

Industry Relations Conference Starts

H. K. Newburn, president of the University, welcomed delegates to the third annual Northwest Industrial Relations conference on the "Know-How of Labor Management Relations" at the opening session in the Dad's Lounge of the Student Union this morning. Paul L. Kleinsorge, professor of economics and conference coordinator, acted as chairman for the first session of the conference scheduled for today and Friday.

Four panel discussions will be presented during the two-day meet. All sessions will be held in the Dad's Lounge and students are invited to attend the panels which are open to the public.

Director to Talk

Highlighting today's events will be an address by William S. Hopkins, director of the Institute of Labor Economics at the University of Washington, at a 6 p.m. dinner scheduled for tonight in the Veterans Memorial Building in downtown Eugene. Hopkins will speak on "The Free Enterprise of Labor Relations."

Oregon's new anti-picketing law, recently passed by the state legislature, will come under discussion at the afternoon session on "The Know-How of Building Confidence in Labor-Management Relations." The panel will open at 2:00 following a cafeteria luncheon in the SU at 12:30. Charles T. Estes, special assistant to the director, Federal Mediation and Conciliation, will act as moderator for the panel which will include speakers representing both labor and management.

Negotiations and Grievances

"The Know-How of Contract Negotiations" was the topic for discussion at the opening panel held at 10:30 this morning. Dave Darland, dean of the graduate school at Pacific university, served as moderator for the discussion period.

Pearson Lecture

He received his education at the University of Toronto and Oxford. He served during World War I in the Canadian army and the RAF. Pearson is a family man with a son and daughter in their early twenties. He met Mrs. Pearson as a seminar student when he was assistant professor of history at Toronto.

External Affairs Secretary

In 1928, Pearson became the first secretary of Canada's department of external affairs. Other high government positions he has held include Canadian ambassador in Washington and counselor to the Canadian high commissioner in London.

Pearson saw the birth of the United Nations at both the Dumbarton Oaks and San Francisco conferences. In 1952 he was chairman of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization conference held in Lisbon.

Canadian Advocate

Among Pearson's hobbies are baseball, tennis and hockey. He played hockey and lacrosse for Oxford and coached Toronto university in hockey and rugby football.

He is an outspoken advocate of Canada's rights to be treated as an equal with England and the United States. In regard to Korea he said, "The special responsibility which the US has accepted—in the struggle against Russian Communist imperialism, does not mean an automatic response 'ready, aye, ready' to everything Washington proposes." He protested the use of Canadian soldiers in quelling prisoner of war riots on Koje Island.

is entitled "The Know-How of Grievance Procedure," with Roy D. Mahaffey, professor of speech at Linfield college, serving as moderator.

Students on Panel

The final panel will be held from 2 p.m. to 4 followed by adjournment. Karl Harshbarger, junior in speech, will act as moderator for the discussion on "The Know-How of Education Procedure." This panel will be made up of five college students including: Donald Barber, Oregon State; Robin Linstromberg, Pacific university; Joe Rickenbacker, University of Oregon; Frank Seelye, Lewis and Clark college; Virginia Wakeman, Linfield college.

The purpose of the annual conference is to promote understanding of the problems involved in the industrial system—and to achieve a high level of industrial relations. Previous conferences were held during the summer, but this year the sessions were scheduled for spring term to give interested students a chance to attend the meetings.

The Industrial Relations conference is presented under the sponsorship of the University economics department.

Dance Money Goes to Award

Proceeds from Saturday's Mortar Board Ball, traditional dance sponsored by the members of the senior women's honorary, are the main source of funds for a scholarship awarded to a deserving junior woman, according to Mary Ellen Burrell, Mortar Board president.

The award, which used to be as traditional as those made by Kwama and Phi Theta, has not been made for the past two or three years according to Miss Burrell.

Theme of this year's dance will not be revealed until Saturday evening, beyond the general hint of "Follow the Yellow Brick Road." Something unique in decorations for a campus dance has been planned, according to June Browning, decorations chairman.

Only two days remain for the women to purchase the tickets for the affair, reports Lloydene Hurt, tickets chairman. The tickets are now on sale at all women's living organizations, the Student Union, and the Co-op.

Dress for the dance is formal, long or short formals for the women and dark suits, dinner jackets or tuxedos for the men. Held in the Student Union Ballroom, the dance will begin at 9 p.m.

Housemother Plans to Retire

At the end of summer school this year Mrs. Edna Stokes, head resident at Carson hall, will retire ending nine years of being a substitute mother to countless girls on campus.

A tea honoring Mrs. Stokes will be given from 3 to 5 p.m. today in the Carson living room. All present and former dormitory residents and friends are invited to attend. General chairman is Barbara Dspain, Carson president.

From being housemother at Gamma Hall, in 1944, to head resident at Carson Hall beginning in 1949 is quite a span for a woman who said that counseling was "the last thing she ever thought of doing" before she began work here.

After two years at Gamma Hall, Mrs. Stokes moved to Hendricks and then into Carson "even before the doors and windows were on." "We had three patrolmen with flashlights watching the building when I first came," recalled Mrs. Stokes.

Plans following her retirement are rather indefinite, Mrs. Stokes said. At present she manages to fill her spare time with reading, gardening in a window, collecting dishes and studying natural history. "I am interested in geology and can hardly pass by a rock without collecting it," she said.

A daughter, Elaine (Stokes) Porter, and a son, Don, also claim some of her time. Two grandchildren, a son and a daughter, will enter college next year, with the boy entering Oregon State to study engineering. "Of course," said Mrs. Stokes, "I'd rather have him come here if he could get enough work in his major."

Bach Choral Group Performs Sunday

The Bach Choral group, composed of University students and Eugene townspeople, will give an all-Bach program Sunday evening at the United Lutheran church, 22nd and Washington streets.

The program will be a benefit performance for the Pearl Buck school for retarded children. No admission will be charged, but a collection will be taken up during the evening, according to E. A. Cykler, professor of music and director of the group. The program will begin at 8 p.m.

Featured soloists with the group of 20 singers and 12 instruments, will be Larry Maves, junior in music; W. C. Woods, instructor in piano; Exine Anderson, assistant professor of music; Doug Stobie, junior in music; Clyde Keutzer, graduate student in music, and Mrs. Genevieve Holt Hall, Eugene.

The program will include such Bach selections as his "Cantata No. 18," "B Minor Concerto for Piano and Strings," and the "78th Cantata."

Brigadoon Writers Set Magic to Music

A Scottish village that comes to life one day every hundred years is the setting of the Broadway hit musical "Brigadoon" to be presented by the University Theater for a seven-performance run beginning Friday night. It is the last production of the current UT season.

Tickets at $2 are still available for the May 26, and June 3 and 4 performances. All other nights have been completely sold out, according to Mrs. Gene Wiley, theater business manager. The few remaining seats may be obtained at the box office from 1 to 5 p.m. daily except Sunday.

Such familiar songs as "The Heather on the Hill," "Almost Like Being in Love" and "There But For You Go I" are featured in the musical comedy production.

Thursday Concert Scheduled for Band

The University concert band, directed by Robert Vagner, will be presented in a concert next Thursday, at 8:15 p.m. in the Student Union ballroom.

Special feature of the program will be two arrangements done by graduate students in the school of music. First of these will be an arrangement for trombone solo with band accompaniment by Richard Ramsdell of "Concertino," Movement I, by David. The solo will be done by Raoul Maddox, junior.

Also featured will be Gerald Paine's arrangement of "Escapes," by Ibert.

Pan-hellenic association was organized in 1910 by the three local chapters of Gamma Phi Beta, Chi Omega and Kappa Alpha Theta.
