

Couple Ends Year in 'Suzie'

Acting as a kind of "mom and dad" away from home for approximately 100 men in Susan Campbell hall has been the job of Si and Charlene Ellingson this year.

Living in the house mother's apartment in the former women's dormitory, the Ellingsons have been part of the administration's experiment in using married couples in the dormitories.

The arrangement is used by many other schools, but it does not seem to be feasible at Oregon, Ellingson said. The main reason for not adopting the plan is, in order to be successful, the woman would not be able to work. For many married couples, he pointed out, it is necessary for the wife to work. Another drawback found was that having married students with children live in the dorms would be almost impossible, and, Ellingson said, families in which the wife does not work are likely to contain children.

Both have enjoyed their stay in the hall, but admitted it would have been much better if Ellingson had not been connected with personnel work outside the dorm. He is counselor for men.

Both agreed that the men had been "very cooperative," but as Ellingson pointed out, "Charlene has received a liberal education from conversations in the parking lot." The lot is just outside their bedroom window.

Self-Sufficient Men

Mrs. Ellingson expressed amazement at the "self-sufficiency" of the men and admitted that most of the fellows can iron shirts even "better than I can."

Noise in the hall bothered the couple fall term, but now they "hardly notice it." The biggest drawback to the arrangement has been the smallness of the three-room apartment.

Doing a Brisk Business

The statement "she's no house-mother, she's just the other guy's wife," accurately sums up her position in the hall, Mrs. Ellingson believes. She added that she had not been called upon to solve many problems, but had done "a brisk business in needle and thread."

The position of the apartment on the main hallway of the building plus the rather thin walls has made for some very interesting situations, but perhaps one of the funniest was when the Ellingsons returned late one night to find one of the men chinning himself in the doorway of their apartment.

If they were to act as hall "parents again, both agreed that they would like to make it their "full time job."

Advertising Honor Court to Be Formed

An advertising "Court of Honor" in cooperation with the Saturday Review of Literature will be established here under the direction of Willard G. Thompson, assistant professor of journalism, it was announced last week.

The court, formed to display the best public interest advertisements of the year, will receive reproduction proofs of the advertisements for which the Saturday Review has presented an annual award.

Reproduction proofs of the 1952 prize winning advertisements are now on display in the journalism building. Each year new award winners will take their places in the court and a certificate of registration will be presented to the advertisers.

Dad's Club Decides To Aid Scholarship

The executive committee of the Oregon Dad's Club has approved the use of additional funds for University scholarship purposes.

The committee has also scheduled their fall term meeting for Oct 3, the day Oregon meets UCLA in football here. Dad's Day, 1954, has been tentatively set for Feb 6.

Koplin Awarded Swift's Fellowship

H. T. Koplin, instructor in economics, has been granted a five week summer fellowship to Swift and company's office in Chicago.

Koplin said the program is intended to improve relations between the company and the academic world. The entire five weeks will be filled with conferences and meetings in discussions with the executives of the company intending to give economists a better understanding of the policies and actions of the company.

"I was told to bring overshoes for slaughterhouse and stockyard walking," observed Koplin. He was deluged with materials to read in preparation for the meetings. One day will be spent with a salesman on his route.

Awards Picnic Set by Theater

University theater will hold its annual theater awards picnic June 5, from 3 to 6:30 p.m. at Fall Creek playground on Jasper road.

Awards will be presented to the best leading actor and actress, best supporting actor and actress, and to the person who has given outstanding service on the production or business staffs.

Persons who will need rides to the picnic grounds are asked to notify the theater box office, according to Phil Sanders, general chairman of the event.

Greeks Postpone Election of Officers

Associated Greek Students representatives failed to elect a new president at a meeting Thursday and election of officers has been postponed until 4 p.m. Tuesday at the Delta Gamma house.

Nominated at the meeting for the AGS presidential post were Bob Glass, sophomore in pre-law, and Alan Oppliger, junior in business administration.

Decision of the office could not be obtained after three balloting's. Of the 27 houses represented, Oppliger had 17 votes and Glass had 10. A majority vote, 19, of all 37 Greek organizations was necessary for election.

Graduation Set For ROTC Units

The combined Army and Air Force ROTC units will hold their annual graduation parade and drill Tuesday at 1 p.m. Awards to graduating seniors will be presented by Col. Emory Bruns, military department head, Lt. Col. John Londahl, head of the Army unit, and a representative from the National Defense Transportation association.

Sixty-one Army and 86 Air Force reserve commissions will be awarded. The majority of cadets from each group will go on active duty by the end of the summer.

In addition to the commissions, several special awards will be granted. The Air Force association award will go to the top senior, George Troeh. The Convair Cadet award will be given to Donald Tipton. The top two juniors in Air Science are John Akers and Joseph Kennedy. Peter Williams is the top ranking sophomore, and Kenneth Koeppen the best Air Science freshman.

The Army unit will present the Infantry award to the best graduating senior, David Krieger. The National Defense Transportation association awards will go to Floyd Gumpert, senior, and to Karl Harshbarger, junior.

Allan Kershaw, William Tuck, and Ronald White will be Army members receiving honorary membership in the Reserve Officer's association of Oregon. Air Force members receiving the same honor are Troeh, B. Mickelson, E. Edwards, D. Tipton, and A. Myers.

After the ceremony a reception will be held in the Dad's Lounge of the Student Union for all the graduates.

Senior Records Due at Office

All graduating students who have not yet filed their credentials with the graduate placement office in Emerald hall should do so as soon as possible, according to Karl S. Onthank, associate director of student affairs.

The files will be used for future reference in placing students. The records should be completed before graduation, Onthank reports.
