

BUNION WINNER

Prizes Announced

A rotating trophy and records donated by the Graves Music and Art company will be awarded to the men's living organization which has the largest percentage of men participating in Friday's Bunion Derby, reports Barbara Wilcox, general chairman.

Winner in the women's contest, based upon the living organization which collects the most money per capita, will receive records from the Appliance Center.

Starting at 7 p.m., the annual Derby will last until 10:30. There will be seven minutes of dancing at each of the 21 women's houses, with a three minute break in between.

Dress for the traditional invasion by hordes of men is to be casual, with campus clothes in order according to Miss Wilcox.

Money collected from the affair, the nickel per dance contributed by the men, goes to the Associated Women Students scholarship fund. Over $449 was collected at last year's Derby.

Pairings for living organizations will be listed in Friday's Emerald. Each men's organization is to start with the women's organization with which is paired and continue on down the list to the point where it started. To be eligible for the awards they must attend each house in the specified order.

Women's living organizations will mark off on a tally sheet the men's groups as they arrive. Members of the collection committee will collect this list with the money Saturday morning.

Court Application Deadline Extended

Petition deadline for membership on the student court has been extended to 5 p.m. Monday, according to Chairman Carl Weber. Three vacancies exist on the court.

Application for the positions must be made on ASOU petition blanks which may be picked up outside Student Union 301. The petitions should be submitted to the ASOU office SU 304.

Appointment to the student court is for the length of time the student stays in school, Weber said.

Athletic Cards Available Now

Athletic cards for fall term will be issued for the remainder of the week at the ticket office in McArthur court, according to the athletic department.

The office is open from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m. through Friday. Fall term registration cards must be presented to obtain the athletic cards.

The new athletic cards are of a different design than those of past years. In order to more readily identify students, the card bears the height, weight and age of the holder.

First Meeting Set By IFC Council

The Inter Fraternity Council will hold its first meeting of fall term today at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Union.

Fraternity presidents are asked by IFC President Con Sheffer to bring estimates of the number of men that will be living in fraternities at the beginning of fall term, 1954.

How High Is Deady?

Today's undergraduates in England, feeling that pantry raids and goldfish-swallowing are beneath their dignity, have adopted "stegophilism" as an extra-curricular diversion.

From the Greek, stego, meaning roof, and philos, meaning crazy about roofs. They climb roofs and anything available that happens to be higher, such as the Martyr's Memorial, Oxford's 73-foot lesser peak; the 200-foot Radcliffe Camera, which is Oxford's Matterhorn; and the even higher Tom Tower, which is Oxford's Mt. Everest.

Cambridge has its famous summits, too, as do other British institutions of higher learning.

The stegophilists operate by night, for the exercise of their hobby is strictly forbidden by educational authorities. The fact that they face expulsion if caught adds excitement not found in the climbing of the Alps themselves.

Wednesday Marks Open Rush Start

Open rush for University of Oregon women will begin next Wednesday, Panhellenic President Sally Thurston announced yesterday. Sororities may continue to rush until their quotas are filled, she said.

Women interested in open rushing may sign up in the office of women's affairs in Emerald hall.

Of the 315 women who signed up for formal rush, 79 dropped rushing. These women are eligible for open rush, Miss Thurston said.

'The Man' Play Due For Bonus

"The Man," Mel Dellini's suspense drama under the direction of Glen Starlin, instructor in speech, will be presented Friday and Saturday nights as a bonus show for holders of University theater season tickets.

The show was presented on campus as the last of the theater's summer season, and this run will feature Ken Olsen and Tru Vosberg in their original leading roles.

Other members of the cast will be Audrey Mistretta, Clarence Sutor, Robert Ross and Paul Maier. According to Mrs. Gene Wiley, theater business manager, seats will not be reserved. Admission will be by season tickets at the door, she said.

Registration Shows Present Decrease

With enrollment totals 220 below those of last year on the corresponding day, officials of the University of Oregon have been reluctant to draw any conclusions concerning the considerably increased enrollment at Portland State college.

Total enrollment at Oregon on the second day this year was 3648 as compared to the figure of 3868 reached on the second day in 1952. Enrollment for the fall term last year eventually totaled 4231.

These figures are inconclusive, for they do not include most of the graduate students, students whose jobs have kept them working late or the more than 100 grant-in-aid athletes whose fees have not yet been given to the registrar.

OSC Drops Too

At Oregon State college enrollment figures showed a decrease of 47 over the corresponding day a year ago and 420 from the final number of 4492.

Figures at Portland State, however, showed an increase of over

Election, Reports On Tonight's Slate For ASUO Senate

The ASUO senate will hold its first meeting of the year at 6:30 tonight in the Student Union. The agenda includes the election of a secretary from the group and reports of several committees.

A report on the Northwest Federation of Collegiate Leaders will be given and the report on orientation is also to be presented. ASUO Pres. Tom Wrightson will present his appointments to the cabinet and other ASUO groups for approval.

Wrightson announced that petitions for the two vacancies on the senate, sophomore and junior representatives, will be due next Thursday.

Piggers Guide Set For October Sale

Publication of the 1953-54 Pigger's Guide is scheduled for late October, according to Editor Paul Keefe. The campus directory will be sold on campus for 50 cents.

A staff of eight is now working on the booklet which features general campus information as well as complete student and faculty directories, Keefe said. The new guide will be approximately the same size as last year's edition which was 100 pages, he revealed.

Cover design of the directory will remain a secret until the day of the publication, said Keefe. The cover has been designed by Bruce Shaffer, graduate in architecture. Shaffer did the cover and art work in the 1953 Oregana.

200 from the 1300 expected. Budgets for all three of the institutions were prepared in expectation of enrollments equal to those of last year.

Dean J. F. Cramer of Portland State has notified Chancellor Charles F. Byrne of a need for 15 new instructors. Seven of the 15 have already been arranged for, with six more available, according to Cramer. The new instructors are on a wage basis with a possibility of conversion to an annual salary.

Space Needed

Greatest pinch in the system, reports Cramer, is being felt in the required freshmen courses, particularly English composition, English literature and physical education. Space for the physical education classes is also unable to meet the needs of the increased enrollment.

Chancellor Byrne spent Wednesday checking on the possibility of a plea to the governor and the state emergency board to raise more money for teachers needed at Portland State. The money may be found in existing budgets should system-wide enrollments remain about the same. In such a case, the board would be able to shift already budgeted funds to provide for the new instruction.

Total Unchanged

Under the new rules set up by the last legislature, the request for new teachers was carried by Cramer first to Byrne. After approval by the chancellor and state board it will be submitted to the governor.

Second-day figures for the system as a whole, despite the drops at Oregon and Oregon State, were still running about the same as a year ago. Final enrollment last year totaled 12,919, with 10,904 registered on the second day as compared with 10,866 this year.

Publications Hold Open House Today

New students will have an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the two major campus publications when the Oregana and the Emerald hold open houses today.

Staff members of the Oregana will be on hand to serve refreshments to interested students from 3 to 5:30 p.m. in the Oregana offices, Student Union 308. Information about staff vacancies and the possibility of work on the annual will be available at that time, according to Editor Bob Ford.

The quonset next to Deady hall, known to Emerald staff members as the "shack," will be open to interested students from 7 to 10 this evening. Refreshments will also be served.

Students will be able to meet Emerald upper staff members as well as see the operation of the campus daily. Information about staff vacancies will be available, and a trip to the University Press has been planned, according to Editor Al Karr.

Prep Schools To See Talent

High school performances are to be the most important part of the exchange assembly schedule for the coming year according to Gloria Lee, exchange committee director. The usual OSC and Willamette performances will be funds for out-of-state trips, she said.

This year's exchange assembly will be directed by an exchange assembly committee under the leadership of Gloria Lee and her co-director Patrick Henry. This new committee will take over the functions of the ASUO entertainment commission which handled the exchange program last year. The change has been made for the purpose of creating a smaller and more specialized body which will devote its time exclusively to the exchange assembly, said Miss Lee.

Petitions for secretary, business manager and stage manager of the exchange assembly committee will be called for within the next two weeks. Tryouts for the assembly itself will be scheduled within a month, she added.

Danny Grad Most Beautiful Teacher Runner-up

by Jackie Wardell
Emerald Managing Editor

The "second most beautiful teacher in the United States" is now on the Oregon campus, but she's not teaching.

She is Joan Hutchon, a 22-year-old Pennsylvania State college graduate here as a Danforth fellow working with campus religious groups. During her year as a "Danny Grad" Miss Hutchon will give her assistance to the University Religious council, the two Y groups and the Religious Emphasis week committee.

Her main interest is in establishing a campus chapel. "Your campus has everything else," she said. "We think a chapel would be an important addition."

Students Appreciate Her

But religious work won't be her only activity if her second place finish in a national contest to find the nation's loveliest teachers, sponsored by the radio show "Our Miss Brooks" is any indication. An English major with an education minor, the blue eyed blonde was entered in the contest by her pupils.

During her four years of college she was a member of Mortar Board, president of the Associated Women Students and Kappa Alpha Theta, and chairman of the Penn State equivalent of Oregon's Religious Evaluation week.

As a result of her college activities, Miss Hutchon was selected as the American Magazine "Coed of the Month" during her junior year. "And I developed a philosophy that might sound peculiar for me," she added. "I don't think any one person should try to do so much."

There are at present 16 "Danny Grads," not more than one from a state or more than one in a state. Most college campuses have what Miss Hutchon termed "Danforth associates" connected with the religious activities on campus. These associates recommend possible students to become Danforth fellows — the outstanding 16 eventually being selected.

"It is extremely unusual for any campus to have a "Danny Grad" two years in succession," Miss Hutchon said. However, the committee felt that there was still much work to be done on the Oregon campus and the University expressed a request for a second representative.

Last year's Oregon "Danny Grad," Jean Fuller of Ohio, is currently working with the American Friends Service Program in Mexico.

Miss Hutchon, who comes from Washington, D.C., expressed a certain disappointment in Eugene. Hearing about the lumbering industry in the Northwest, she had expected to find the city located in a heavier forest region with more trees in the city itself.

She's prepared for the famous Oregon rain—"I got my first raincoat for graduation, maybe that's why the committee sent me to Oregon." She thinks she'll like the rain.

Miss Hutchon added that she was especially interested in working with "Oregon's international settlement," commenting that the Oregon attitude toward the foreign students was one of the best she'd seen.

"I think the international students can give the average American undergraduate a better education than he can get anywhere else," she said. She has worked for three years in a state department sponsored program for foreign students in Washington, D.C.

During her stay here she's living on the fifth floor of Carson hall. Miss Hutchon will audit a few courses, follow an extensive reading program and "always be available for a chat" in addition to her work with the religious groups.
