

Group Insurance Available Friday

Additional students and faculty members may sign up for the ASUO sponsored group accident coverage Friday in the SU, when the insurance committee, headed by Wes Ball, will maintain a table for that purpose.

Late registrants and others who have not yet had an opportunity to buy the insurance have necessitated this re-establishment of the desk for one day, said Ball.

The plans pay all expenses such as doctor bills, hospital bills, medical fees, nursing charges and other incidentals, up to $500 on any one accident, at a group cost of $4.50 for an entire 12-month period. Ball stressed that this fee included vacation periods, and added that the services could also be purchased at a one-term fee of $1.50.

Students and faculty who will not be able to purchase their insurance Friday may do so by filling out one of the application blanks left at Emerald hall's business office for that purpose. These applications are to be mailed to the Mutual of Omaha insurance office at 992 Willamette st.

RE Week Petitions Needed by Oct. 9

Deadline for petitions for Religious Evaluation week is Oct. 9, according to Barbara Swanson, chairman. Chairmen are needed for the personal conference, assemblies, and arrangements committees.

Members are also needed for the following committees: arrangements, assemblies, book display, classroom, finance, fireside, hospitality, luncheon, personal conference, promotion, publicity, Sunday night dinner, and worship. 'Juno' Tryouts Tonight, 7-9.

Sean O'Casey's modern drama "Juno and the Paycock," will be the second major production for the University theater's current season. Tryouts for the Irish drama will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. today in Villard 102, according to Frederick J. Hunter, director.

The play features six roles for women and 13 for men. Copies of the play may be borrowed from Mr. Hunter's office, Villard 213.

J-School Groups Form Press Club; To Meet Tuesday

A University Press club for all students interested in the news-editorial-photography portions of newspaper, radio, and magazine work will hold its first organizational meeting next week.

The club will be sponsored by two journalism fraternities, Theta Sigma Phi and Sigma Delta Chi. Membership will be open to all university students, regardless of year or major.

The first meeting will be held in the Student Union at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. In addition to organizational details it will feature a report on the East German uprising in Berlin last June, when East Germans revolted against Soviet domination.

Speakers will be Jurgen Dobberke and Lothar Loewe, both from Berlin newspapers and both special journalism students here for their paper this year. They covered the revolt of the Soviet line of demarcation between eastern and western Berlin several times in the process. Dobberke will show photographs he took of action during the riots.

The Press club will meet on the first Tuesday night of each month during fall quarter. The November meeting will have as its speaker Robert B. Frazier, prize-winning star reporter of the Eugene Register-Guard, who has recently

UIS Constitution To Be Ratified

United Independent Students, campus political party, will meet at 3:30 today in the Student Union to ratify its new constitution and to lay plans for the coming year. Interested independent students have been invited to attend by President Hollis Ransom.

Members last week decided to poll independent students to discover how their representatives in student government should act, Ransom said. Norma Glazier and Bruce Bloomfield volunteered to take charge of preliminary arrangements and will report today.

A committee to make final revision of the proposed constitution included Gordon Rice and John Vasbys, and Ransom.

A secretariat has been formed and at present includes Jim Murray, Lois Larsen, Germaine La Marche and Dennis Davis.

Russ Cowell will report today on the financial condition of the organization.

Admission Exams Offered Fall Only For Med School

The medical college admission test, required of all students wishing to enter a medical college will be given only during the fall term this year, according to the science department.

The test must be taken during the final year of pre-medical studies in order to gain admittance to any medical school which is a member of the Association of American Medical Colleges. It was formerly given in the spring also but beginning this year Oregon will offer it Nov. 2 only, while Oregon State college will give it during spring term.

All applications for the test must be mailed to Princeton, N.J., before Oct. 19. Further information may be obtained by inquiry at the science building office.

Senate Will Hear Petitioners Tonight

Two seniors and ten sophomores have petitioned for the two vacancies on the ASUO senate and will be interviewed at tonight's senate meeting which begins at 6:30 in the Student Union. Three petitions for Homecoming chairmen were received and petitioners for this position will also be interviewed tonight.

Dick Hollenbeck and Ben Schmidt are the seniors seeking spots on the senate. Sophomore senate aspirants are Gwen Zinniger, Jane Bergstrom, Jackie Jones, Edna Humiston, Sharlene

Stewart, Barbara Gilpin, Gordon Rice, Bud Hinkson, Martin Brandfels and Jerry Farrow.

Homecoming chairman petitions were submitted by Russell Cowell and Robert Kelly, sophomores and a co-chairman petition by Dorothy Kopp and Bob Pollock.

The senate agenda will also include a report on orientation by the chairman, AWS President Judy McLoughlin; a report from the Millrace committee by E. G. Ebbighausen, associate professor of physics and faculty member of the senate; a discussion of the proposed campus chimes by Dick Williams, Student Union director; presentation of the budget by ASUO Pres. Tom Wrightson and discussion of the graduate student amendment.

Warren Appointed U. S. Chief Justice

(AP) - Governor Earl Warren of California was named Chief Justice of the United States Wednesday by President Eisenhower. Warren succeeds Fred M. Vinson, who died of a heart attack Sept. 8. His formal nomination will be sent to the Senate when it reconvenes in January.

Warren will be the second Republican on the bench. The 14th man in history to hold the post, Warren has been governor of California for 10 years. His present term does not expire until January, 1955. Lt. Gov. Goodwin Knight will assume Warren's former office.

Ex-Emerald Ed Heads Journal

Arden X. Pangborn, 1929-30 editor of the Emerald, was named Tuesday as editor of the Oregon Journal. Taking over his duties about Nov. 1, he will also serve as vice-president and a director of the Journal Publishing company.

Pangborn, who served as Emerald editor during his sophomore year at the University, succeeds the late P. L. Jackson, who was editor and publisher until his death in February. He will assume supervision of the Journal's news and editorial departments and its editorial page.

A versatile journalist, Pangborn served on the Oregonian staff as general reporter, editor, city editor, executive news editor and managing editor.

Embossograph Made Available

The embossograph machine, owned by the Student Union, again will be made available to use by all campus agencies, the SU board voted Wednesday afternoon.

The equipment previously has been used by all groups, but it reverted to the SU board last spring term because of mishandling of the machine.

Included in the 3-part motion are: 1. hiring a student as the embossograph operator, who will be paid on a commission basis; 2. setting deadlines for poster orders from campus groups, and 3. charging a nominal fee to cover depreciation of the machine and operator costs.

The board added that the Student Union publicity committee will continue to be allowed to operate the machine, in addition to the paid operator.

Operator to be Hired

Members of the executive committee will have charge of hiring an operator and putting the embossograph room into operation.

In other board business, Barbara Wilcox, sophomore in liberal arts, was selected as movie committee chairman. Miss Wilcox, who has been serving as acting chairman of the committee since September, won the position over Carol David, sophomore in liberal arts, the only other petitioner.

Proposal to Rebuild 'O' Under Consideration

THIS LAST SPRING REPAIR ATTEMPT FAILED

by Anne Ritchey
Emerald Feature Editor

As soon as men's rushing is over there is going to be some action taken on the Oregon "O" atop Skinner's Butte.

According to Ray Hawk, director of men's affairs, a proposal for reconstruction will be made at the first Inter-fraternity council meeting, in conjunction with the ASUO senate, and the proposal will be submitted to the city council of Eugene.

The reason for all the concern about the "O" by top officials of both the University and the city dates back, most recently, to last spring term. As usual, the "O" had been cleaned and painted in connection with Junior Weekend activities. Under the general chairmanship of Milan Foster, the members of Delta Upsilon fraternity had undertaken the job.

The rejuvenation process went off smoothly and with no more conflict than usual, until pranksters, said to have been from Oregon State college, decided to cause trouble. They set off several series of dynamite blasts, the most effective of which changed the "O" into a perfect "C," and then they painted it orange.

The dynamitings were quite severe, and one of them scattered cement and stone into the lawns of neighboring houses, with the result that 123 indignant citizens presented a petition requesting its complete removal.

This petition was taken before the city council, then under the direction of Oren King, city manager. Attending the meeting as a representative of the student body was Craig Weatherford, who had served on the repair committee.

At this meeting, held at the end of spring term, the council decided upon a policy which will govern all such matters in the future, and which the University is taking into consideration now as a proposal is being formulated.

This policy, in King's words, is and will be that we "don't want the 'O' obliterated, but we must face the realistic problem of pacifying the citizenry." This would seem to indicate that there must be some change in the construction of the controversial object, and with this in mind a student committee, formed last spring, named two alternatives.

One is that the "O" could be made of tin or a light sheet metal, and fastened securely to the ground. This would discourage dynamite attempts, as would the other alternative, which is that it could be made of wood, instead
