Reduction in Price Possible for Oregana

Paul Keefe was appointed editor and Alan Oppliger business manager of the 1953-54 Pigger's Guide by the student publication board Wednesday night.

Keefe, a sophomore in business administration, and Oppliger, a BA junior, were the only petitioners for their respective positions. Keefe has worked for two years on the Emerald, Oppliger for three years on the Oregana.

Kitty Fraser, junior in journalism, was approved for recommendation to the ASUO senate for Oregana editor.

The board set a salary of $150 for the Pigger's Guide (student directory) editor, and a 15 per cent of paid advertising income commission for the business manager.

In other action, the board moved to permit a reduction of the price of the Oregana from $6.75 to $6.50 if Board Chairman Charles G. Howard, financial advisor R. C. Williams, and Oregana editor Bob Ford should unanimously decide that the reduction is feasible.

Approved a maximum of two eight-page Emeralds a week for this week and next; and voted to contract for the use of the wire service by the 1953-54 Emerald.

500 Pints Goal Of Blood Drive

A goal of 500 pints has been set for today's blood drive in Eugene, according to Jerry Froebe, campus representative for the drive. The Red Cross will conduct the drive from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Veteran's Memorial building downtown.

No appointments are necessary, Froebe reports. All students under 21 must have their parent's signatures in order to donate.

Citizen Acts to Halt Rooftop Rock Rain

Mrs. Eva F. Johnson, Eugene resident who is circulating a petition to remove Oregon's blasted "O" from Skinner's Butte, has 18 signatures on two petitions with more to come in this weekend.

According to the city recorder there is no minimum number of signers on a petition to be brought before city council.

3 Suspects Quizzed

Police investigation of the "O" blasting last week has turned up three suspects in Corvallis.

A member of the Eugene police traveled to Oregon State Wednesday for polygraph testing of three people suspected of having connection with the "O" blast. A polygraph is a type of lie detector.

Results of these tests are not yet available to the public, police told the Emerald late Wednesday.

"I just felt we had to do something," commented Mrs. Johnson who had windows broken at her house last year. The latest blast of the "O" rained rocks on the Johnson and neighboring houses.

Mrs. Johnson plans to present her petition to city council at a meeting Monday, May 25. It may then either be referred to committee or direct action taken.

After action by city council on her petition, Mrs. Johnson hopes to bring the petition and complaint into the hands of the University.

magazine characterized him as "his country's first top homegrown diplomat and a skillful advocate of Canada's growing demand to be heard in its own right."

Born in Toronto, April 23, 1897, Pearson is the descendant of two generations of Methodist ministers.

Mortar Board Selects 'Least Man' Finalists

Spending a nice quiet afternoon relaxing from the vigors of life as finalists for Least Man on Campus are Al Harder, Ed Tyler, Ron Sigler and in back row Don Lewis. Bob Hughes and Champ Husted were unavoidably detained at Maxie's when the picture was snapped.

Six men have finally been selected as the worst representatives of Oregon's student body. The "loser" of the Least Man on Campus contest will be announced at the Mortar Board ball, Saturday night. A list of the "candidates" and their disqualifications are as follows:

Bob Hughes

Bob Hughes, the candidate of Alpha Chi Omega and Phi Gamma Delta, lists as one of his proudest accomplishments the fact that he can write IOU's at Piluso's.

Among his other outstanding abilities, Bob lists his ability to make his grades every third term, cut classes 10 times a week and describe the interior of Ray Hawk's office in detail.

Bob is a sophomore in business from Portland, and one of the brightest moments of his day is when the Emeralds come out at noon, just as he gets up.

Ron Sigler

A senior in business from Parkdale is Ron Sigler, who is "a complete success in life." He has never failed, because he "has never done anything."

Sponsored in the contest by Sigma Chi and Pi Beta Phi, Ron lists as his spare-time hobbies attending picnics and picking up beer bottles in the Fiji parking lot. His only student activity is appearing before traffic court.

Ron took piano lessons for five years, as a result of which he can now play "Country Gardens." He was "caught with his first pony at the age of six," and is always available, when he can't be found elsewhere, at Maxie's.

Ed Tyler

Sigma Phi Epsilon's candidate, Ed Tyler, is most noted for the fact that it took him 4 years to pass the 2-year ROTC course.

Ed sleeps in a private room under the back porch of his house, and always gets up at noon because the whistle wakes him. His athletic prowess is proved by the fact that he is a 4-year letterman in davenport polo.

Ed, a senior in history from Portland, buys all his clothes at rummage sales, and has 5 o'clock shadow 25 hours a day. He paid off, singlehanded, the Paddock's mortgage, and is now working on Maxy's.

Al Harder

An "awfully busy" candidate, Al Harder, spends most of his time at the Oasis and Taylor's. The candidate of Kappa Sigma, Al is a senior in history and is from Garden Grove, Calif.

"I have remarkable self-control," Al boasted. "I never drink anything stronger than gin before lunch." Maxy's is this busy senior's "base of operations," and he spends 4 to 5 hours there daily.

Al plays the guitar, and proudly states that he hasn't been in jail for several years. He is also proud of the fact that he always gets up early in the afternoon.

Champ Husted

"I miss quite a few classes because I sleep all morning," complained Champ Husted, a senior in liberal arts from Cottage Grove.

The industrious candidate of Pi Kappa Alpha and Alpha Xi Delta maintains that he is too busy going to college to get an education. By "going to college," he explained that he meant sleeping.

Champ has "no activities to speak of," but does like to bowl and go fishing. He never catches any fish, but enjoys the accompanying activities.

Don Lewis

Don Lewis, the only freshman in the contest, is the candidate of Stitzer and Hendricks halls and Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Very sports-minded, Don loves to attend picnics.

He also has a spirit for collecting, and has a complete file of old "D" tests. He usually gets up at 10 p.m. for his class, but often misses it.

"I was put up," modestly states the liberal arts major from Bonneville, "because I haven't done anything all year."

Last year's winner of the Least Man contest was Mel Erickson, a member of Alpha Tau Omega.
