

Religious Notes

Westminster House, the campus Presbyterian organization, will start its activities for the year with a vesper service, led by Germain La Marche, sophomore in liberal arts, at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Following the service will be a fireside discussion with the topic "Youth at Work." Serving on the panel are Randy Middleton, junior in liberal arts; Myrla Thomas, junior in liberal arts; Keith Heller, graduate student in business; Gail West, sophomore in business; and Bob Dean, senior in general science.

Wednesday evening a fellowship supper will be held at 5:30. Refreshments and a social hour with a discussion of the student counseling service led by J. S. Carlson, director of admissions and counseling, will follow at 7:30. At the same time a study group will meet with Alburey Castell, head of the philosophy department.

University students who are members of the First Christian church will be guests at a supper meeting at 5 p.m. Sunday at Christian House.

General chairman of the affair is Betty Myers, senior in English. Winona Fishback, senior in business, will be master of ceremonies.

Wednesday Deadline Set For SU Petitions

The deadline for submitting petitions for the 10 Student Union committees has been extended to Wednesday, according to John Shaffer, personnel committee chairman. A meeting of the petitioners will be held at a later date.

Petitions are being called for chairman of the Student Union movie committee, according to SU board chairman Andy Berwick. Deadline for receipt of the petitions is 5 p.m. Wednesday, he said.

"Young Man With a Horn," the first of a series of movies sponsored by the Student Union board, will be shown in the SU ballroom at 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission price is 30 cents. Featured in the movie, the life story of a jazz musician, are Kirk Douglas, Lauren Bacall, Doris Day and Hoagy Carmichael.

Faculty Members Attend Conclaves

Visits to various groups throughout the country have taken three members of the University of Oregon faculty from the campus this week.

Sidney Little, dean of the school of architecture and allied arts, was the main speaker at a joint conference of school architects and superintendents of Washington state held this week in Seattle. The two day conference was under the supervision of the state department of public instruction.

A national education convention in New York City is being attended by Donald E. Tope, professor of education.

Student Assembly Schedule Released

A partial list of assemblies for this year was released Thursday by the University Assembly and Lecture committee.

A labor party member of the British parliament, Victor Yates, will speak on "Parliament from the Inside," on Oct. 15. Yates is traveling throughout the U. S. sponsored by the American Friends Service committee.

Mac Lerner of the New York Post will speak on Oct. 20. His topic will be announced later. T. Z. Koo, authority on China and Formosa, will speak on Nov. 24. His topic to be announced. His U. S. tour is sponsored by the YMCA.

A repeat of a 1952 double program is scheduled for this year with a representative of management and another on labor speaking on separate dates. On Feb. 9, T. S. Peterson, president of Standard Oil of California, will speak in behalf of management. The labor representative and the date he will appear will be announced later.

Arrangements have also been completed for one of the coming year's evening lecturers. He will be Henry Allen Moe, secretary general of the Guggenheim foundation, speaking on Oct. 29.

SU Board Votes Co-Sponsorship

The Student Union board Wednesday afternoon voted to make the two musical attractions offered this year in co-sponsorship with the Failing Distinguished Lecture series free to the university family and Eugene townspeople.

The Failing group will pay the fees of the Budapest String quartet, which will appear Jan. 21, and the Mount Angel choir, scheduled to sing here Feb. 28. The SU board will handle ticket and house costs.

The board also vetoed a motion to bring a modern dance group to the campus in December because of lack of an adequate auditorium for the program.

The board budget, presented by treasurer Bob Koutek, was approved by the group. Original budget expenses for 1953-54 are estimated at $5,181.

New Chairman Named

Board chairman Andy Berwick named Jackie Steuart, junior in liberal arts, as temporary movie committee chairman to replace former chairman Bill Swenson who didn't return to school this fall.

Desk space in the third floor of the SU was allotted to eight organizations by Berwick. New groups which petitioned and received space are the Pigger's Guide, assigned the Special Events office until Nov. 15, and IRC, which will share the Panhellenic office. Other groups allotted offices are Yeomen, Student Traffic court, Rally board, AWS, Panhellenic and Coed council.

A request from the University of Oregon Mothers' club to change the date of Junior Weekend next spring to May 14, 15 and 16 was presented by director of student affairs Donald DuShane. The Mothers' group wanted the event held a week later than usual so that mothers could spend Mother's day with their families and not miss the campus weekend festivities. No action on the request was taken by the board.

Vacancies Announced

Board vacancies from the physical education and graduate school were announced by Berwick, who asked Virginia Dailey to contact the school's deans for names of new representatives. Berwick also announced the appointment of Pat Gustin, senior in business, to the assembly committee.

A board-sponsored Leadership Training program will be given further study before any definite plans are made setting up such a program, Virginia Dailey reported.
