

Huskies Rated Over Ducks

Besides Minnick and Schabacker, the Nebraska line is made up of Ralph Wendle, end; Ted Connor, tackle; Bob Wagner and John Machisic, guards, and Jim Oliver, center.

Dan Brown has received the nod from Coach Glassford to handle the first team "T" formation duties. Besides his passing, he is an outstanding back. On defense he handles the halfback chores.

The other halfback is Bob Smith, who played both ways in 1952. Although he is only a junior he will be playing his third year of varsity ball.

George Cifra rounds out the starting lineup at the fullback post. Standing a stocky six feet tall, he is a top power runner in the Husker backfield. He played only offense last season, but has nailed down the linebacking responsibilities with this year's team.

Nebraska Won Last

In the only previous engagement between the two schools, Nebraska took advantage of Webfoot errors to drop the Ducks, 28-13 in a night game at Portland.

The Webfoots will be out to revenge last year's loss, but most of the experts don't think the Oregon team's chances are too good. Experience and depth are the two things lacking in the overall picture.

Coach Len Casanova has 24 lettermen, a fine troupe of transfers, and an impressive list of sophomore stars. The backfield, however, which last year specialized in offense and defense lacks experienced players who can play both ways.

George Shaw, junior quarterback, is the outstanding prospect in the Webfoot's "T" formation offense. Breaking into the lineup during his freshman year, he was one of the Ducks' top passers and receivers.

His sophomore year he stepped into the first string quarterback role and promptly set a new PCC record for pass completions in one game. He was the third top passer in the conference and averaged almost 22 yards on pass catches.

Set Record

His ability is not limited to offense. In his first year in Oregon gear, he set a PCC and NCAA record for pass interceptions, 13 in one season. This year he is tabbed for defensive safety man duties.

Although he lacks the heft of a top notch halfback, five feet, nine inch Dick James is certain to start at the left halfback spot. James, only a sophomore, has lots of speed which helps him on both offense and defense.

The other halfback spot is a big question mark. Walt Gaffney, a junior transfer from San Bernardino JC, and Farrell Albright, a one year letter winner, are neck and neck for the starting job. Albright is the bigger of the two men, but lacks some of the defensive prowess of his smaller mate, Gaffney.

Cece Hodges, who also played at a half spot last year, is destined to open as fullback. He is not the type of pile driving fullback that the Webfoots could use in their attack, but has proved his worth as a defensive standout.

The line should be Casanova's least worry as there is plenty of experience, depth, and weight. A possible exception might be the guard spots where failure of two players to return to school might hurt the Ducks seriously.

Jack Patera, 213 pound junior, is developing into a top flight lineman after two years of steady improvement. He will be the first choice of Head Coach Len Casanova for the right guard station.

His running made on the other flank of the line will be Ken Sweitzer, 192 pound senior. He played mostly offense last year and may find the changeover a hard one to make.

At end will be two lettermen, Captain Emery Barnes and fast improving John Reed. The holes at tackle will be plugged by Keith Tucker, a transfer who worked up fast, and Hal Reeve, destined for a place on the All-Coast team.

The game will be the first for Coach Casanova under the new substitution rule. A harsh penalty of 15 yards will be stepped off for any team illegally substituting a player.

Casanova's assistants this year are Jack Roche, Jr., assistant, Vern Sterling, line coach, and Johnny McKay backfield coach.
