

Ducks Practice Aerial Attack

Spirit ran high Tuesday as Coach Casanova sent his squad through an extensive drill in preparation for Saturday's fracas with the Stanford Indians at Palo Alto.

The Ducks' passing game was emphasized as George Shaw and Barney Holland concentrated on their short aeriels. The linemen formed pockets for the passers as the third team attempted to stop the plays.

Heavy contact work was short but rugged. The first two squads ran their plays against the Stanford utilized six-two-two-one defense.

Fullback Cece Hodges, who is suffering from a slightly strained neck, didn't suit up for practice, but is expected to be set by Saturday.

Casanova was especially pleased by the playing of Hal Reeve. He played a total of 461 minutes last year and was named to several

Hal was featured on the televised preview of the Nebraska game and his later performances measured up to the publicity.

The team will leave Eugene Thursday evening aboard the Southern Pacific Cascade and will arrive in San Francisco for a drill at Kezar stadium and then continue to Palo Alto.

K-2 Climber Set For Talk, Slides

One of the party of eight mountain climbers who tried unsuccessfully to climb Mt. Godwin Austen last summer will lecture and show slides Friday night at 8 p.m. at Roosevelt Junior high school.

Doe Molenaar, from Seattle, who was one of three Northwest men on the exhibition, will show some of the 1,500 colored pictures which he took on the attempt at the second highest mountain in the world.

The mountain, also called K-2, defied the assault of the eight climbers, who were stopped at the 25,000 feet mark. Bad weather and the death of one of the mountaineers forced the party to turn back, 3,250 feet from the summit. The peak is located in Pakistan.

Prices for the lecture and slides are 75 cents for university students and adults, 25 cents for children under 12, and 35 cents for high school students.

Manager Needed

"There is still one vacancy open for the job of football manager," says Jim Schroeder, head football student manager.

No Slice in Number Of Student Grid Seats

There will be no decrease in the number of student seats for the University of Oregon's home games at Hayward field; instead, the student section will be shifted about thirty feet to the south in the east stands.

Previously, the students were seated in the three middle sections of the stands, with the reserved seats split on each side. The new arrangement, states Athletic Business Manager Ted L. Bouck, will put all the reserved ticket holders in one section and also enable the students to have a stronger yell section.

Reserved Seats

The reserved seats will take up the rest of the east stands and all the west side of the stadium. The reserved seats, likewise will be divided into special sections for season ticket holders, donors to the grants-in-aid program, and faculty ticket holders. The lettermen will be seated in the north quarter of the west stands.

All remaining spots in Hayward field, including the bleachers behind the two end zones and the bleachers down low in front of the two sides, will be sold as general admission.

Bouck states, however, that at the present time, there are no general admission tickets for the UCLA game, Oct. 3, or the Oregon State homecoming game, Nov. 21.

All Seats Reserved

All available seats for these contests will be reserved, and won't go on sale as general admission unless they remain till the day of the game. For the OSC contest, the ducats will sell for $5 in the stands and $4 in the bleachers. For UCLA, the prices will be $4 and $3.

Reserved seats for the two other home games, San Jose State and Idaho, will sell for a straight $3 price.

The proposed new bleachers will not be added until next year, Bouck also said. This leaves Hayward field with a capacity of 23,000.
