

Fall Completion Date Set For Wesley House

Methodist students at the University of Oregon will have a permanent modern home of their own when they move into their $85,000 Wesley Foundation house next fall, Charles Howard, chairman of the Wesley Foundation corporation, revealed recently.

The new building will be the first religious center done in modern architecture on the campus. Bids for construction will be called for in December, and work will begin in March of next year. The building will be complete by next September, Howard said. The present building may be removed to a new site if it is not demolished.

The floor level of the building will include a chapel, offices for the director and a social hall. The basement will have accommodations for student officers and a recreation center Howard said.

Howard, a professor of law, has been chairman of the Oregon Campus Church Relations committee of the First Methodist church since the committee was inaugurated in 1928.

"Methodist students on the campus had been using several buildings on the campus as their religious center since the Wesley Foundation was founded on the campus in the early twenties," Howard said.

During the first ten years, they had to meet in the church parlor downtown, he said. Their first building on the campus was rented to them by the owners of the Johnson property at Agate st. The building is now part of University house.

During the war, Wesley Foundation was housed at 1258 Kincaid st., where the Swedish Smorgasbord now stands. After the war, it was moved to the Hall property at the corner of Onyx and 13th. When construction of the Erb Memorial building was started in 1949, the foundation had to sell out its property and move into its present home at 1263 Kincaid.

Survey Indicates Married Students Number Growing

Married students may outnumber single students on the campus in a few years. They could, if the present trend keeps up.

"When I was an undergraduate here, I was probably the only married student on the campus," recalled Mrs. Golda P. Wickham, class of 1930 and now associate director of student affairs.

Actually there were many more married students then, but they were about 4 per cent of the total. Today, married students make up 21 per cent of the students.

According to the records of Clifford L. Constance, registrar, in 1936, 114 married students were enrolled, comprising 4.2 per cent of the student body. In 1940, 6 per cent of the students were married.

Between 1945 and 1946 a big change occurred. Constance pointed out that in 1945 the veterans were here but unmarried, but in 1946 many veterans got married. The jump was from 11.1 per cent in 1945 to 18 per cent in 1946, when some 1028 married students were on the campus.

In the last three years the number of married students on campus has increased, although in 1951 there were more than 660, and in 1952, 590.

This year there are more than 845 married students. Of these 715 are men who are not affiliated with fraternities and 130 are women.

Foreign Students To Visit Schools

Foreign students on the campus will see at first hand Eugene's high school system at work when they visit the new Eugene high school and Roosevelt junior high school Thursday at 1 p. m.

Sponsored by the Foreign Students Freindship Foundation, in conjunction with "Education Week," this is another of the organization's programs designed to help foreign students understand the American way of life.

SU Currents

Educational Movie Topic Alcoholism

Four films will be shown in the weekly series of educational movies sponsored by the Student Union tonight in Connomwealth 138.

These will include "Alcoholism," a case study of alcoholic treatment, "Guard Your Heart," a story of heart trouble, "Story of a Teen Age Drug Addict," showing progressive stages and hospitalization, and "What You Should Know about Biological Warfare," describing methods of attack.

There will be two showings of the program, the first beginning at 7 p. m. and the second at 8:30. Admission is free.

SU Movie Committee Holds Meeting Today

The Student Union movie committee will meet today at 4 p. m. and Thursday at 4 p. m., as there are many committee members unable to attend at one date, according to Barbara Wilcox, SU movie committee chairman. Every member must attend at least one of these meetings, but is urged to attend two, she said.

Meeting of UIS Called for Today

United Independent Students will hear a report of the social committee when they meet at 4 p. m. today in the Student Union, Pres. Hollis Ransom has announced.

A historian will be elected and the polling committee will also report. All independent living organizations are requested by Ransom to send a representative to today's meeting.

YMCA Schedules Membership Meeting

The November YMCA membership meeting will be held tonight at 8 in the Student Union for members and students interested in joining the organization, according to Russ Walker, executive secretary.

A travelogue movie is planned for entertainment for the gathering, and the YMCA program will be outlined for prospective members.

Ducks Shape Up For Cal Contest

Cal scouts didn't get much of a look at Oregon's football style last Saturday, as Coach Casanova kept the wraps on the Duck's newly developed "T" formation.

Cal is the top offensive outfit on the coast, and the Bear-Duck battle should be the big test for Oregon's record setting pass defense.
