

Teams Vie in Hoop Murals

Tuesday's intramural action saw four games, a pair of forfeits, and a technical foul. It was all "B" action for the entire schedule. Sigma Nu picked up a slow 20-15 decision over Chi Psi in the game that rated a technical foul. Merrick downed Nestor in the closest game of the day 23-30. Stitzer walked away from Susan Campbell 34-24. Phi Delta Theta smeared Delta Upsilon to the tune of 50-11.

Phi Delta Theta sported the leading scorer for the day with Don Holt potting 11. He was closely followed by Davis of Stitzer who garnered 11.

Phi Kappa Sigma gained a nod over Delta Tau Delta via the forfeiture route. Barrister Inn dropped one to the Legal Eagles in a like manner.

Saturday Brings Big Sports Day

This coming Saturday, January 30, will be one of the biggest days of the year as far as sports are concerned on the University of Oregon campus.

Starting with a freshman wrestling match, Saturday morning, athletic events will occupy all of sports fans' free time until late Saturday night.

At 10:30, Saturday morning, the Oregon Frosh wrestling team, under the coaching of Bill Hammer will take to the mats for a match with the Oregon State Rooks. The Frosh are eager to garner a team win over their cross-state rivals and many thrills should be provided for interested spectators.

The Varsity wrestling squad will get into action Saturday afternoon when they take on OSC in what beyond a doubt will turn into a grudge match of the highest spirits. This will mark the first wrestling competition in history between the two schools. The Beavers are well known for their strong grappling squads and will probably give the Webfoots all the battle they are bargaining for on this particular occasion. The match will get underway at 2:30 p.m. at McArthur Court.

At the same time that the wrestlers are throwing each other around, John Borchardt's Webfoot swimming team will tangle with Multnomah Athletic Club in a dual meet slated for the Oregon pool.

Then to top off the day full of sports thrills Bill Borcher's Duck basketball team will play the Oregon State Beavers at McArthur Court in an 8:00 p.m. Northern Division cage contest.

All in all just about every athlete on the University of Oregon campus will get into the act and when the day is completed sports enthusiasts ought to be well satisfied that they have witnessed enough contests to last them awhile.

Students Advised To Obtain Ducats

University of Oregon students are advised to purchase tickets for the Friday night Oregon State-Oregon basketball game at Corvallis at the special one dollar price this week for the Oregon reserved section at Gill Coliseum. These tickets are on sale at the McArthur Court athletic ticket office.

As this section holds only 400 persons, the supply is limited and students should buy their tickets before the supply runs out. Oregon students who do not purchase their tickets in Eugene will not get the privilege of purchasing one dollar tickets for the special section in Gill Coliseum. As all reserved seats are sold out, the only other ticket available is the $1.50 general admission ticket, 3000 of which will go on sale at 8:30 Friday morning at Corvallis.

University students expecting to "borrow" OSC student body cards are asked to cease and desist, as special precautionary measures are being set up for the Friday night game in Corvallis.

Turner Wins Ring Match

Hard punching Gil Turner pounded out an unanimous decision over Pierre Langlois in a ten pounds, was the heaviest of his day night.

Turner, scaling 157 and one-half pounds, was the heaviest of his career. Langlois also carried the same weight.

The Philadelphia negro concentrated his attack on the mid-section and piled up enough points in the final stages of the battle to win his 42nd victory in 46 bouts.

Although Turner was fighting in his home town the decision of the officials was not greeted with enthusiasm. The fans obviously thought the verdict should have gone the other way and showed their disgust by throwing papers and pounding their chairs on the floor.

Ed Halberg Leads In Ducks Scoring

Forward Ed Halberg continued to lead his University of Oregon teammates in scoring, field goal percentage, and rebounding through last weekend's games.

Halberg, who is dead with a one-handed jump shot, maintained his hot shooting pace against the Washington Huskies and pushed home 28 points in the two game series. This gave the Port Angeles, Washington flash a total of 251 points for the season so far, an average of 14.8 points per game.

Wegner Second

Halberg's nearest competitor in the pointmaking column is driving guard Ken Wegner, who has tallied 228 counters in the Ducks' 17 tussles. Wegner has a per game average of 13.4.

Center Max Anderson is in third place in the Webfoot scoring department with 199 and guard Barney Holland ranks fourth with 194.

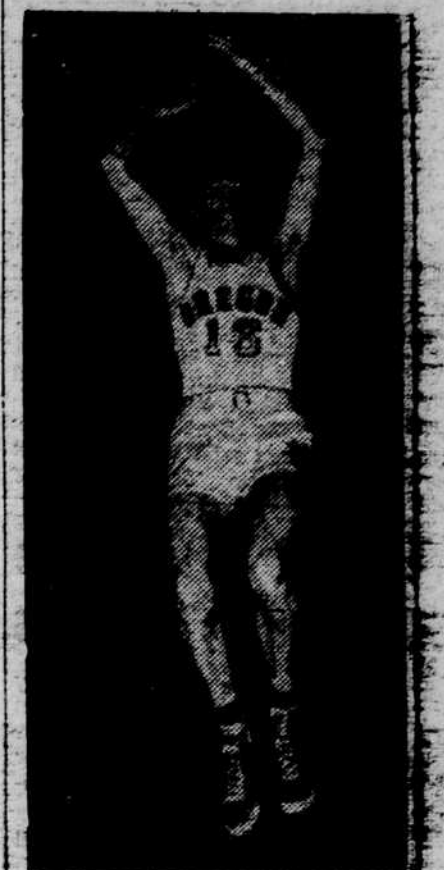

His continued scoring form has kept Halberg over the .500 mark in field goal percentages with a neat .514 average. Anderson is second with a very respectable .420 and reserve forward Bob Stout ranks third with .403.

Top Rebounder

On the backboards Halberg is also the top man with a total of 184 grabbed rebounds. Anderson is the only other Duck player to snare more than one hundred with 169.

Barney Holland is the leading foul shooter for the team with a record of 50 hits out of 65 attempts. This gives the cool-headed guard a brilliant percentage of .769. Bob Hawes has connected on 25 out of 33 shots, an average of .758. Third place in this department is held down by Halberg with 69 out of 93 or a percentage of .742.

ED HALBERG, lanky Duck forward, shows in the above picture the jump shot form that has been a big factor in Oregon's drive to the top of the Northern Division Standings.
