OH, YOU NASTY BOYS

Open Letter to Sherry Ross

Dear Kids:

You'll never know the pleasure it gives people on this campus to walk by your dormitory. We can look at the most interesting forms of junk, beer bottles and other refuse this side of the county dump. A thinking person will, however, look heavenward too. One must be certain that all of the windows are closed or hope that all of the children are in bed; if not, he can expect to be water-bagged or "ballooned."

What makes it even more sadistic of you little gentlemen is that if this pedestrian is male he has an even chance of getting by; woe to the unsuspecting female who passes beneath your windows.

Last Friday noon, my wife was walking by your dorm when one of you cunning little boys decided she was fair game. Two balloons later she was out of range. I'll bet you are proud of yourselves, aren't you, kiddies?

Unfortunately she is not the first woman I know to be water-bagged or ballooned outside of your dorm. In fact if any of you are interested I can give instances of foul language used upon students' wives that should be reserved for use on you when you finally get into the service.

It is sad that only some fellows your age are drafted; the guys who don't have enough money to come to college. Because in your cases it could not have been decided by intelligence a lot of those guys in Korea would like to be able to be in Sherry Ross and, having had all the "target practice" they cared for, would probably have that out of their system.

I condemn all of you for the outrageous behavior there because all of you are letting it go on. Someday one of your playthings is going to hit someone in the neck or head with all of its sixty foot pounds of energy, and what are you going to do about a broken neck? And how about the irate husband with a baseball bat, how will you reckon with that?

Why not stop this nonsense and try to grow up while you still have the ability.

Robert Moore

Law School Holds Trials For Practice Tuesday

The first of three law school moot trials took place Tuesday night in Judge Skipworth's courtroom of the county courthouse.

Sitting as judge in the trials, Orland Hollis, law school dean, heard a civil action suit of "Tyler vs. Boyer and Gunderson." The persons involved in the mock case were law students.

Attorneys for the plaintiff were Sidney Ainsworth, Henry Bauer and Thomas Mosgrove. The defendants' attorneys were William Mansfield and Gene Rose.

The case involved a suit brought by the plaintiff, Steve A. Tyler, against the defendants Corrine Gunderson and Robert Boyer. Miss Gunderson's car, parked in the Geringer hall driveway, was seen by Boyer rolling backward into University st. Before he could stop the car, it had rolled into the middle of University, where it was hit by Tyler who was driving towards 13th st. on University. Tyler sued the defendants for $634.25.

Acting as court attaches were Leeroy Ehlers, bailiff; Thomas Brand, clerk; and Mrs. Alberta

Heffron, court reporter. Non-law students and townspeople made up the 12-man jury.

The remaining two moot trials will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and next Tuesday at the county courthouse.
