Two Vacancies Created On Governing Body

Student government at the University of Oregon will get into high gear next Thursday night when the ASUO senate will hold its first meeting of the year.

According to Tom Wrightson, ASUO president, all except two members of the senate—senators-at-large, class officers and ASUO officers elected last spring—are back at school and none are disqualified to hold office because of grades.

Senior Class Representative Patti Ruan will not be in school this fall. Sophomore Representative Paul Ward has not returned. Their vacancies will be filled by the senate.

Fisher Missing

The exact whereabouts of Senator Representative Don Fischer was not known Thursday by Wrightson or members of United Independent Students party which he represents, but it was assumed he will be back at school by next week.

The only class lacking representation on the senate at the present is, of course, the freshman. Election of officers for the freshman class will be held sometime later this term, the exact date to be decided by the senate. The past two years, frosh elections were held winter term but a constitutional amendment passed by the student body in last spring's election moved the date back.

Other changes due this year through constitutional amendment will be the addition of a graduate student to the senate, an all-campus primary for next spring's election and presentation of a proposed budget by the ASUO president for senate approval.

Members Listed

Members of the senate are headed by Wrightson, the Associated Greek Student candidate for the office and Don Collin, ASUO vice president, a member of the United Independent Students party. The senate-at-large members are Bob Funk, who ran on a non-partisan ticket last spring; Bob Summers, Wes Ball, Marilyn Parrish, Don Crawford and Ward Cook, AGS party members; Sally Hayden, Tom Shepherd and Hollis Ransom, UIS members.

The class officers are: seniors, Paul Lasker, president, AGS; Elsie Schiller, vice president, UIS; Don Fischer, representative, UIS, and one other representative to be selected; juniors, Jim Light, president, AGS; Len Calvert, vice president, UIS; Ann Blackwell, AGS, and Bob Kanada, UIS, representatives; sophomores, Jim Duncan, president, AGS; Sam Vahey, vice-president, UIS; Janet Gustafson, representative, AGS, and one other to be selected.

Two faculty members are also senate members appointed by the University president. E. G. Ebbighausen, associate professor of physics, is one representative, and another will be appointed this fall. They serve two year terms. E. R. Bingham, associate professor of history, just completed two years on the senate.

Nebraska Game Picked By NBC

by Sam Vahey
Emerald Sports Editor

University of Oregon's Ducks, picked for a sixth place finish in the Pacific Coast conference, meet the University of Nebraska Saturday at Lincoln, Neb., in what the National Broadcasting company has picked for its televised "Game of the Day."

Nebraska could be "Dog in the Manger" squad in the Big Seven. The Huskers are not deep enough in the line to be a serious title threat, but should throw around a lot of weight in determining the final outcome.

Could be Runners-up

The Midwest school is generally tabbed for runner-up honors behind the Oklahoma Sooners, who have defeated the Nebraska eleven the last four years.

The Huskers have an all-letterman backfield, and plenty of heft on the line, especially John Minnick, who was listed on the NCAA 1952 All-American squad.

Head Football Coach Bill Glassford's chief worry lies in the line, where he lacks seasoned replacements in the guard, tackle and end spots.

One-Platoon Rule

He, like every other coach in the land, is also worried about the change from the two platoon system to the "one team only" substitution rule. During fall practice, Glassford pointed out that one of his top backfield candidates had never played as a blocking back in high school or college.

Versatile Halfback

John Bordogna, 21 year old senior from Turtle Creek, Pa., will be the offensive leader for the maroon and white clad Nebraskans. The five feet, nine inch halfback will manage most of the tailback duties this fall for the single wing formation.

Last season, playing beside All-American Bobby Reynolds, Bordogna outscored, outran and outpassed his more famous teammate. This year he will become a triple threat star, because he will handle most of the Cornhuskers' punting duties.

Rex Fischer, like Oregon's Dick James, is picked by Colliers magazine to be one of the nation's outstanding sophomore stars this year. Although Fischer has not yet cracked the Nebraska first string, he is crowding the regulars with his fine running, passing and tackling. He is five feet, eight inches tall and weighs 160.

305 Women To Start Rush

Over 300 women will start rush week this afternoon by attending open house from 1 to 5 in the 16 sororities on campus. Members of Kwama, sophomore women's honorary, will lead the guided tours, leaving from Gerlinger hall.

Women who decide to rush after taking part in open house may still sign up between 3 and 8 tonight in Gerlinger hall, Miss Thurston said.

Rush dates begin Saturday with six dates from 10 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Sunday's schedule includes five dates from 2 to 7:45 p.m. and on Monday there are four dates from 4 to 7:45 p.m.

Tuesday is preference day with two dates at 6:15 and 8:15 p.m. Rushes will return to Gerlinger hall after their last preference date Tuesday evening to fill out preference cards. Houses will hold breakfasts for their new pledges Wednesday morning at 7.

Campus clothes are in order for open house and all rushing dates on Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Short silks and heels will be worn for the two preference dates on Tuesday.

Daughter Dies

Emery Barnes, captain of the 1953 football team, did not fly to Nebraska with the rest of the squad Thursday morning. His daughter, Pamela Ann, died in a Portland hospital and the funeral services were held Thursday. However, Barnes will fly to Lincoln to take part in today's practices.

Outstanding Nebraska lineman is big Jerry Minnick, who rated the International News Services' All-American defensive unit last year. Minnick has handily made the change to his "two way" duties and is a good bet to repeat his 1952 performances. Jerry injured his hand in spring football practice, but is in good shape for the '53 season.

Co-captain for the Nebraskans, along with Minnick, is Bill Scabacker, 180 lb. senior end. Scabacker was named on the All-Big Seven defensive squad last year. He is twenty years old and weighs 180 pounds. His outstanding asset is his agility, as he is a good blocker, tackler and pass catcher.

Morris, Assistants Win Approval Wednesday by Board of Education

Official approval of Victor P. Morris' appointment as acting president was made by the state board of higher education Wednesday. At the same time, two men were designated to fill positions as assistants to Morris.

Anderson, Starlin Named

Lester Anderson, alumni secretary, and Glenn Starlin, associate professor of speech, will assume the duties of administrative assistants on a part time basis. The positions were formerly held by Lyle M. Nelson, who held the title of director of public services, and W. C. Jones, who was dean of administration.

Under the present organization, the delegation of functions will be made upon a different basis, according to Morris. In the past the routine duties have been handled by the administrative assistants in a more specialized manner. The new setup calls for less distinction between the duties of the two men. At present daily conferences are being held and duties assigned at that time.

The administrative assistants have carried the responsibility of routine matters, public relations, contact with community organizations, visitations to the campus, lecture series, conferences held on the campus, and other related University contacts. The president will be more closely allied with the functions of the University through the college of liberal arts and the professional schools.

To Work Part-Time

Anderson and Starlin will continue in their old positions on a half-time basis. Anderson will occupy the office formerly used by Nelson. Starlin will use Jones' former office.

Since the state legislature, which controls the University budget, is not meeting this year, there is a minimum of administrative duties to be handled by these officials. This, coupled with the fact that there is only a slight increase in enrollment, makes it possible for the acting assistants to assume the positions which were formerly full-time jobs on a part-time basis.

Board Approves Change

A third interim appointment was also announced by the state board Wednesday. A. B. Stillman, professor of business administration, was appointed acting dean of the school of business. Stillman assumes the position held by Morris before he accepted the position as acting president.

The board also approved a change in the administrative code which will make John R. Richards, the new vice-chancellor and board secretary, chairman of the high school-college relations committee of the state.

Richards, who was recently associated with New York university, has offices on campus for his newly created post. He will also serve as an aide to Chancellor Charles D. Byrne.
