manner) to know that, although a degree is necessary, upon the shoulders of the bearer of any degree must rest a well-filled head.

By now you will think me prejudiced. You are absolutely right! I found my prejudice upon this: I am presently entered in the honors program at this university. In these honors classes I compete with a number of students who, I honestly believe, are gaining knowledge. Either they are natural born geniuses or they are striving to learn.

I say this because I find myself struggling to keep up with them. It is not that I cannot learn easily; my being entered in the honors program should disprove that; but, on the contrary, I find learning enjoyable. However, this group of people must have a goal other than "grades and a diploma and a good job." There are many easier courses from which good grades might be obtained more easily.

I know little about the Greeks. The few I have met have seemed to me to be good men and women. However, "This College Life" might have referred only to them; if so, I have misunderstood it and since I am ignorant of their actions am out of order. If not, I maintain that it spoke for the minority.

If this makes me a radical, I have disproved paragraph nine of "This College Life."

Naval Air Cadets' Mental Exam To be Given in Eugene Tuesday

Mental examinations for Naval Aviation cadets will be given on Tuesday at the Naval Reserve Training Center in Eugene. The written tests will be given to any college men who have completed two or more years of college or will complete two years during the current school year.

Men taking the examination are under no obligation to enlist in the Naval Aviation cadet program. Once the tests are taken and passed they are good for all time and need not be taken again.

The examinations will begin at 7 p.m. and will last approximately three hours. Commander George F. Hoppe, Naval Aviation Cadet Procurement officer, will give the tests. This will be the last time the tests will be held in Oregon this year. Men who wish to take the physical examination for naval cadets must go to Seattle, Wash. Examinations are given there on Wednesday of each week.

Campus Briefs

● Educational movies to be shown Wednesday at 7 and 9 p.m. in 207 Chapman hall are: "Dances of the Bees," which records the techniques used in Germany to observe and analyze a newly discovered method of communication used by the bees; "Circulation," which describes the circulation of blood in the human body; and "Anatomy of the Dogfish." Admission is free.

● There will be special Ascension Day Mass at the Sacred Heart hospital chapel today. They will be held at 6 and 7 a.m.

● Students who received questionnaires from the office of student affairs concerning the cost survey being made by the U.S. Department of Education should return them to that office as soon as possible, urges Clifford Constance, registrar, who is campus co-ordinator. Nearly 100 per cent response to the questionnaires is needed to assure the success of the survey, Constance reports.

● Men interested in the spring term open rushing should contact the office of student affairs as soon as possible to make sure that their names are on the rush lists, the office has announced.

● Seniors who have not yet filed their credentials with the graduate placement office in Emerald hall should do so as soon as possible, according to Karl Onthank, associate director of student affairs. The papers must be filed before graduation, he added.

Froebe Alpha Phi Omega President

Gerald Froebe has been elected president of Alpha Phi Omega, national men's service fraternity, for the coming year.

Assisting Froebe as officers of the University chapter will be Jerry Farrow, vice president; Dick Lyons, treasurer, Marvin Young, recording secretary; Bob Jorgensen, corresponding secretary; Wesley Naish, historian; Herbert Yamanaka, sergeant at arms, and Don Thurber, publicity chairman.

Re-elected as faculty advisor to the group was Paul L. Kleinsorge, professor of economics. Newly elected as advisors to the group were William Denman and Jim Richards. Both Denman and Richards are life time members of Alpha Phi Omega and both are currently acting as counselors in two of the freshman men's dormitories.
