

Ducks Set For Huskies

Oregon Gridders Look for Revenge

In hopes of being able to stop the Washington Huskies' wide open style of play the University of Oregon football squad drilled once again on defensive maneuvers during their last big work-out, Thursday afternoon, before their Saturday tussle with Johnny Cherberg's high flying eleven.

When the Ducks tramp onto Portland's Multnomah stadium turf for their 1:30 p.m. encounter they will be searching for their first victory in Pacific Coast conference play. So far the hustling warriors of Coach Len Casanova have had little success against league opponents and are therefore quite anxious to break into the win column this week end.

Webfoots Underdogs

The Webfoots will enter the Husky tilt as a one to two touchdown underdog. However, it is the consensus of opinion that if the Oregons can find a much needed scoring punch they could very easily be too much for Washington to handle.

Washington has a one won and one tied record in conference play and definitely is in the running for Rose Bowl honors this year. They will have to defeat Oregon this Saturday to keep their championship hopes alive, however.

On the other hand the Ducks, by virtue of their three straight losses, are completely out of the championship picture.

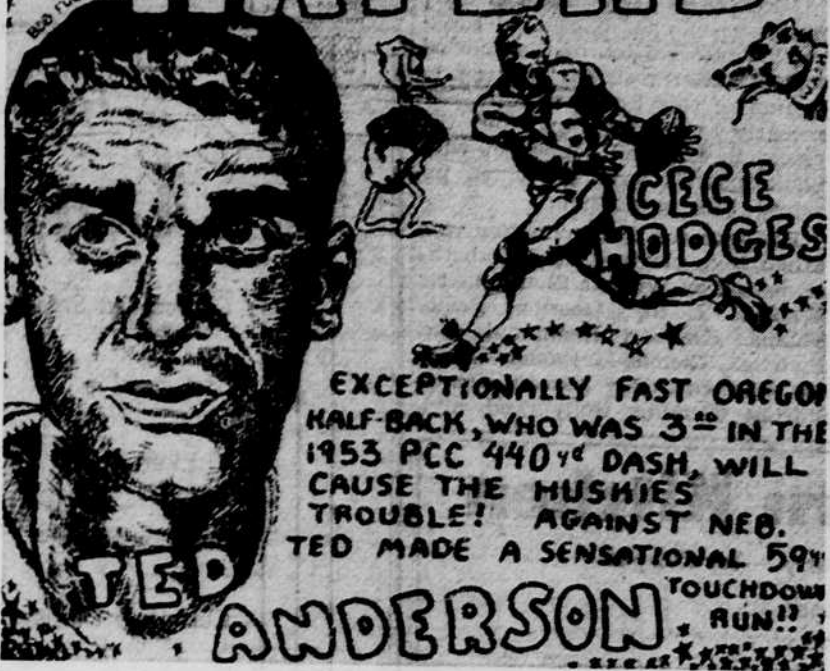

Of inspiration to the Webfoot team is the memory of their last two games with Washington. Many of the Ducks very well remember just two years ago when the Huskies, led by Hurring Hugh McElhenny, literally swamped them, 63-6, on the same field that the two teams will be playing on Saturday. Last year in Seattle with quarterback Don Heinrich leading the way Washington murdered Len Casanova's squad, 49-0.

Huskies Pour It On

In both of these encounters the Seattleites poured it on with every weapon of their system. In the 1951 game McElhenny was still in the Washington backfield during the last quarter when the game was already far out of reach for Oregon. Why the Huskies wanted to run up such a big score against them has been puzzling the Ducks for some time now. There seems to be no humane answer as far as the Webfoots are concerned.

In the Thursday practice it appeared as though Casanova plans a few changes in his starting line-up. With left halfback Dick James still hampered by a bad ankle it looks like Ted Anderson will take his place on the starting eleven. James will probably see some ac-

SAE, Phi Delts Win

Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Delta Theta will meet next Tuesday afternoon for the intramural football championship of 1953 by virtue of their victories Thursday in the semi-finals.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon continued its winning ways by slapping down Hale Kane, 18-6. Rex Davis was the hero for SAE.

Davis threw two touchdown passes, one to Bob Brittain and the other to Bill Hail. He scored the third SAE touchdown himself when he circled end for 20 yards in the final seconds of the fray.

Sandy Kam passed to Robert Takano for the lone Hale Kane score in the second quarter.

Phi Delta Theta scored midway in the first quarter and held on to gain a narrow 7-6 victory over previously undefeated Sigma Chi.

Dick Schlosstein's 15 yard pass to Bob Wagner provided the winner's score. Another Schlosstein to Wagner aerial netted the all-important extra point.

Sigma Chi tallied when Howard Page tossed to Gordon Sloan for six points.

tion but will be slowed up considerably by his injury. Another likely starter will be Dean Van Leuven at the fullback post. Casanova has used three different men at this position this year and Van Leuven will probably be the starter Saturday.

If the weather is good the game could develop into quite a passing duel. Sandy Lederman, Washington quarterback, is one of the leading passers in the nation this year and is making Husky fans very happy with his spectacular tosses.

For Oregon dependable George Shaw will do the flinging. Although the Duck thrower doesn't have as impressive a record as Lederman he is well known all along the coast for his accurate arm.
