"Big Business Meets the Challenge of Change" will be the topic of T. S. Petersen's address to a 1 p. m. assembly Tuesday in the Student Union ballroom. Petersen is the president of the Standard Oil Company of California.

Petersen will also be presented at an informal coffee hour at 4 p. m. the same afternoon in the SU Dad's lounge. A former resident of Portland, Petersen graduated from Washington high school in 1916.

The president of the company since 1948, he was elected to the Standard board of directors in 1942. He also served as vice-president of the board.

The assembly speaker started his climb through the ranks of the company in 1922 when he joined Standard as a service station attendant in Portland, where he had been engaged in the real estate business.

Petersen held a variety of positions throughout the seven western states and became a division manager in Sacramento during 1931. By 1938 he had risen to the position of general manager.

He later became assistant to the president and manager of the employee relations and personnel department. Before he was named to the board of directors, Petersen was general manager of sales in the marketing department.

Born in Logan, Utah, Petersen attended the Field Artillery Officer's Training school at Camp Zachary Taylor, Ky., during World War I. He is now married and lives in Hillsborough on the San Francisco peninsula.

Petersen is a trustee of the California Academy of Sciences and consulting professor of marketing for the Stanford university graduate school of business. He is also a director for the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company, the American Petroleum Institute and the Western Oil and Gas association and a member of the San Francisco Bay area council.

Chimes Ordered For Student Union

Chimes for the Student Union are now on order.

The 25-bell set of electronic chimes, which will be placed in the tower of the SU building, has been ordered and is expected to arrive on campus for installation before the end of winter term.

The University planning commission expressed hopes Wednesday that the chimes will be installed before the arrival in March of O. Meredith Wilson, president-elect of the University.

The chimes will broadcast over four amplifiers and will be used between classes and for special events on campus. They will definitely be in playing order for the graduation processional in June.

A special device will allow a steady peal of the chimes for academic processions such as the graduation service. They also will be used to close the school day, and after basketball games.

The money for the purchase of the SU chimes was raised from three sources, each donating approximately the same amount. These include: Donations by the class of 1943, which remained after the purchase of the memorial plaque in the SU; donation of class funds from the class of 1953, and donations from alumni leaders.

Cost of the chimes was estimated at $3500 when Dick Williams, SU director, discussed their installation with the ASUO senate last October. The senate unanimously voted approval of installation of the chimes.

The alumni and faculty of the University have expressed almost unanimous approval of the chimes project.

Although some students have expressed doubt about the value of the chimes, the faculty indicated that this changed reaction was largely because Oregon students are not acquainted with campus chimes. The immediate replacement of chimes on the University of Washington campus after they were destroyed in fire was cited as an example of the value other colleges familiar with chimes place on the bells.

Daily Case to Be Heard by Jury

John Daily, University student charged with attempted extortion by the Eugene police department, will appear before the next regular session of the grand jury in about two weeks, the district attorney's office said Wednesday.

A spokesman for that office told the Emerald they had no affidavit on file from Daily's employer. It had been rumored that an affidavit stating Daily was working at the time of some of the alleged activities in the extortion case had been filed with either the district attorney or the police department.

Police Chief Ted Brown said Friday that the case was no longer in his hands, and therefore he could make no comment regarding it.

Daily, who was arrested last week by Eugene detectives, declined to comment. He and Richard A. Bray, graduate student in geography and geology, are scheduled to appear before Municipal Judge John Barber Friday for the dynamiting of the "O" on Skinner's Butte in June, 1953. The men have pleaded guilty to the disorderly conduct charge.

A spokesman for the University indicated no action was being taken on either case at this time.

Col. E. B. Daily, military science department head, has verified the fact that John Daily was in his 2 p. m. ROTC class on Jan. 4, 8 and 11 when some of the actions in the case were said to have occurred.

Colonel Daily is not related to John Daily.

SU Perpetuation Plan Tabled Until Wilson Arrives

The Student Union Board Wednesday tabled its proposed change in the perpetuation plan until the arrival of O. Meredith Wilson, president of the University. The perpetuation plan presented by the board earlier would have the entire board membership interview and recommend prospective members of the board.

Under the present system, a joint ASUO-SU board committee screens the applicants and makes recommendations to the University president for his approval.

The board amended article nine of the proposed plan to read: "Amendments shall become effective upon the approval of the president of the University."

In outlining the background of the report, Andy Berwick, chairman of the board, reported that both Tom Wrightson, ASUO president, and Don Collin, former ASUO vice-president, had discussed the plan and found no objections in the proposed change.

Berwick also said that Donald M. DuShane, director of student

Moll to Discuss Own Works In Browsing Room Lecture Tonight

Tonight's browsing room lecture by E. G. Moll, professor of English, will consist of a reading of one of his poems, "Joseph of Nineveh," and a discussion after the lecture led by Hoyt Trowbridge, professor of English.

The lecture, to be held in the Student Union browsing room from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m., is being held on Thursday this week instead of Wednesday because of the conflicting schedule of the basketball game.

Moll will discuss the poem in its Biblical setting and show its relationship to contemporary problems. The poem is a selection from Moll's book, "The Lifted Spear," which was published by Angus and Robertson in Australia in 1953. The book deals with the problem of religious intolerance.

Jonah in the poem represents a bigot who thinks God solely on his side and is unsympathetic with those of other faiths. Based on the book of Jonah in the Bible, the poem has as its theme no justice without love and tolerance.

Moll is currently working on another poem on the same order as "Jonah at Nineveh." The new poem is based on the book of Ruth in the Bible, and has as its core a protest against racial prejudice.

Tonight's lecture is the fourth in this term's series of eight. These lectures are open to all faculty members and students.
