A Day at the Zoo Social Notes Show Proof Of A Gay Vacation

by Bob Funk
Emerald Columnist

From the Gutteral, Oregon, Argosy - Imposter, under the by-line of Mrs. Virginia "Gingie" Van Dammit, Sumpump Valley correspondent: "Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schnozzlehalter of our valley had a brighter ornament in their home over Christmas than the ones on the tree.

Of course, that means that their daughter, pretty Snulvia Schnozzlehalter, spent the Happy Holidays with them. Snulvia is studying at the University of Oregon in Eugene, and is getting along fine, according to a report given by her grandmother, Grandma Schnozzlehalter. It seems like only yesterday to this correspondent that pretty Snulvia was playing Gretel in the Sumpump Valley Union Grade School fall dramatic. While here, Snulvia was feted by her old school chum Lthceel Banterspasm. Presents were the mrs. and msdmes. Bill Banterspasm, Robert Schnozzlehalter; Grandma Schnozzlehalter; little Billy-boy Banterspasm; Miss Luthceel Banterspasm; and the guest of honor who is attending the Oregon University in Eugene, pretty Miss Snulvia Schnozzlehalter!

From the San Francisco, California, Morning Monarch-Maligner, under the by-line THE CAVIAR CROWD by MUSETTE: "SPOTTED at the Bardelplinger party at the Castle, BREATHLESS Bea-truce Umper, who SPUN home from the University of Oregon at Corvallis for a sparkling Holiday social whirl. With her was suave AND sweet Agnes Camelclank, one of Bea's Pi Belch sorority SISTERS at school. . ."

From the Portland, Oregon Democrat - Republican, December 24 (AP): "An explosion of a gas stove in the Jasper Rumbletummy home at 394059 N. E. Taj Mahal yesterday evening started the holiday season off on a somber note.

Mrs. Seldom Thumbel, who was lying in her bed in her home next door to the Rumbletummys was injured when shrapnel from the exploding stove burst through her bedroom wall. She was rushed to Good Heavens hospital. Another occupant of the Thumbel home, a small dog named Fred, suffered only minor injuries and trauma.

"The holocaust stemmed from an attempt by Albert Rumbletummy, Jr., to cook hunter's stew on his mother's stove. He explained that "in my camp cookery class at the University of Oregon, where I learned this recipe, we never learned nothing about gas, see?"

"The occasion of Mrs. Thumbel's being in bed at the early hour was a case of ptomaine poisoning brought on by a lunch which her daughter, Salomi, 20-year-old home economics major at Oregon State College, had prepared earlier in the day.

"A neighbor residing at 394061 Taj Mahal, Louis Conchshell, filed a complaint against both the Theumbel and Rumbletummy families, accusing them of disturbing the peace. The two families met outside after the explosion, and, in Mr. Conchshell's words, "loudly disputed the AP poll ratings of Oregon State College." Conchshell is a graduate of Stanford.

From the Atlanta, Georgia, Peachblossom - Alarum: "Police were called out early this morning to quell a disturbance caused by three professors attending the convention of the American Society of Scientists and Passers-by. The three delegates, members of the faculty of Oregon State University at Spokane, Oregon, were booked at the Atlanta Police Station on charges of disturbing the peace.

"One of the delegates started the near-riot by tarting down the fire escape of the Ol' Gene Talmadge hotel stark naked. This attracted a small crowd below, which began to snarl late traffic. Upon passing a fifth-floor window, the professor reassured a screaming woman that "this is nothing to what you might see every day in biology lab." She then fainted.

"The other two professors emerged from the nearby Peach Juice Bar to join the throng observing the fire escape escapade. They somehow managed to lead the crowd in a rendition of a song later identified as the Oregon State University Pledge Song. At a line beginning "Now uncovered swears thy every son," they were overcome with mirth at this obvious reference to their colleague on the fire escape, and retired into the Peach Juice Bar, where they were later apprehended in the company of a woman called Mabel whom they declared was "a true scientist and a grand girl besides." This woman was also booked.

"This noon the trio was released upon the assurance of the National Secretary of the American Society of Scientists and Passers-by that the Oregon delegates would soon be going home. It is reported that the woman known as Mabel will return to Oregon with them."

Walker, Onthank Attend Y Meeting

Russell Walker, University YMCA director, and Karl Onthank, associate director of Student Affairs, attended a meeting of YMCA representatives in Portland Jan. 7.

Walker and Onthank attended the meeting with Ed Espy, national executive for student YMCA's. Espy addressed the group, which was composed of representatives from all over the Northwest.

A Place for Everyone

"On the other hand it's good to have a student like Worthall, in class—it completes the other end of the 'curve.'"

Japanese Art Is Coffee Hour Topic

"The Art of the Priest and the Gentleman in Japan" will be the subject of tonight's coffee hour in the Student Union browsing room at 7:30.

Jiro Harada, a staff member of the Tokyo National museum, will speak in conjunction with the Perry Centennial conference on Far Eastern studies held this week on campus. Harada's appearance is sponsored by the browsing room committee, according to John Wells, chairman.

Harada received an honorary doctor of literature degree in 1936 from the University of Oregon. He spoke on campus before World War II on the topics of Japanese art and culture.

Announcement

Mr. Frederick Heidel, formerly instructor in painting at the University of Oregon, and now teaching at Portland State, has requested the ROBERT PRESCOTT CO. to find, if possible, a university family to whom he may pass along the very beautifully designed contemporary house which he built at 2220 Hawkins Lane.

This is primarily a house for a scholar, a painter, or a musician. It is set back from the road among oaks and firs. Downstairs there are two bedrooms, living area with fireplace, kitchen, and bathroom. The entire upstairs consists of studio space with light from the north. It would, however, make a most desirable music room or library.

This property includes city water, nearly one and three quarters acres, and very likely as much privacy and natural beauty as can be found hereabouts.

The present tenants are friends of the Heidels and do not wish to be disturbed.

Price: $13,750.

Inquire ROBERT PRESCOTT CO., phone 4-9113 or 4-9002.
