New Students Continue Tests

Freshmen and new students today entered their second day of testing in preparation for registration later this week. Students are being given the English, mathematics and language tests in addition to the Ohio psychological examination.

Those students entering the University for the first time and who have not yet picked up their registration material may do so today in the Student Union ballroom. Old students may pick up their materials at the SU after 8 a.m. Wednesday.

Advisers will be assigned to freshmen and sophomores by the chairman of lower division advisers. All lower division students must obtain a card from him at the SU during regular registration. The deans and department heads will arrange the assignment of advisers for other students. Each student must have his schedule approved by his adviser before he may proceed with registration.

Cards Filled

Next step in the procedure is enrollment in courses with the departments. An instructor's card must be filled out for each class and delivered to the specified department office. The department will stamp the registration card opposite the proper course.

The student affairs card, news bureau card and other registration cards are to be filled out and delivered to the specified department office. The department will stamp the registration card opposite the proper course.

The student affairs card, news bureau card and other registration cards are to be filled out and delivered to the student affairs clerks in the SU. Students may register their cars with the ASUO traffic court at the same time. New students will fill out a personnel folder. Identification photographs will also be taken.

Hands Off Plan Ends; New IFC Rules In Effect

Freshmen, want to have coffee with a fraternity man? It's legal this year, for the first time since 1949.

For the first time in four years, Oregon fraternities will rush freshman men fall term, with formal rush week starting Sept. 27, according to Con Sheffer, Inter-Fraternity council president.

The "hands off" policy, in force during the four-year period, was repealed by the IFC spring term in favor of open rushing all year.

The first event of this term's rush week will be an orientation assembly Sunday night, Sept. 27, in the Student Union ballroom. Rushees will make rush dates Monday afternoon and evening, Sheffer said.

Under the new IFC policy, freshmen may visit fraternity houses at any time during the year but fraternity men cannot visit freshmen in the frosh dorms.

Complete rushing rules as passed by IFC spring terms are as follows:

1. Rush week shall be held the second week of classes fall term.
2. Rush week orientation meeting will be held Sept. 27 and rushees will sign up for dates the next day, Sept. 28.
3. There will be no prep decile for freshman planning to rush.
4. There will be no hands off policy between the opening of school and rush week.

a. Freshman men may be rushed on arrival on campus.

b. Fraternity men will not be allowed in freshman dormitories at any time during the year.

5. Open rushing will be in effect all year with official pledge periods for winter and spring terms starting the second week of each term and lasting for three weeks.

6. Initiation requirements:

a. If a pledge does not have a 2 point accumulative GPA at the end of three terms, he will be dropped from his pledge.

b. A freshman entering school winter term may move into the house the following fall term provided he makes his grades in two terms.

c. Freshmen entering school spring term may move into the house fall term, but must have a 2 point accum by the end of the following winter term.

8. Tuesday night will be the night for all pledge meetings.

9. Fraternities can not hire pledges to work in the houses.

10. Freshmen may participate in house activities excepting intramural sports and when the dormitory may have a conflicting activity. Freshmen may also participate in house study tables.

Group Insurance Available

University of Oregon students may purchase year around accident coverage at group insurance rates under the terms of a contract signed last spring by the University and the Mutual Benefit Health and Accident Association of Omaha.

The accident insurance, which was approved by 88 per cent of the students voting in last spring's ASUO elections, provides coverage up to $500 for hospital care and doctor bills on any one accident and $500 for accidental death.

The policy covers intramural sports, plus skiing and swimming, and may be carried in addition to any other insurance the student has. It does not cover inter-scholastic sports, eye glasses, free service rendered by the school health service, injuries covered by Work-

Dr. Russell Blemker On Infirmary Staff

Dr. Russell Blemker has been added to the University infirmary staff and will take over his post Jan. 1. He replaces Dr. Squire Bozorth, former university physician, who died in August.

Doctor Bozorth had served on the infirmary staff for the last five years. Dr. Blemker was on the staff for one year several years ago.

The Health Service will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Sunday hours from 10 to 10:30 a.m. will be discontinued. A nurse will be on duty outside regular hours to take care of students with serious illness or injuries. Dr. Fred N. Miller, director of the health service, also will see emergency cases outside of the regular dispensary hours.

H. K. NEWBURN

by Sally Ryan
Emerald Assistant News Editor

Oregon students returning to Eugene have found big changes both in the physical aspects of the campus and in University personnel.

Biggest single change was the naming of Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of business administration, as acting president of the University at a meeting of the state board of higher education Sept. 4. Morris' selection followed a closed session of the board held at the Benson hotel in Portland.

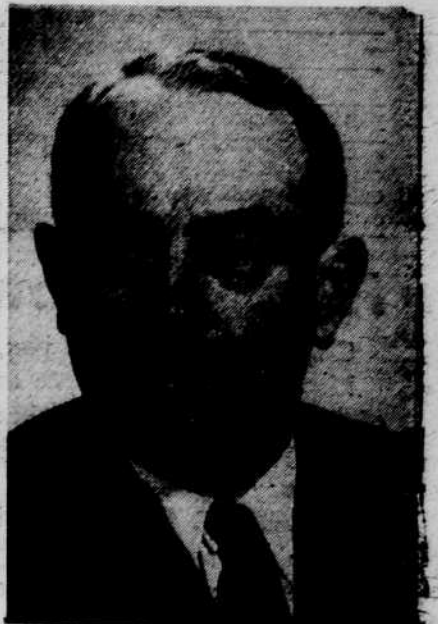

Physical plant changes include razing of McClure hall to make room for construction of a new journalism building. The school of journalism has temporarily moved to the quonset huts east of Commonwealth hall. Additional details on page 8.

Confirmation of Morris' nomination is expected at the official board meeting Wednesday. He is to serve from that date until a new president can be selected.

Vacancy Created

Morris fills the vacancy created by the resignation of H. K. Newburn, who took the post of director of a national project in educational television. Newburn had served as president of the University since June 8, 1946.

W. C. Jones, dean of administration, resigned to accept a position as executive director of the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education. For an indefinite period Jones' office will be in Johnson hall.

... in

Lyle Nelson, director of public services, whose resignation was effective today, has already left the campus. In his capacity as assistant to Newburn, he has begun preparations for Newburn's work as head of the Educational Television and Radio Center.

This Ford Foundation project is located on the University of Michigan campus at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Newburn will not leave to assume his position until early in December.

The board gave no indication of whom it is considering for the permanent presidency, although it did go over the records of some 20 candidates. Morris announced in his statement of acceptance that he is definitely not a candidate for the permanent presidency.

Morris is currently chairman of the board of deans and senior dean in terms of service. He started his career at Oregon State, where he taught in the economics department from 1924 to 1926. He came to Oregon as an assistant professor of economics in 1926.

Oregon Candidate Active

An Oregon graduate, Morris received his masters degree here in 1920. He received a doctor of philosophy degree from Columbia in 1930.

A native of South Dakota, he has been active with the Institute of International Relations at the University of California and at the University of Southern California. Morris was named director of the institute at Oregon in 1932.

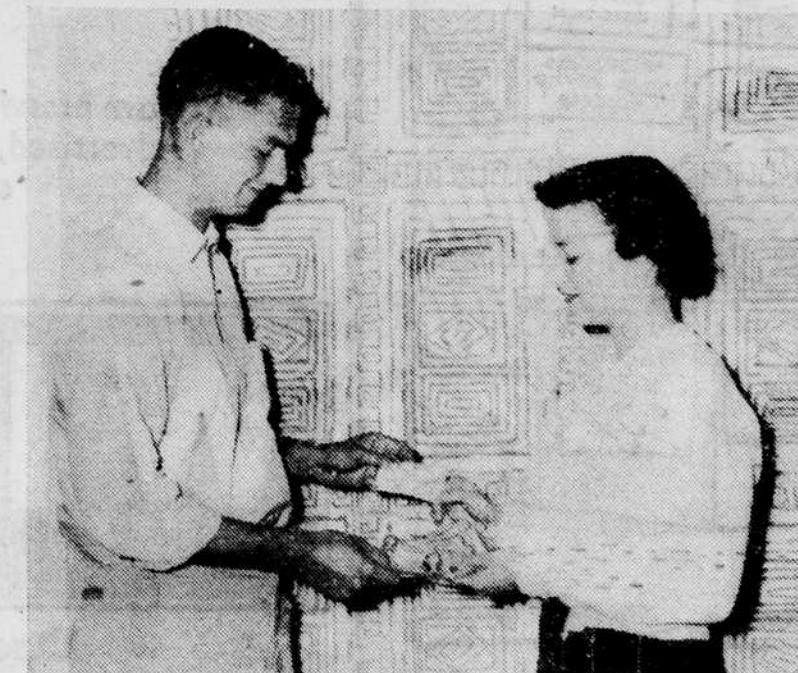

A member of the Oregon state education commission established by the 1933 legislature, he was a member of the Eugene school board from 1933 to 1939. Morris also served as chairman of the interim committee of the Oregon legislature on the workmen's compensation law, 1939-40, chairman of the Oregon state committee for postwar readjustment and development established by the 1943 legislature, chairman of the merit system council of the Oregon public welfare commission and head of many other state committees.

In announcing the appointment of Morris the board reported that "It is necessary that an interim administration be appointed for the University of Oregon to care for the executive matters from the beginning of the school year until a permanent appointment can be made."

Recommendation Accepted

"Meeting as a committee, board members have concurred in Chancellor Byrne's recommendation that Dean Victor P. Morris of the
