

Webfoots Depart for Cougar Clash

The University of Oregon football squad finished preparations for this Saturday's tussle with Washington State with a short but snappy drill Thursday afternoon. The Ducks will depart for Pullman late Friday morning.

Coach Len Casanova ran his charges through an extensive defensive session again Thursday in an effort to have the Webfoots well prepared for the Cougars' Michigan-style single wing attack. A team made up of second and third stringers attempted to imitate W. S. C. formations in order to give the Ducks an idea of what they would be encountering Saturday.

Also, some time was spent running through offensive formations. The Webfoots seemed to have plenty of fire and looked to be in high spirits for the coming game.

Cougars Weak Defensively

In view of the fact that in games thus far the Cougars have demonstrated little defensive strength the Ducks will no doubt try every play they know in an effort to run their hosts into a state of confusion early in the game.

In their first two games Oregon showed a very potent rushing attack and in last Saturday's battle with UCLA they came out with a much improved aerial game. Whether the Ducks will try to run against the Cougars or elect to take to the air to gain their yardage is a question which will not be answered until Saturday. If Casanova chooses to concentrate on the ground game in the early stages of the tussle, Dick James, Farrell Albright, and Cece Hodges will probably do most of the ball packing. If he decides to open up with lots of passes George Shaw will do the throwing. Shaw sparkled in the last game and has looked good in practices again this week. When Mr. Shaw is having a good game he can give his opponents all kinds of trouble.

Kircher Switches Line-up

On the other side of the fence, Al Kircher, Washington State coach, has made up several switches in his starting line-up in an effort to find a winning combination. Ever since he came to W. S. C. his teams have been noted for their strong passing attacks so the Webfoots can expect lots of aerials when they take the field against the Cougars. Bob Burkhardt, the chunky tailback with the sling-shot arm, will do most of the passing for the host eleven.

Both teams will go into the game with comeback aspirations in mind. The Ducks and Cougars have identical seasonal records thus far, each having won one game and lost two. W. S. C. dropped their opener to Southern California, 29-13, but came back in their second fray to edge out a strong College of Pacific eleven, 26-20. Last week-end the Cougars were completely smothered by the Iowa Hawkeyes, 54-12.

Oregon started out their season with an upset, 20-12, victory over Nebraska but lost their next two games, to Stanford, 7-0, and to UCLA, 12-0.

By comparing these scores one comes to the conclusion that this game should just about be rated a toss-up. The breaks could play a very important part in the game.
