The U. S. weather bureau has predicted cloudy skies and possible showers before the game ends. Temperatures are not expected to change.

Campus clothes, including raincoats, are in order. According to Al Goldenberg, rally board chairman, a white shirt section will occupy part of the student section.

Tickets have been selling well since the Ducks' victory over USC, but the athletic ticket office still has many reserved seats available at $3.00.

General admission tickets will be available at the game for $1.20 and the special family rates, $2.00 for the entire family, will again be in effect.

Half time entertainment will be presented by the University marching band under the direction of Ira Lee.

Student Aid Asked By Police Sergeant

Sgt. Vern L. Hill of the Oregon State Police and Eugene Police Chief Ted Brown spoke to the Thursday night meeting of the Inter-fraternity council urging the cooperation of University students in the conduct of rallies and parades.

Sergeant Hill spoke of the "recent over-exuberance" of students at Perkins Point, saying that "the students as a whole did a good job," but pointing out that some broken bottles and refuse were left behind.

He closed his remarks with a reminder to "remember the other fellow" and to "think of the picture that such incidents will paint of you as students."

Chief Brown stated that the University brings 13 million dollars to the city of Eugene each year, even though it is tax free. He stressed that the influx of students with an estimated 1400 cars poses a definite problem to law enforcement.

Urging students to confine their activities to the campus, Brown said, "We will do all in our power to cooperate with rallies and parades, but we must be notified in

Fishermen to Give Coffee Hour Talks

"Fish and You" will be the subject of a talk to be given at 7:45 p. m. today in the Student Union browsing room. Guest lecturer will be Merton Folts, Eugene fishing enthusiast.

A native Oregonian, longtime resident of Eugene, former student at the University of Oregon, and now semi-retired, Folts is well known to the sportsmen of this area for his still-retained enthusiasm for the sport of fishing and for his great interest in conservation of game resources.

This latter interest led him, in 1949 and 1950, to a position on the executive board of the Izaak Walton league, a national organization which promotes fishing, the preservation of good fishing streams and lakes and the conservation of game fish.

Folts' lecture will be a review of his interesting experiences during the years of his association with fishermen and fishing. After the talk, coffee will be served, to be followed by a discussion period.

Birthday Party, Dance to Close SU Anniversary

Official celebration of the third birthday of the Student Union and the fourth birthday of the SU board will be held this afternoon in the fishbowl, according to Andy Berwick, board chairman.

Berwick and Tom Wrightson, student body president, will be featured speakers at the cake-cutting ceremony, according to Sonia Edwards, chairman of the party.

SU hospitality girls will distribute free cake and coffee, Miss Edwards said, and the Phi Delta combo will play.

Three sheet cakes, each with three candles and bearing the words "Happy Birthday, SU" will be the center of attraction in the ceremony.

Speaking about the whole birthday week, Berwick said "The last four SU boards have seen nothing but progress, and this year's board hopes to continue the steady program of the past to present to the campus the best possible program to serve every student interest."

As the last event of the birthday-celebration week, a no-date dance will be held in the fishbowl tonight from 9 to 12. Admission is free.

Phyllis Pearson, SU dance chairman, announced that "The Comets," a six-piece campus combo, will furnish music for the dance. Intermission entertainment has not yet been selected, Miss Pearson said.

The fishbowl is to be decorated in the birthday theme, with balloons, ducks, happy-birthday signs and candles placed throughout the room.
