

DUCKS, 20-12

Oregon Upsets Nebraska

MEMORIAL STADIUM, Lincoln, Neb.—University of Oregon's football team showed Nebraska and several million TV viewers that it isn't going to be a soft touch for anyone this season. Coach Len Casanova's 37-member grid squad displayed its most powerful running attack in more than a year and took advantage of every Cornhusker miscue to post a decisive 20-12 victory, Saturday, in NBC's televised "Game of the Week."

Rated as one-touchdown underdogs by most pre-game experts, the Webfoots from Eugene struck hard and fast for two touchdowns in the first quarter, and another score in the second, and then played steller defensive ball during the last half to wrap up their first opening day win in four years.

For Coach Casanova, it was the first victorious football inaugural since he took over the head football coaching duties at Santa Clara in 1946.

Saturday's grid battle was almost a carbon copy of the contest that took place in Portland a year ago—except for the winning team. In 1952, it was Nebraska who capitalized on Oregon errors to ice the game.

Saturday, it was Oregon who got the breaks, and the Ducks took full advantage of every one.

Oregon won the flip of the coin and big Emery Barnes, Oregon's captain, elected to kick off to the home team. John Bordogna, the versatile Husker tailback, took the kick on the eleven and returned to the 18 yard stripe.

Bordogna Fumbles

On Nebraska's first try from scrimmage, Bordogna took a bad pass from center and tried a run to the right. Before he could get to the line of scrimmage, he was dropped by Barnes' crushing tackle and fumbled the ball.

Alert Jack Patera flopped on the elusive ball on the enemy 16 yard marker, and it was Oregon's downs, deep in Nebraska territory, with less than two minutes elapsed.

The Webfoots' masterful field general, George Shaw, called on short and stock Cece Hodges, who covered half the distance to the goal line.

Farrell Albrighit, Duck half-back, lost to the 10, but diminutive Dick James, five foot, nine inch sophomore, scampered to a first down on the three.

It was Hodges who went the rest of the way on two tries, the last drive from the one-half yard line. Shaw's placement veered to the left.

Oregon's second TD came late in the same period, again with an assist from Nebraska.

Bad Center

Nebraska, with nineteen yards to go for a first down, was forced to kick from her own 33. The

Fulbright Act Grants Available to Graduates

Students interested in applying for 1954-55 Fulbright grants for graduate study abroad under the terms of the Fulbright act and the Buenos Aires convention should contact K. S. Ghent, foreign student adviser, this week at his office in Emerald hall.

Two University of Oregon students, Arlo W. Giles, graduate assistant in sociology, and John Gimbel, a fellow in history, are currently abroad studying under the auspices of the program.

Awards are made in the currencies of the participating countries. They cover transportation, expenses of a language refresher course or an orientation course abroad, tuition, books and maintenance for one year. The maintenance allowance is based on living costs in the country in which the study is to be made.

Applicants for study under the program should consult their major professors as to opportunities for their special studies in specific countries. Students are expected to have a study plan which can be carried out profitably in a year of study.

Selection is made on the basis of the student's personal qualifications, academic record, value of the proposed study or research and suitability for placement in an institution of higher learning abroad. Veterans receive preference when the other qualifications are equal.

Requirements for the program include United States citizenship, a college degree or its equivalent at the time the award is to be taken up, a knowledge of the language of the country sufficient to carry on the proposed study and good health.

Competitions for the current program close Oct. 31. No application forms will be issued to applicants-at-large after Oct. 15. To aid the University committee, Ghent has asked that applications be submitted by Oct. 21, with the exceptions of those for Australia and New Zealand, which must be in by Oct. 5.

Notification of the decision of the board of foreign scholarships on applications of Fulbright candidates will be sent approximately six months after the close of the competition. Notification on Buenos Aires convention applications will be sent by the U. S. state department after decisions are reached by the host governments.

Business Confab To Be on Campus

A business education conference, still in the planning stages, will be held on campus in November. Sponsoring the affair will be the University of Oregon, the Eugene Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers and neighboring school districts.

The conference will bring educators and businessmen together to discuss mutual problems involved in business growth, changing population and expanding needs of the state.

Members of the committee which is planning the conference are Victor P. Morris, acting president of the University; W. C. Ballaine, professor of business; A. B. Stillman, acting dean of the school of business; Jessie M. Smith, assistant professor of business; John Soha, associate professor of business, and C. F. Ziebarth, associate professor of business.

Non-university staff members who are working on the conference include: Fred Brenne, Eugene Chamber of Commerce; Jack Shields, manager of the Portland branch of the NAM; Clarence Hines, superintendent of Eugene schools; Tom Powers, superintendent of Bethel schools, and Superintendent Eugene E. Silke of Springfield schools.

Oregon Charges Violation by OSC

A public protest charging Oregon State college with violating the spirit, if not the letter, of the Pacific Coast conference athletic code has been made by the University of Oregon, according to Bill Bowerman, assistant athletic director.

The complaint involves a recruiting deal with Bob Clark, a football and basketball star last season for Benson high school in Portland. Clark, Bowerman said, left the University campus last Wednesday in company with four OSC students. He arrived in Eugene on Sept. 13 and had completed most of his registration work, according to the athletic department.

Investigation Asked

Three of the OSC students are said to have returned last Thursday evening to pick up Clark's effects. Clark hasn't been on the Oregon campus since, but is reported to have been at Corvallis.

Bowerman said Sunday evening, he would file the protest with Orlando J. Hollis, Oregon's PCC faculty representative and conference president. Action cannot be taken until Hollis, who is on a trip, returns to the campus, Bowerman declared. Hollis will then be asked to seek a full investigation from Conference Commissioner Victor O. Schmidt.

Codes Violated

In a statement released to the Oregonian, Bowerman said: "We are going to pursue the matter, because we feel that something like this is a violation of our conference athletic code and of our amateur sports code. We believe that Oregon State is guilty of violating the spirit of the conference when it sends representatives to another school to induce students to 'jump' that school.

"We know the names of the four Oregon State representatives, and we hope to produce evidence that these boys were representatives of the Oregon State coaching staff. If this is so, this would be in direct violation of the conference recruiting code."

Casanova Contacted

Len Casanova, head football coach, and Leo Harris, athletic director, contacted by long-distance phone Saturday night in Lincoln, Neb., told Bowerman that they both felt "appropriate action" should be taken.

Since Clark had not finished his registration, Bowerman pointed out that it was legally possible for the athlete to change his mind and enroll at another school. He would not lose his eligibility by such a move, said Bowerman.

Roy S. Keene, OSC athletic director, and Slats Gill, OSC basketball coach, both said they knew nothing of the matter when informed of the Oregon charge.

Clark was Portland All-City basketball forward and a football quarterback last year for Benson's state prep playoff finalists.

Open Houses, Teas Set for Ducklings

Although orientation officially ended with the "Hello Dance" Saturday night, new students will continue to become acquainted with campus activities, organizations and class procedure this week. Main items on the agenda this week include open houses scheduled by various organizations.

YWCA and YMCA members will host new students from 3 to 5 p.m. Wednesday. A welcome tea will be held by the YW in Gerlinger hall, and men interested in the YM will meet in Student Union 318.

"WRA on Parade" will be featured by the Women's Recreation association when new women students attend the WRA open house, Wednesday from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Oregana staff members will meet and talk to interested workers in SU 308 form 3 to 5:30 p.m. Thursday.

The Emerald open house, scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m., Thursday will acquaint new University students with both the Emerald "Shack" and the press. Refreshments will also be served when staff members and those interested in becoming staff members meet in the quonset next to Deady hall.

Oregon Graduate Appointed Dean

Mary M. Dundore, class of 1949, has been appointed dean of women at the University of Portland, according to an announcement released recently by school officials.

Miss Dundore, who holds a degree as master of arts in education from Syracuse university in addition to her bachelor of arts degree in music from Oregon, was formerly assistant dean of women and music instructor at St. Mary's college, Notre Dame, Ind.

In addition to her new duties as dean of women, Miss Dundore will teach courses in public school music, choral conducting, and mixed choral work.

Miss Dundore's sister, Joan, senior in foreign languages, is presently enrolled at the University.

Gamma Alpha Chi Selects Officers

Sally Thurston, senior in business, was elected president of Gamma Alpha Chi, women's professional advertising honorary, at elections late last spring.

Thurston Notes Rushee Jump; Program for Today Announced

Oregon's 1953 crop of rushees will top 300 by the fourth day of rushing, Sally Thurston, Panhellenic president, said today.

This exceeds last year's total of 219 rushees by more than 80 candidates.

Invitations for today's dates may be picked up at noon at Gerlinger hall. Rushees will make four half hour dates for this afternoon. Later dates will be at 4:45, 6:30 and 7:15 p.m. Campus clothes are in order for all four dates. Time of the dates Monday shows no preference, Miss Thurston said.

Rushing dates will be narrowed to two evening, preference night. Second preference will be held from 6:15 to 7:00 p.m., with first preference following from 7:15 to 8:15. Short silks are in order.

The rushees are to return to Gerlinger immediately following their last date Tuesday evening to fill out preference cards. Bids may be picked up Wednesday morning at 6 a.m. in the living room at Hendricks and at the main desk at Carson.

Women living in Hendricks Annex are to go to Hendricks for their bids. Eugene women may pick up their bids at Carson.

A breakfast at seven Wednesday morning will be held for all pledges at the respective sororities. The breakfasts will not interfere with 8 o'clock classes.

Each sorority may pledge 19 women during formal rush week this term. Only 17 pledges per sorority were allowed last year.

Announcing Crew Needed for All UO Home Ball Games

Beginning Oct. 3, all Oregon home football games will be broadcast over the state radio station KOAC by student announcers. In the past, these games have been called by professional announcers.

Auditions for students interested in announcing for the games will be held in Studio A on the third floor of Villard hall Wednesday from 3 to 5 p.m., according to E. A. Kretsinger, assistant professor of speech.

Engineers, color men, spotters and announcers will be needed, reports Kretsinger.

Adult Evening Classes Planned to Start Tonight

Classes in the University's adult evening programs sponsored by general extension division and the department of state-wide services start tonight, to continue through Dec. 5.

There are no formal requirements for admissions to the classes, except for those who are working for degrees. The public is invited to attend the first or second session of any class. Registration and payment of fees must be completed by the end of the second week of the term.

The registration fee for night students is $6 per credit hour or class hour. A few of the courses carry special service or laboratory fees in addition.

Classes offered in the evening classes program include: contemporary economic problems, improvement of reading for adults, reading in the elementary school, methods in woodworking, a seminar on teachers' uses of social agencies and principles and techniques of speech correction offered on Monday evenings.

General geology, Oregon history, law for laymen, music appreciation, elementary logic, intermediate Spanish and physical science survey are offered on Tuesday. Principles of salesmanship, audio-visual aids, first-year Spanish and public speaking for business and professional men and women will be given Wednesday evenings.

Thursday evening classes include ceramics, lower division painting, radio education, history of western civilization, body conditioning for women and photography.
