

Air Force Colonel Quits Oregon 'RO' Command

Col. Emory Bruns, head of the combined Army and Air Force ROTC units at the University of Oregon since 1951, is retiring from the Air Force after 30 years of service. He has been on active duty since the beginning of World War II, and a full colonel for the past five years.

Colonel Bruns' tour of duty started in 1940 at Ft. McArthur, Calif. as a major in the Army. In 1943 he was moved to the General Staff school at Ft. Leavenworth and later the same year to Ft. Douglas, Utah, as the director of curricula for the 9th Service Division.

At Stanford university Colonel Bruns became the executive officer of the Officer's Training School. He served in similar positions at Camp Cook, Calif.

Goes To Pacific

In September 1944 he was transferred to the Pacific theater of operations, becoming Command Chief of the Far East Air Force, 22nd. Replacement Division, until it was inactivated in July of 1946. While assuming this command Colonel Bruns flew over 100,000 miles throughout the whole Pacific theater, and at one time had nearly 17,000 officers and enlisted men under him. He received the Legion of Merit award for service in this command.

From July of 1946 until April of 1947 he became the chief of the headquarters of the Pacific Air Service Command in Manila. After this position he was transferred to the United States, serving as flight commander at Ft. Slocum, N.Y., and later at Mitchell Air Base on Long Island. He assumed his position at the University of Oregon in September of 1951.

Receives Degree

Colonel Bruns is a graduate of the ROTC program, receiving his degree and reserve commission from South Dakota State college. He was the honor graduate of his ROTC class.

Prior to active duty in military service he served as principal of numerous secondary schools in Idaho. Colonel Bruns was a pole vaulter, football player, bowler, but calls himself, "the world's lousiest golfer," even though he likes to go 18 now and then. He was one of the first members of the National Ski Patrol.

Colonel Bruns was married in 1926, and has one son who will be fourteen years old Saturday. Upon retirement he plans to "take it easy for a while" and then get back in the teaching field.

When it was suggested that he might just join the ranks of shuffle-board players in St. Petersburg, Florida, his reply was, "Now wait a minute, son, a man like me can't just up and quit already!"

OSA Chooses Award Winners

Announcement of the winners of the Standard Oil scholarships and the two Max Tucker scholarships was made by the office of student affairs this week. The awards are for the 1953-54 academic year.

Lane County Horse Show Opens Today

The 15th annual horse show at the Lane county fairgrounds opens tonight at 8 with another night performance Saturday and matinee performances at 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Tickets may be purchased at the fair grounds gate for 80 cents.

University students riding in the show include Gayle Johnson, freshman in education, showing a quarter horse owned by a local business man. Jean Smith, freshman in liberal arts, will show her own pleasure horse, Ferocious.

Dennis O'Neel, freshman in liberal arts, has entered his palomino in parade classes. Gerry Pearson, senior in English, will ride her own hunter, Allow Me, and Spend-thrift, a jumper belonging to Mrs. H. Chapman of Eugene.

hander hurler, Bob Murphy, who won nine and lost one during the season, will probably get the starting nod from Stanford Coach Everett Dean.

The California team will be favored heavily in the hitting department, but excluding Murphy, the Card mound staff is impotent compared to Oregon.

The Webfoot squad landed at San Francisco airport Thursday afternoon and motored to Stanford Village where it will stay today and tomorrow. The Ducks will be back in Eugene Sunday night.

The two foes will battle at noon Saturday, after today's game. If the best-of-three series has not been decided in two games, another contest is scheduled later Saturday.

Amendment Hearing Set Next Week

The hearing on the contested graduate student amendment will be held early next week, according to K. J. O'Connell, professor of law and chairman of the constitution committee.

O'Connell had tentatively set the hearing for "the end of the week."

Don Collin, ASUO vice-president, stated Thursday evening in senate meeting that he is in favor of having the persons contesting the amendments rewrite the petition and name the ASUO vice-president as defendant in the hearing. No decision has been made on Collin's idea.

Swords with blades famous for fine temper were made at Toledo, Spain.
