Materials for the sale, including sculpture, ceramics, drawings, paintings, weaving, jewelry and lithographs, will be collected in the art school gallery on Dec. 8, 1 to 4 p. m., and Dec. 9, 2 to 4 p. m., and 7 to 9 p. m.

Japanese Ukiyo-e Paintings Shown

Japanese ukiyo-e paintings are now on exhibit in the Oriental art museum. The display will remain in the museum until the end of the term.

Wallace S. Baldinger, associate professor of art and curator of the museum, explains that this form of art was started by Japanese people of a "middle-class state of mind." He said, "People who make their living amid prosaic surroundings of the shop or counting-house relish this kind of picture which tells a story or evokes memories of an outing. Through it they escape the humdrum of existence."

Most forms of modern art, such as impressionism, cubism, expressionism, and surrealism were found through the study of ukiyo-e according to Baldinger.

This form of Japanese art teaches the Western artist to "eliminate the pictorial relief effects traditional in Western painting, to vitalize his pictures by asymmetrical balancing against expanses of open space and to draw the observer into creative participation by their deliberately suggestive understatements," he said.

New Frequency For KWAX FM

KWAX is now back on the air for listeners outside Carson and John Straub halls who have FM radio sets, according to E. A. Kretsinger, faculty adviser for the campus station.

FM broadcasting was suspended this fall when the former frequency was found to interfere with Channel 6 TV, and has been awaiting a frequency change okay from the Federal Communications commission. Broadcasting, which began Monday, is now on 89.3 megacycles.

The changeover also involved a reduction in power which will make the reception range a little smaller, but listeners on and near the campus are assured of reception, says Kretsinger.

AM transmission over the direct lines to Carson and Straub will also continue in addition to the FM.
