Washington Hopes to Stay 'Up' For Stadium Contest

SEATTLE (Special) - Their football fortunes definitely on the upswing after a stunning 13-13 upset tie with Southern California last weekend, the Washington Huskies hope to keep them that way Saturday afternoon when they meet Oregon's aerial-minded Ducks at Multnomah Stadium in Portland.

The Huskies probably will enter the 1:30 kickoff as a slight favorite to win their fifth straight game from the Ducks after having outplayed the mighty Trojans throughout last Saturday afternoon. The Ducks, meanwhile, were losing to Washington State, 7-0.

Pin Hopes on Shaw

Oregon will pin its hopes on the needle-point passes of junior George Shaw, versatile T-quarterback, and on the shifty running of sophomore halfback Dick James. The Duck offense, one of the most dangerous potentially on the Pacific Coast, has failed to generate much punch once past the opponent's 20-yard line in the last three outings, but Coach Johnny Cherberg and his staff have a wholesome respect for it and plan to work long and hard this week perfecting a defense against it.

Oregon opened the season with a 20-12 win over Nebraska in a nationally-televized game, and then were barely edged by Stanford 7-0 and by powerful UCLA 12-0 before losing to the Cougars. Their three-game touchdown drought has Coach Len Casanova worried, but the personable Duck mentor hopes to break the ice Saturday.

No Bad Injuries

Meanwhile, Cherberg's biggest task will be in keeping his Huskies in the same physical and mental condition they're in right now. The team came out of the USC battle with nothing more than bumps and bruises, plus what amounts to little short of heartbreak at their failure to dump the Trojans. The Purple and Golders outplayed the Los Angelenos all afternoon and were forced to settle for a tie only because of a long punt return and another long runback of a pass interception.

The Huskies' ace in the hole this year, in sharp contrast to recent seasons, is in their defensive play. After righting themselves from the 50-0 Michigan setback the Huskies have given up only 158 yards and eight first downs in two games. There probably isn't a coach in the country who wouldn't settle for that kind of performance.

Working on Offense

Coach Cherberg has his worries on offense, though, and he'll concentrate this week on trying to strengthen the Huskies' running game to the outside. On Monday, he had left halfback Bob McNamee, a sophomore whose running was an outstanding feature of the USC battle, and right halfback Corky Bridges operating in the fullback post. Both likely will see action there, as well as at their original assignments.

The Washington line came in for great praise after the USC tie for the way it outcharged the Trojan wall throughout the contest. From end to end—Jim Houston, Duane Wardlow, Jim Noe, Milt Bohart, Dean Chambers, Jim Warsinske—the Huskies repulsed every USC offensive thrust while paving the way for their own backs to roll up some sizeable gains on the ground.

hard running of Jack Kyllingstad and McNamee, and the all-around play of Stewart Crook were praised by coaches, writers and fans alike last weekend.

Cherberg doesn't plan any changes in his starting lineup against the Ducks, although his opening calls at end probably hinge upon the toss of the coin. Should the Huskies kick-off, Warsinske and Houston probably will go first; otherwise it would be Doug McClary and George Black.

The Huskies' traveling party, which includes 37 players, will leave Seattle-Tacoma airport Friday afternoon at 12:20 and will arrive in Portland at 1 o'clock in time for a workout at Multnomah Stadium. The Huskies will stay at the Antler and Engelwood Motels in southwest Portland and will return Saturday night by plane at 7:00 p.m., arriving at Seattle-Tacoma airport at 7:50.

Nestor Wins Frosh IM Title

Nestor Hall of Vets Dorm I won the Freshman intramural championship yesterday as they downed the Merrick hall seven in a hard fought contest on IM field one. The final score was tied 19-19, but Nestor had more first downs than Merrick, and so won the game.

game from Delta Tau Delta on first downs, with the Fijis having five, and the Delts none. It looked as though the Delts would win the contest until the Fijis scored in the last 11 seconds of the contest to tie it 6-6 and win on first downs.

The Frenchmen from French hall squeezed by Susan Campbell I in the first game on the IM field. The final score in this contest was 7-6, with Fred Bell doing most of the signal calling for French, and Lee Bond flipping Suzy's touchdown aerial.

Alpha Tau Omega downed their opponents, Phi Kappa Sigma by a score of 13-0 in the second game on the IM field. Johnny Keller was the passing star for the ATO's in the contest.

There were two forfeitures yesterday, as Campbell club and Stitzer hall won over their opponents, Sigma hall, and Susan Campbell II, respectively.

Versatile Len Berrie Plays At End, Tackle

By John Cary

Emerald Sports Writer

Another unsung lineman gets top billing this week in the person of Len Berrie, the talented grinder from Portland's Grant high.

The versatile Berrie is back at his old end position after performing at tackle for the Ducks last year. The 6'1", 203 pounder played both offense and defense last year, so the new substitution rule hasn't bothered him much.

Berrie is one of the many Grant high products now performing for the Lemon and Green. He graduated from there in 1950, and was named to the Shrine All-Star team that summer.

Berrie played end throughout his high school career, a position he undoubtedly prefers, but he gave a good account of himself at tackle last year when he was shifted over to that position by Coach Len Casanova. He was also a track letterman in high school, specializing in the shot. Last spring he was one of Track Coach Bill Bowerman's shotputters, and earned himself a varsity letter in track.

Berrie's activities do not end when he leaves the athletic field. He is a member of the Air Force ROTC, and is president of his fraternity, Phi Kappa Psi.

The 22 year old senior, who is a social science major, will graduate next spring, and his services are going to really be missed by Casanova and Bowerman.
