Expert's Studies Free Mrs. Allton In Forgery Case Handwriting Shows Charges Unjustified

Charges have been dropped against Mrs. Donald Allton, wife of Donald Allton, professor of music, who was to be tried Monday on a charge of passing several bad checks in the San Diego area, District Attorney Don Keller announced Saturday.

Keller's statement followed a report by Clark Sellers, Los Angeles, a nationally known handwriting expert who said, "I am convinced the charges against Mrs. Allton are a case of mistaken identity."

Keller said that he was "quite impressed" with Seller's statement and that he had "never known Seller to come out with such a strong report."

Mrs. Allton was accused several months ago of having signed over $1000 worth of bogus checks which were passed in San Diego.

Six UO Students Contest Election

A portion of the ASUO general election has been contested by six UO students, according to K. J. O'Connell, chairman of the ASUO constitution committee.

The amendment to place a graduate student, elected only by graduate students, on the ASUO senate is the portion of the election being contested. The amendment passed by a vote of 1352 to 455 in the May 13 election.

Bill Frye, senior in journalism; Bob Maier, freshman in business administration; Paul Keefe, sophomore in business administration; Paul Lasker, junior in education; and Bill Gurney, junior in journalism, were the signers of the letter contesting the election.

Reasons listed by the group for contesting the election were vagueness in Emerald's publication of the proposed amendment, a difference between the proposed amendment in the Emerald and on the ballot, the petition with 200 signatures to get the proposed amendment on the ballot not being in the hands of the ASUO vice-president at the time prescribed by the ASUO constitution (therefore there was no time to validate the signatures on the petitions), and that the ASUO vice-president did not direct the publication of the proposed amendment in the Emerald.

O'Connell stated that the constitution committee will meet "near the end of the week" to consider the letter contesting the election. "Members of the committee must have time to read the letter before we can meet," he said.

Demo's Plan NAACP Forum

The NAACP - Student Affairs Committee controversy will be the topic of a public discussion at 7 tonight in the Student Union.

The discussion, sponsored by the Young Democrats, will feature speakers to present both views with a discussion following their brief talks. George Dalton, graduate in economics, will be moderator.

The present problem arose last year when the NAACP sought recognition as a campus organization. They have been refused recognition by the Student Affairs committee due to a ruling which allows no new campus groups with national affiliations to organize under the auspices of the University.

Korean Peace Hopes Gain, Pearson Tells News Confab

By Kitty Fraser

Emerald Assistant Managing Editor

LESTER B. PEARSON, Coffee and Opinions

Lester B. Pearson, United Nations general assembly president and Canada's secretary of external affairs, offered his views on a variety of subjects Monday morning in an informal press conference over coffee with representatives of Eugene radio stations and other state publications.

Chances for peace in Korea seem more favorable in his opinion, although he expressed doubt in the significance of the peace gestures of the Soviet Union.

However, he said it was a mistake not to give the USSR the benefit of the doubt or "slap down Russia." The Austrian peace treaty will be a much more important indication of the "peace offensive," he said.

Korea Not Ideal

Pearson said the present handling of the Korean situation was not the ideal way in which UN actions should be carried out, but at present, having the U. S. run the truce negotiations is the only practical way to handle the problems.

Conferences should be held with all countries involved, he said, but things happen too fast at times for this to be possible. There is no serious division over the situation, he said assuredly.

Canadian to Tell Views On 'East-West Bridge'

Even Russia's Jacob Malik listens in the United Nations General Assembly to Lester B. Pearson, who will speak at a University assembly at 1 p.m. today in the Student Union ballroom. Pearson has been assembly president since Oct. 1952.

Topic of the address by the Canadian diplomat is "The New Commonwealth Bridge Between East and West." He will also speak at a coffee hour forum to be held in the SU at 3 p.m.

Pearson is being brought to the University especially for this address. He will make no other public appearance in the Northwest and will fly back to UN headquarters in New York City Tuesday night. While in Eugene, he and Mrs. Pearson will be guests of President and Mrs. H. K. Newburn.

Considered by many a good bet to be Canada's next prime minister, Pearson has been described as his country's first top homegrown diplomat and is a skillful advocate of Canada's growing demand to be heard in its own right. In addition to his UN post, he is also Canada's secretary of state for external affairs.

Pearson is the descendent of two generations of Methodist ministers. He was born in Toronto, April 23, 1897. He was educated at the University of Toronto and Oxford. During World War I, Pearson served in the Canadian army and the RAF.

In 1928, Pearson became Canada's first external affairs secretary. Other positions which the diplomat has held have been Canadian ambassador in Washington and counselor to the Canadian high commissioner in London.

Pearson has been associated with the United Nations since the Dumbarton Oaks and San Francisco conferences which saw the birth of the organization. He was chairman of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization conference held last year in Lisbon.

A family man with a grown son and daughter, Pearson lists tennis, baseball and hockey as his favorite sports. He played hockey and lacrosse for Oxford during his collegiate days and was a coach in hockey and rugby football at Toronto university.

The Pearson address will be broadcast over KWAX at 6:30 tonight, according to Jack Vaughn, station manager.

Usually proposals are discussed in Washington D.C. and presented at the peace talks in Panmunjom later. The present proposals now being discussed in Korea were talked over about 10 days ago, he said.

Pearson gave a short rundown on Canada's participation in the Korean conflict, pointing out there were 22,000 troops in the field. Canada concentrates on material contributions, he said, with 45 per cent of her budget going for defense.

The U.S. is not the only neighbor Canada has—there is also Russia, Pearson pointed out. With modern transportation, the Arctic is not the barrier that it was, he mentioned.

U.S. Important Force
Speaking on the United Nations itself and the effect the United States has on it, Pearson said the U.S. attitude was the most important single force in the UN. He felt it was a mistake for any one power to dominate the UN completely but also said it was unrealistic to not let the greatest power have a voice in proportion to that power.

"Canada follows the U.S. as the leader of the free world," he said, but likes to push a little.

Commenting on the Communist strength in the UN, Pearson said it was very small, usually Communist proposals getting only the

Prof. Doctrine KWAX Feature

Prof. Monroe Doctrine of the University's history department, will be the interviewee on tonight's edition of "Lemon Punch," according to Thorne Briar, KWAX announcer. The show, which will be heard on KWAX at 6:15, will reveal some of the study aids recommended by Professor Doctrine for members of his classes.

Through long years of research, Professor Doctrine has found that the main difficulty students have had in his classes is memorizing dates of important events.

"Anyone," Professor Doctrine said, "can remember that World War I started in 1871 and the Magna Carta was signed in 1969. It's only a matter of memorizing the right dates for the right time and organizing your ponies correctly," he said.
